WHAT A MESS, SAYS MAYOR

City Blue Bloods Are Tickled Pink

Canada's first social register seems doomed to be laughed out of Victoria before it even arrives here.

The 'Ins' From Puck To Press

The new social register makes no distinctions on pursuits or avocations of those included.

Here are some of the professions and trades of people whose names are there:

Colin Kilburn, hockey player.

Elgin Neish, former fisherman's union official.

Former Songhees Indian Chief Percy Ross.

All local police chiefs.

Many doctors.

Mayor Percy Scourrah.

Premier and Mrs. Bennett, as well as former premier Byron Johnson and Mrs. Johnson.

Two news photographers.

"Tippy" O'Neil of radio fame.

Cougar Fined $50

SEATTLE (AP)—Don McLeod of Victoria and Pat Hannigan of New Westminster have been fined $50 each for their stick-swinging duel during the Cougars-Royals game in Victoria Tuesday night, Western Hockey League president Al Leader announced today.

An advance listing of about 600 Victoria "blue bloods" received here today was greeted with derisive hoots at its galaxy of errors, both of omission and commission.

Many of the citizens listed were kidded unmercifully by friends and business associates. And those who studied the complete list were startled at glaring errors, such as:

Listing of about two dozen people now dead—some for as long as 18 months.

Listing of divorced persons as man and wife at the same address.

Listing of a husband, but not his wife; and, possibly worse, listing a wife and not her husband.

Nearly all of those listed seemed surprised to find themselves included in the "elite" register, for which a charge of $25 per copy is made, available only to those whose names appear.

Some months ago, a questionnaire application form for listing, in the register, printed in Toronto, were received by several hundred Victorians.

The majority paid no attention to the forms. None of the "blue bloods" contacted by the Times today said he had replied to the original questionnaire.

But this, apparently, did not stop publication of the names.

Said a member of a prominent family which receives a total of six listings: "None of us answered the queries. As far as I'm concerned, it's a lot of malarkey."

He also mentioned that his wife was the only member of the family not listed.

PROMINENTS AMONG 'OUTS'

Princess Chikmatoff.

Capt. and Mrs. Massy Gooden.

Symphony conductor Hans Gruber.

Mrs. W. C. Woodward who entertained Princess Margaret.

Miss Kathleen Agnew.

Robin Dunsinuir, scion of the island's most famous family.

Harry P. Hodges, husband of Senator Nancy Hodges.

And numerous others.

LADY DOCKER ASKS

What Ladders Were Climbed?

MONTREAL (UPI)—Lady Norah Docker thinks Canada's new social register "disappointing."

"Really, this social register of yours," she said, "I don't think it registers at all."

Her three-quarter-length white ermine coat (reputed cost $9,000) flapping as she walked, Lady Docker breezed into town late Wednesday, chatting brightly.

She and her 19-year-old son, Lance, were accompanying her husband on a business trip.

Hostages Released

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI)—The U.S. embassy announced today that Cuban rebels have released two Americans and seven Cubans employed by the Texas Oil Company who were kidnapped near Santiago de Cuba on Monday.

The principal means of achieving Chiang's mission successfully is through nationalism, democracy and social well-being, "and not the use of force," the communique said.

The communique also came a step closer toward an American commitment to defend the Nationalist-held offshore islands, although it did not make such a flat guarantee.

The statement said that the United States and the Nationalist regime "recognized that under present conditions the defence of the Quemoy islands together with the Matsu is closely related to the defence of Taiwan, Formosa and Penghu the Pescadore islands in the Formosa Strait."

This was interpreted as a new warning that any Red attempt to take the offshore islands might provoke U.S. intervention.

DULLES HEADS HOME

Dulles left by jet tanker for Washington after he and Chiang drew up the communique in their fifth meeting since Tuesday.

The Chinese Communists and their Russian allies "cannot possibly succeed" in trying to conquer Formosa, eliminate Nationalist China and expel the U.S. from the western Pacific, the communique declared.

The judge made his ruling at the start of the 69th day of the trial.

His suggestion, first proposed Wednesday, brought a protest from the defence that it would be an innovation in Canadian law, but the jurist ruled the working paper was necessary because of the complexity of the case and the multiplicity of verdicts possible.

The trial was held up for 25 minutes while counsel argued a legal technical point of law in the absence of the jury. When the jury filed in, prosecutor Victor Dryer resumed his address, now in its third day. This will be followed by the judge's charge expected to take a week.

CONFLICT

The prosecutor referred to the conflict of evidence between star Crown witness Charles Eversfield and bank manager Carl Loath.

PEACEFUL RETURN

'No Force' Says Chiang

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek today renounced the use of force as the principal means of returning to the Communist-held Chinese mainland.

In a joint communique ending three days of talks with U.S. State Secretary Dulles, Chiang said a return to the mainland still is his sacred mission but "the foundation of this mission resides in the minds and the hearts of the Chinese people."

Dulles told Nationalist leaders at a banquet Wednesday night he considers the Communist Chinese regime just a passing phase.

NO FORCE

The principal means of achieving Chiang's mission successfully is through nationalism, democracy and social well-being, "and not the use of force," the communique said.

The communique also came a step closer toward an American commitment to defend the Nationalist-held offshore islands, although it did not make such a flat guarantee.

Bomarc Missile Deal Off?

OTTAWA (CP)—Possibility that plans to acquire the Bomarc guided missile for Canadian air defence will eventually be cancelled is being mentioned by some officials here.

The Bomarc is scheduled to come into operation at two Canadian bases in 1961 as a defence against manned bombers.

But by that time, some officials say, the manned bomber will no longer be the main air threat against the North American continent.

These authorities say Canada now should place most of its emphasis on the counter-missile threat against the North American continent.

Small Powers' A-Test Ban Plan Failing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Attempts by small UN powers to work out a plan for halting nuclear weapon tests acceptable to both the United States and Russia appeared today to have run into a stone wall.

With both the major powers standing fast on their opposing positions, there seemed little hope of formulating any resolution on cessation of tests that would win unanimous support in the General Assembly.

Swedish Foreign Minister Osten Unden, who had headed the small-power move, was reported to have given up. He had hoped to prod the nuclear powers into a preliminary agreement that would get the Geneva talks off to a good start Oct. 31.

NO 'PRINTS'

AYLMER, Que. (CP)—Police Chief Roland Brazeau has called off his plan to fingerprint 1,500 school children in connection with a $5,000 fire in Aylmer High School last week.

After Chief Brazeau announced his plan, Mayor Telephone Lortie and officials of both the Roman Catholic and Protestant school boards opposed it. "The parents would be up in arms," the mayor said.

Working Paper For Bribe Jury

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson directed today that the jury should be supplied with a working paper on which to record their verdicts in the involved bribery-conspiracy case whose central figure is former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

The judge made his ruling at the start of the 69th day of the trial.

His suggestion, first proposed Wednesday, brought a protest from the defence that it would be an innovation in Canadian law, but the jurist ruled the working paper was necessary because of the complexity of the case and the multiplicity of verdicts possible.

Technical Aid Also Promised

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev announced today that Russia will loan the United Arab Republic 400,000,000 rubles for construction of the Aswan High Dam on the Nile.

Khrushchev's announcement was carried by Moscow Radio. It was U.S. withdrawal of aid for the dam project that led to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal two years ago.

The ruble loan amounts to about $100,000,000 at the arbitrary Soviet official rate of exchange.

Khrushchev also promised the United Arab Republic the services of technicians and construction equipment for the project.

AID ASKED

Khrushchev said the loan was being made in response to a request by the UAR for aid relayed by Amer.

He said the money would go to pay for machinery, equipment, and other materials from the Soviet Union to the UAR.

Russia made her first offer of aid for the dam in October, 1955, holding out a $200,000,000 loan.

that was to be repaid over 30 years by Egyptian deliveries of cotton and was to carry 2 per cent interest.

The U.S. and Britain countered two months later with a combined offer of $73,000,000.

ARMS DEAL

In July, 1956, the American and British offers were withdrawn after Egypt concluded a Soviet-sponsored arms deal with Czechoslovakia and the western governments believed she would be unable to honor her other financial commitments.

Nasser countered a month later by nationalizing the Suez Canal and announcing that its $100,000,000 annual earnings would go to finance the dam "without pressure from any nation."

All of the loan offers, including today's, involve only the first stage of the dam construction project. The entire project will take from 12 to 16 years and will cost an estimated $1,300,000,000.

U.S. WRITER'S VIEW ON CHINA

Signs of Revolt Not in Evidence

This is the sixth and last of a series of articles by special NEA correspondent John Strohm on his tour of Communist China.

By JOHN STROHM

NEW YORK—Questions often asked me since my 50-hour flight home after a tour of Red China are: "How do the Chinese people live, eat and work under communism? What's happened to religion, the schools? Are they docile or will they ever revolt?"

A consolidated reply would be something like this: The food is adequate, the housing vastly improved. Schools, churches and all means of public expression are in the complete service of the state. There was no visible evidence of any disposition to resist regimentation.

Light office work earns a rice or flour ration of a pound a day. Workers in steel plants and coal mines get up to two pounds a day. Every individual can buy 40 cents worth of meat (half a pound) every week, with sometimes an extra ration for Sundays. Each family gets a pound of beef monthly and 10 ounces of edible oil monthly per person.

The cotton cloth ration is up to six yards a year per person. Chinese wages are edging up.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, when we sit at our tables today and partake of food, may we remember those who have none. As we go to school or to work in the freedom which is ours, let us not forget those who suffer for freedom's sake. As the greetings of our dear ones sound in our ears, may we not forget those whose loved ones have been snatched away by war, famine and pestilence. Then, dear Lord, let the remembrance of such things bring compassion into every act of our daily lives; in Jesus' name. Amen.

TRADE CONGRESS PROTESTS

Arbitration End Planned by U.K.

LONDON (AP)—The British government is abolishing compulsory arbitration for labor disputes. Labor Minister Ian Macleod announced Wednesday night the act setting up industrial tribunals with legally-binding powers will be brought to an end in six months. It became law seven years ago.

The only government arbitration machinery left will be industrial courts, whose rulings are not binding.

The Trades Union Congress immediately denounced the new move. One union leader said: "There will be a strike a day for a year."

Employers have complained that compulsory arbitration, although easily enforced against a company, could not easily be applied against workers.

Fliers Survive Freezing Cold

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—An Anchorage bush pilot and his passenger, trapped a week in the wilderness with the mercury dropping to 35 degrees below zero, were safe today.

Pilot Kenneth Oldham was picked up by an army helicopter Tuesday night. Wednesday Sgt. Stefan J. Wiedemann, a military photographer at Ft. Richardson, was found eight miles from their downed plane, with both feet frozen, but trying to walk out.

The two left Chistochina for McCarthy a week ago Tuesday in a light plane equipped only with wheels. They landed in the Nabesna Glacier area about 50 miles east of Nabesna Village, and then the snow came.

They built a lean-to. Oldham told his rescuers, and spent most

Some of those listed aren't at all happy about it, because of the ribbing they are already getting. One has threatened to investigate the possibility of bringing legal suit.

Some opinion is that suit can be brought, but would be difficult to win, unless malicious intent or actual financial damage could be proven.

Canada does not have as strict an "invasion of privacy" statute as the United States.

Typical of reaction to the list of "Victoria's 300" was that of Mayor Percy Scurrell, who, with Mrs. Scurrell, is listed. "I roared with laughter when I read it," he said. "What a mess! Wherever did they get those names?"

All but two members of the city council appear. Omitted are Aldermen Elmer McEwen and Hugh Ramsay.

Don Smith is the lone city MLA who does not appear in the registry.

Victoria's MP, A. W. deB. McPhillips, a member of a very old and prominent Canadian family, is not listed.

Neither is Defence Minister George Pearkes, although his name may appear in the Ottawa section.

Missing, too, are Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane of the B.C. Supreme Court; Anglican Archbishop of B.C., Most Rev. Harold E. Sexton; Most Rev. James E. Hill, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria; Robin Dunsmuir, heir to one of B.C.'s best-known names.

NAVY IGNORED

The navy, which plays such a prominent part in Victoria social activities, gets short shrift, with a commander or two and a lieutenant listed. No mention is made of flag officer, Pacific Coast, his chief of staff, or the commanding officer of HMCS Naden. There isn't a single CO of a Pacific Command ship in the list.

On the other side of the ledger, some very surprised citizens found their names listed. One was commercial fisherman Elgin Neish, whose far left-wing beliefs are well-known. Said Mrs. Neish: "When we received the application form, we treated it as a big joke, and threw it away."

In the Times news room, photographers Irving Strickland and Bill Halkett, and mail clerk Freeman King (known best as a "good scout") took mock bows at being included.

SURPRISING OMISSION

They lorded it over their opposition numbers on the Colonial staff, who weren't included. Publishers of both papers were listed, but the editor of only one.

Another surprising omission was Hubert Wallace, brother of B.C.'s former lieutenant-governor, president of the Community Chest, head of Yarrow's Ltd., for years a leading citizen. But the boss of Victoria's other major shipyard, Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, appears.

Among the missing assortment of misspelled names and wrong addresses, Brig. F. N. Cabellu has real cause for complaint. The register demotes him to colonel.

Hans Gruber, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, whose wife also is not only socially prominent but well known in her own right musically, finds no place in the register. However, the Empress Hotel's Billy Tickle and dance band leader Len Acres made the grade. So did radio announcer Tippy O'Neill.

Those who know Victoria's society best raised their eyebrows at finding no trace of such socially prominent people as Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. Henderson, Capt. and Mrs. Massey Golden, Princess Chikmatoff, Mrs. R. W. Gibson, Mrs. W. C. Woodward, the D'Arcy McGees, Kathleen Agnew.

But it's doubtful if many tears are being shed by those left out. It would appear that Victoria's own social register will continue to be the city directory.

Firework Sale Restrictions Set

LANGFORD — Sale, display, and use of fireworks will be limited in Langford Fire Protection District to the period between Oct. 24 and Nov. 1 inclusive. Fire Chief Rod Bayles has announced.

List for Social 'Blue Book' Drafted by Interior Visitor

Many Victorians are wondering today just how the names for the "social register" were obtained.

Some recalled the visit to the city in September, 1957 of Miss Joan Pritchard, an Okanagan woman who was compiling lists.

The way Miss Joan Pritchard looked at it then, it was to be "a list of the socially prominent, of course, but also a real record of the men and women who have helped to make our country great."

At the time Miss Pritchard was gathering names.

Fact is, she had been gathering names in many parts of British Columbia, and for several months, before she reached Victoria.

In her briefcase she had names of descendants of settlers, names of British Columbians who had, to use her own words, "contributed or were contributing something to the growth and culture of this province."

Mayor Behind New Bylaw On Fireworks

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said he would support a draft bylaw prohibiting fireworks sales after 6 p.m. on Halloween despite a request for a change.

A. J. Burns, lawyer for The Orient, a Government Street store, applied this morning for permission to address council before it gave final reading on the bylaw later today.

Mr. Burns was expected to oppose the bylaw on the grounds that the store purchased a large supply of fireworks in the expectation it would be able to sell them up until 9 p.m. Friday.

"In the interests of the public, I will still support the bylaw," the mayor said when informed of the application for a hearing.

The bylaw would permit sale of fireworks only on Oct. 29, 30 and 31 and only before 6 p.m. those days.

Under the present fire regulations, storekeepers must take out a $1 permit to stock fireworks or face prosecution and possible $100 fine.

Fire Chief James Bayliss said the regulations forbid display of fireworks without the permit.

If more than 150 pounds of incendiary items are stocked by a store "whether on display or under the counter, it has to be stored in a fireproof vault," he said.

inced; names of men and women in public life.

She explained that the same sort of thing was going on in each province across Canada.

"When we have the roster complete," she said, "the first Social Register of Canada will be published."

An optimist at heart, Miss Pritchard expected that the book would be off the press before the end of 1958. But it took several upheavals, many changes among sponsors and many number of stories in newspapers and magazines to launch the book.

Premier showing was in Montreal last Friday where one of the first issues was placed on a red velvet covered pedestal and "presented" with soft music and colored lights.

It was originally planned that the first copy, suitably engraved and bound, would be presented to His Majesty the Queen.

Miss Pritchard was born at Westbank near Kelowna; started in radio work in the interior city and later moved to eastern Canada where, for 10 years, she worked in radio stations at Hamilton and Toronto.

She was one of a group of Canadian press women who were given visas to visit Russia in 1955 and she took a tape recorder with her behind the Iron Curtain and recorded talks with Russians through interpreters.

CPA Tourist Proposal First Among Airlines

OTTAWA (CP) — CPA witness Frederic Kimball said today that no known airline has undertaken what CPA proposes — to make money by creating a new trans-Continental route bearing 80 per cent tourist traffic.

The American aviation consultant agreed with TCA counsel John G. Edison that the average American airline carries only 36.6 per cent in tourist passengers and 63.4 per cent in first-class fares.

TCA currently carries about 63 per cent in first-class fares and 37 per cent in tourists.

CPA proposes to compete against TCA by offering 80 per cent of its service to tourists and only 20 per cent in first-class fares.

Mr. Edison introduced evidence to show that one U.S. airline, TWA Airlines, had been attempting to boost its proportion of tourist traffic and last year showed a deficit of $5,000,000 on total revenue of $200,000,000.

Mr. Kimball agreed that this was the case but said the deficit did not necessarily come from the tourist boost attempt. TWA, he claimed, had other problems to solve.

Wednesday Mr. Edison suggested that if Canada needs two trans-Continental airlines, the U.S. should have 10 instead of the four it now has.

250 Negro Women Herded in Trucks

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Some 250 singing, dancing Negro women were arrested and driven away in police trucks Wednesday when they protested against having to carry identity books.

The arrests brought the number of Negro women arrested after making identity book protests to 750 in the last few days.

Compromise Ends Union Feuding

MONTREAL (CP) — Two groups feuding for control of the 2,000-member National Association of Marine Engineers Incorporated (NLC) have reached a compromise agreement, it was announced Wednesday.

President Richard G. Greaves said the compromise was reached during a series of meetings and negotiations and that the stage has been set for unifying the association's ranks.

The association represents engineers on the Great Lakes and the west and east coasts.

Mr. Greaves also announced he plans to call a national convention early next year. He added that all legal proceedings launched during the last two years have been terminated.

CHURCH HOLIDAY HIS AIM

Reeve's Motive 'Respect'

School trustee R. H. Reeve, who drew criticism from as far as Toronto for attacking Remembrance Day as "hypocrisy," said today he has no regrets for his statement.

"I have no regrets because I believe I spoke for a good cause," he said. "I wanted to point out that in some respects, Remembrance Day has become something of a circus—just another holiday."

"I think it should be treated with a much deeper respect than is given it now."

Mr. Reeve said Remembrance Day should be treated as a "holy day instead of a holiday."

People should observe it in churches where they could "go down on their knees and thank God for the men who gave their lives behind guns" instead of marking the day by merely reading an editorial.

Mr. Reeve said that the schools were making every effort to impart the deep significance of Remembrance Day to students but that this was not being done in the home.

"This shows how little respect there is among some persons for Remembrance Day."

Power and Utilities Invest Billions in Canada's Development

Throughout Canada as a whole, power and public utilities companies are spending close to three billion dollars this year in capital investment. This reflection of confidence in Canada's future is based on the fact that

Much of the increased power demand, of course, is for industry. But even in the domestic field the per capita use of electricity is more than double the figure of 1945. Today, more than 80 per cent of Canadian homes have electric lighting. In eastern Canada new power plants are being tapped. In western Canada new power plants are being Maritimes exist in the newly-developed Manicouagan River power site near Baie Comeau and in the Hamilton Falls, in Labrador which has been acquired by The British Newfoundland Corporation.

It has been estimated that the cost of transmitting 130,000 kw of power from the Hamilton River to Moncton in the heart of the Maritimes would be 4 1/2 mills. If 260,000 kw were delivered the costs would possibly be as low as 2 1/2 mills.

hp is closer to the Maritimes than the Hamilton Falls and would undoubtedly have power to spare after serving the growing industrial community of the north shore of the St. Lawrence.

In British Columbia where the need for power is urgent expansion plans are also under way. Private estimates of the province's total potential for power run between 20 million and 30 million hp.

Major supplier of power in the lower mainland area is B.C. Electric. Demands by the company's customers in the past 10 years have increased 300 per cent.

of a 100 million thermal generating plant near Loco will be in service. In 1959 the company's largest hydro project, the $56.6 million second stage development of Bridge River will add 345,000 hp to the company's generating capacity.

Canada's power and utility services are on the march. Slightly more than half of the $2.9 billion total will be spent on new construction, dams, power pipelines, cables, etc.

PETER DENIES HE'LL WED PHOTOGRAPHER

HONG KONG (UPI)—Peter Townsend flew into Hong Kong today and denied he planned to marry Belgian photographer. Marie-Luce Jamagne or anybody else.

Friends of Townsend have hinted strongly at a possible marriage between the handsome Briton and Miss Jamagne, a 19-year-old photographer and cigaret heiress.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," Townsend said as he stepped off the plane which flew him here from New Delhi. "I have no intention to marry anyone."

Municipal Appeal On Phones

OTTAWA (CP)—A second appeal against proposed telephone rate increases in Ontario and Quebec was filed with the federal cabinet today by 27 municipalities in the two provinces.

The first appeal was laid before the cabinet Wednesday by eight provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec.

The average five-per-cent increase was awarded to the Bell Telephone Company by the board of transport commissioners Oct. 10, effective Nov. 1. It would amount to about $17,000,000 a year.

The municipalities have asked that the cabinet immediately suspend the increase and that, following a later hearing, it rescind them completely.

'OPEN HOURS' APPROVAL SLATED

Locks Off City Stores Today

Barring an upset, Victoria leaves the era of restricted shopping hours behind it today.

City council was scheduled to give formal approval to the controversial "wide open hours" bylaw today.

The bylaw, withdrawing all City Hall restrictions on hours for virtually the entire retail trade, was to go into effect immediately after final reading.

Approval in principle passed the required two-thirds majority with a 7-2 vote at the last meeting. Today's final reading required only a simple majority and no aldermen indicated they would switch their stand before the vote.

Bruce Humber, head of the Merchants 5½-Day Shopping Week Committee which led opposition to the bylaw, said no members of the committee intended to ask for a final word to council before the vote.

The new bylaw ends a controversy over shopping restrictions that began in 1951.

However, despite the elimination of regulations, individual stores are expected to retain the same shopping hours they had during the past summer.

PREMIER DE GAULLE ... new peace move

Offers Rebels Safe Conduct

PARIS (UPI)—Premier Charles de Gaulle offered safe conduct today to any Algerian rebel group that wants to come to Paris to negotiate peace.

The move was the farthest yet de Gaulle has gone in his public statements aimed at laying the basis for a peaceful settlement of the bloody and costly Algerian rebellion against France that will be four years old on Nov. 1.

B.C. Appeal Verdict Reserved

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today reserved decision on a British Columbia government appeal for lower freight rates on Prairie grain going to that province for consumption within B.C.

The case is an appeal from the board of transport commissioners, which in 1956 turned down a B.C. application for reductions amounting to about 60 per cent on this grain traffic.

In closing argument before the high court today, B.C. was opposed by the governments of the three Prairie provinces and by the Alberta Wheat Pool and the United Grain Growers of Alberta.

MANITOBA THRONE SPEECH

Schools to Get Bigger Grants

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba government announced today that it will increase aid to education along the lines indicated by a provincial royal commission on education.

The plan was announced in the speech from the throne read at the opening of a special session of the legislature by Lieutenant-Governor J. S. McDermid.

"The royal commission on education has submitted an interim report dealing with certain aspects of education in Manitoba," the speech said. "In general the government concurs with the views expressed by the interim report that this province has not been giving sufficient financial support to education and proposes to implement certain changes along the lines indicated by the royal commission."

The commission report, released last month, urged much higher salaries for qualified teachers and increased financial support from the province for school boards.

The throne speech also outlined plans for an industrial and tourist development program, moves to ease winter unemployment, establishment of an agricultural credit plan, and a record highway construction program.

The speech said the government "intends to initiate a vigorous industrial and tourist development program which will benefit all sections of the province."

The outline of legislation to be taken up at the special session forecast establishment of a development fund.

BIG ROAD PLANS

"This agency will supplement normal financial sources and will provide financial assistance to manufacturing industries, tourist and recreational facilities and community development organizations."

The government said a marked increase in winter employment will come from a special effort to co-ordinate its road-building, power transmission and telephone activities.

The legislature was told it will be asked to approve a larger amount than granted at any previous single session for the construction and reconstruction of highways.

Backing for CCF Pledged by Labor

VANCOUVER (CP)—The drafting of the CCF platform by the British Columbia Federation of Labor Wednesday voted to support the CCF party in the next provincial election after two hours of debate at its annual convention.

The policy of backing the CCF party, which was adopted by a substantial, although not unanimous, vote, remains unchanged from last year.

However, recent meetings between provincial labor and CCF officials indicate the federation may have a larger voice in the picking of CCF candidates and training their legislative aims.

Some delegates were solidly against any direct political action; others said it is impossible to sell union members on a policy which lines up with any one political party; others wanted an even stronger bond with the CCF.

About 25 of the 330 delegates voted against the resolution.

The resolution doesn't adopt the CCF as the political arm of labor. It repeats last year's aim that "the CCF warrants the support of the workers in B.C., as the best means of presently obtaining their legislative aims."

New tricks for Hallowe'en treats with ROGERS' GOLDEN SYRUP

TAFFY APPLES

1 dozen eating apples
½ cup Rogers' Golden Syrup
2 cups granulated sugar
¼ cup water
Pinch of salt
Red food coloring
Vanilla
Tongue depressors

Wash apples thoroughly, wipe dry. Place syrup, sugar, salt and water in large heavy cooking pot. Stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves. Cook without stirring to brittle stage (300°). Remove from heat and place over hot water. Add food coloring and vanilla. Remove stems and insert tongue depressors in apples. Dip and swirl in hot syrup. Remove and place stick end through cake rack on bowl. Let cool. Best made day before serving. Do not refrigerate.

ROGERS' PULL TAFFY

2 cups golden-brown sugar
1 cup Rogers' Golden Syrup
½ cup water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put sugar, syrup, water and vinegar in heavy cooking pot. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Cook until mixture reaches brittle stage (300°). Now add soda mixed with a little cold water. Syrup will boil up vigorously but do not stir. Remove from heat and flavor with vanilla. Pour out on buttered cold meat platter. As candy cools it may be pulled until light in color and hard. Cut in pieces with scissors or sharp knife.

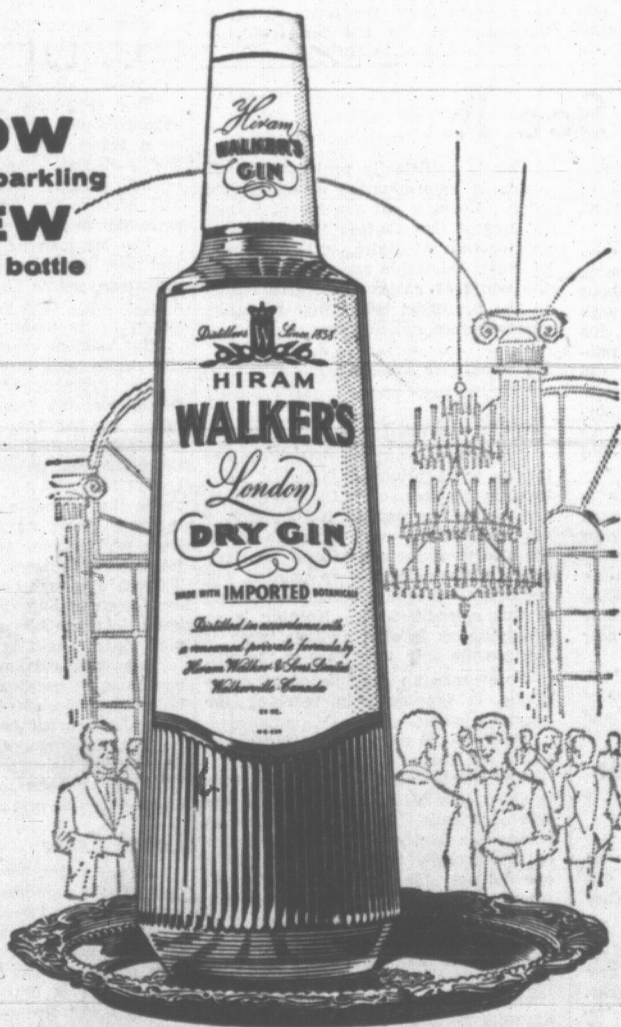

POPCORN BALLS

1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup Rogers' Golden Syrup
4 tablespoons butter
½ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Pinch of salt
8 cups of freshly popped corn

Place popcorn in a large buttered bowl and keep warm in a slow oven. Mix all candy ingredients except vanilla and salt. Stir in heavy pan over low heat until sugar dissolves. Cover for 3 minutes of boiling then remove cover and cook to soft crack stage (270°). Add vanilla and salt. Pour rapidly over corn and stir to coat each kernel. Dip hands in cold water and shape popcorn into balls about the size of eating apples.

Fuel for the Fire

ANYONE WHO SUPPOSES that criticism of the Federal Government's fiscal policies comes only from Opposition partisans should read a recent statement by Dr. A. K. Eaton, former assistant deputy minister of finance.

Dr. Eaton is no partisan but a distinguished civil servant of long experience, loyal to the government of the day, whatever its party label. And he sums up the present problems of the Diefenbaker Government thus:

"There is such clear evidence (of business recovery) that monetary policy may soon find itself concerned again with inflation. . . . It is quite possible that in Ottawa we will shortly hear of monetary policy being directed toward combating inflation—while government fiscal policy is still feeding the fires of inflation through deficit financing."

Such financing would not necessarily feed the fires of inflation if the Government could borrow the money required, above its revenues, from private lenders. For then it would merely transfer part of the total money supply from one hand to another (though of course the Government's spending would be more inflationary than the lender's habit of saving.) But the fact is that the Government today is not borrowing mainly from the private lender. It is borrowing from the banks.

The private savers having refused to increase their holdings of government bonds and reduced them, despite all the official propaganda and salesmanship, the Government is getting its extra funds from the banking system.

This, as Dr. Eaton says, must feed the fires of inflation later on, if not immediately. Through the complex operations of the banking system the Government in effect creates new money, or the base on which new money can be created later, when it borrows from the commercial banks or the Bank of Canada.

That is the danger of a deficit on the present gigantic scale of something like a billion dollars a year—it is creating new money in the form of bank deposits and bank loans. It is diluting the currency. Mr. Diefenbaker indicated in a recent speech that he is deeply worried by this process, as well he may be.

For that reason, writes Mr. Michael Barkway, Ottawa editor of The Financial Post, the period of free federal spending seems to be closing and its joys "are paling noticeably as the necessity of financing the deficit gets nearer. . . . In the months ahead Ottawa will not be such a soft touch as it sometimes seemed in the last year."

This is good news for anyone who owns a diminished dollar. If the recent spending splurge is near its end, the Government may get on top of the deficit but this will take some time yet, and much courage. Meanwhile Dr. Eaton is right. More fuel is being heaped on the fire every day.

An Unwarranted Protest

THE SPIRIT OF THE SABBATH is in no way harmed or diminished by the presentation of good music on Sunday. For this reason there will be little public support, either from church members or non-churchgoers, for efforts to suppress the Sunday afternoon concerts of the Victoria Symphony Society.

The Symphony concerts, while restricted to ticket purchasers and performed by paid musicians, can hardly be classed as a commercial venture. The Society's revenues are employed solely in maintaining the orchestra and the income from admission charges falls substantially short of the sums needed. A brief glance at alternative recreations common to Canadian Sunday afternoons will show that few pastimes can provide more innocent pleasure than listening to good music.

The federal laws respecting Sunday observance specify that legal action for enforcement can be taken only with the permission of the provincial attorney-general. Obviously this provision is intended to protect such undertakings as the symphony concerts from falling under the ban of persons who, though well-meaning, appear not to reflect the prevailing spirit of the church in these times.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that Attorney-General Bonner will exercise his discretionary powers in this regard and interpret the law so as to reflect its original intent and the general preference of the public.

Plateau in British Labor Hopes

THREE DECISIONS ON policy dominated the recent convention of the British Labor Party and demanded action by the delegates. One was left on a rather delicate balance of hoped-for compromise, one was marked for future cautious investigation, one was decided by a resounding majority in favor of much the same policy at present followed by the Conservative Government.

In this light, the Labor Party convention did not appear to have produced a platform which would hold wide appeal for the nation in an election campaign. Labor hopes which had risen high during the recent slump in Conservative popularity tended to level off at a less optimistic point, in contrast to the very "cocky" attitude which characterized the recent Conservative convention.

Wage policy was one of the problems which found Mr. Gaitskell's party divided. Strong union elements let it be known very clearly that they would not agree to a wage freeze even under a Labor Government. On the other hand, the economists of the Party could not countenance an inflationary spiral of wage increases.

The question was left in the very general terms of Mr. Gaitskell's statement that Labor's plans envisaged neither a wage freeze nor a "wages spree." It was hoped that Labor in power could contrive a prosperous economic situation in which the unions would feel no need for vigorous wage demands.

The question of nationalization received cautious treatment. Apart from agreement on re-nationalization of steel and of road transport, there was no clear sentiment for extended public ownership. While the plank remains an important one in Socialist theory, past experience, when Labor formed the government, has cooled much of the enthusiasm for practical implementation.

It was found that economic facts are not shaped by theories, and that mere change of ownership of an industry, from private to public, does not of itself create new markets, technological improvements or profits.

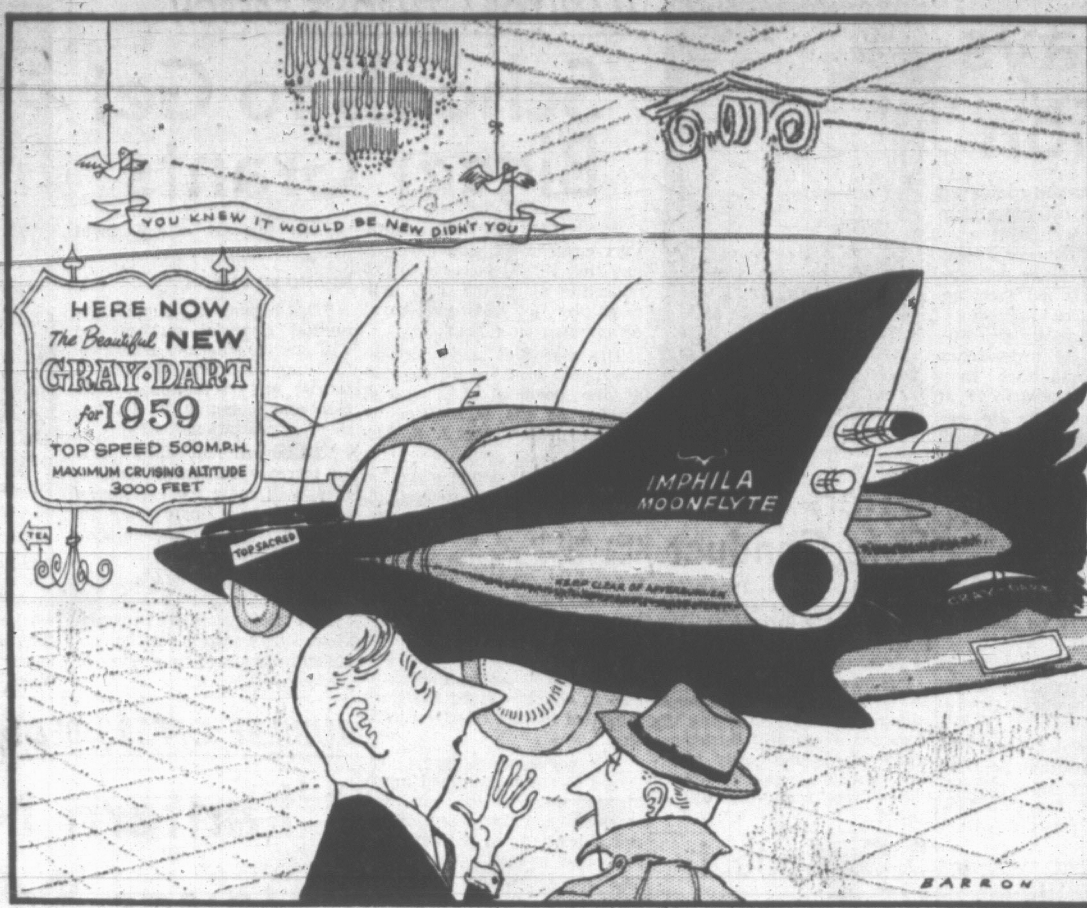

A proposal to nationalize the land was heavily defeated, but for industry in general a go-slow, wait-and-see attitude was prevalent. Nationalization will not be a prominent part of any Labor appeal to the public.

The third important plank, foreign policy, found general agreement but developed a sharp party split on the H-bomb. There was strong support for a policy whereby Britain would abandon nuclear weapons and set an example to the world. It was opposed by both Mr. Gaitskell and Mr. Aneurin Bevan—they would not tie the hands of any future Labor Government in this regard. Their view carried the day, but it offers no alternative to present Government policy and could hardly win votes from the Conservatives.

cast had come true. The association held its fourteenth assembly in Buenos Aires.

It found La Prensa, restored to Dr. Gaiña Paz some time ago, flourishing and carrying on its tradition of independent thought. It found also 10 dailies in the city, the principal ones politically objective and editorially outspoken, and some 25 weeklies, most of them the organs of political groups.

The press in Argentina, it appears, has risen phoenix-like from the ashes of Peron's fires now cold.

LOOSE ENDS

Mr. Snifkin's Venture in Society

WHEN the Social Register of Canada was unveiled in Toronto recently, with ceremonies and ritual befitting a work of art, the name of my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin, was not observed in that sacred volume. Nevertheless, it was there. As a Leader of Society, Mr. Snifkin could not be excluded, even though he failed to pay the usual entrance fee of $25. The editors of the Register know an aristocrat when they see him, through Mr. Snifkin's deceptive disguise.

Hutchison

But the editors took no chances. They conducted a deep research into Mr. Snifkin's ancestry, they investigated his home, they traced the joint. When the representative of the Register called some months ago and asked about Mr. Snifkin's family he replied, quite truthfully, that his grandfather had been jailed for sheep stealing in Scotland.

THE Register agent wrote down—so it is now printed in the Book—that the founder of the Snifkin clan had been a prominent Scottish agriculturist.

As an honest man, Mr. Snifkin added that his Great Uncle Hamish, a distinguished smuggler, had been hanged after a violent disagreement with Customs officials on the St. Lawrence River. The Register chronicles that event somewhat more elegantly by stating that Hamish, a dedicated believer in Free Trade, had died as a martyr to his principles.

Grand Uncle McNutt Snifkin, who made a fortune selling liquor to the Blackfoot Indians and married a princess of that tribe at Fort Whoop-Up, is described in the Register as a rich pioneer merchant of Alberta and scholar of native life.

THERE could be no doubt, as the agent of the Register remarked, that Mr. Snifkin qualified for admission by his lineage, but what of Mr. Snifkin himself? What part did he play in Society?

Mr. Snifkin confessed that he didn't play much. His social life, he said, included a visit to the movies every week or two, a beer at the pub now and then and dinner with his wife every night in the kitchen nook.

Perhaps, the agent suggested, Mr. Snifkin sometimes threw a cocktail party for other Leaders of Society? No, Mr. Snifkin admitted, he never threw a cocktail party, or even a cocktail. He had attended a cocktail party some ten years ago—one of those ceremonial, public-relations affairs thrown by a great corporation which had wrongly taken Mr. Snifkin for a customer—but he didn't enjoy it, having spent three hours crushed between a large tycoon, a stout dowager and a plate of hors d'oeuvres.

THIS information depressed the agent until Mr. Snifkin added hopefully that last summer he had given a wiener roast on the beach of his summer camp at which the consumption of sausages and beer had been prodigious and expensive.

That, said the agent, was the sort of high-class information required. He wrote down in his notebook that Mr. Snifkin was a lavish host who preferred intimate, informal little parties attended by leading capitalists like himself.

To what clubs, the agent asked, did Mr. Snifkin belong? Mr. Snifkin said he was a member of the Central Saanich Gladiola Growers' Society, a private poker club meeting in Mr. Joe McGillicuddy's kitchen on Friday nights and a group of philatelists who hadn't met for some ten years. He also contributed to the Community Chest.

THE Register therefore describes Mr. Snifkin as a scientific botanist, a famous bridge player, a noted collector of stamps and a generous philanthropist.

What, asked the agent, were Mr. Snifkin's other hobbies? Mr. Snifkin said he was fond of Westerns on television, liked to cook a steak on an open-air barbecue and closely followed the National Hockey League games. The agent wrote down that Mr. Snifkin was an authority on frontier history, an amateur chef and gastronomer, an enthusiastic student of sports and a celebrated athlete.

Clearly Mr. Snifkin had qualified on this record, which occupies three inches of fine type in the Register. Without doubt, as the Register says, he is a Leader of Society, but you would hardly have realized it if you had seen him last weekend.

HE wasn't leading anything. He was following a wheelbarrow full of oak leaves to a large compost pile and he was clad in torn overalls and a layer of mud. At any rate, his neighbors did not recognize his new social stature, for they had not read the Book.

Neither has Mr. Snifkin. When the publishers of the Register invited him to send $25 for a copy of this priceless volume Mr. Snifkin suddenly lost his interest in Society. He decided to buy ten cases of beer instead.

His name is in the Book but he will never see it. His social career has been brilliant but, alas, brief. His name will be dropped from the next edition of the Register. To tell the truth, he didn't make good in Society.

As Our Readers See It

Not So 'Well Played'

You have a photo with the title, "Well played Sir"—OK I'll take the bait! To start with the bird in the illustration is not a duck!

It looks more like one of the grebe family to me!

In any case do you mean to tell me, that the Tom Mack spoon had a hook on it?

If so may I say I don't approve of fish hooks for warm-blooded birds or mammals: and in any case the whole set up might suggest a new 'sport' to the younger generation!

We have nearly got past the wild fur trapping era (of which I know all the practical and cruel angles) and we, especially the ladies, should not wish to resurrect anything like that again!

Humanity First

If survival of the human species, in fact, of all forms of animal life on earth, is any longer worthy of consideration then serious attention must be given to that double standard of morals and of ethics now so prevalent in society.

Take the case of our present minister of defence, a most lovable man, trusting and trusted, who goes about as a private citizen unarmed and with no thought of killing his friends, his family or his neighbors. But as minister of defence, a member of the cabinet, head of an important government department, he is forced to conform to world conditions, turn his love of others into hate, distrust and suspicion.

Whereas as a private citizen he is free to go about the world unarmed and trusting, he as minister of defence must study and provide arms, consisting of bombs, missiles, subs, death-dealing fallouts, and every type of killing machine his country can invent or afford to buy. And this condition is now world wide.

Whereas we had a single and individual standard or morals and of ethics we now have a double standard, and if this is sufficiently prolonged it will result in extermination of our civilization. Would it put one out of bounds to suggest that Canada return to that former code of ethics, set an example of trust, fellowship and co-operation in the world of nations, and give reality to the professed belief that humanity comes before nationalism.

Joy of Giving

I have been watching the newspapers to see what progress is being made towards the Community Chest objective, and to date the response has apparently not been all that was hoped for from the efforts of the canvassers. Mr. Harbord's remarks have been pointed, but necessary, to arouse some enthusiasm in this splendid work. Nothing is so satisfying as helping another, even if you are the only one aware of the gift.

Sometimes an example of generous giving is successful in reaching the heart of people.

With this in mind I am offering the following story:

The author is unknown, but the story is about two little girls who were the best of friends. One was fortunate to belong to a family which had abundance of this world's things, and the other one did not. They played together all summer long in their light clothes, but when winter came Mary noticed that her friend did not have an overcoat, whereas she had two. She told her mother and asked if she could give her friend one of her coats, and the mother agreed. Nothing was said about the matter for some days, then the mother thought she would like to know just how her daughter felt about sharing. The reply was "Oh Mummy, I felt so good inside."

"A SUPPORTER."

Battle of Sexes

How about that? A battle of the sexes, in church yet! Well, at least we're modern, aren't we?

Does Christ Church Cathedral, in Victoria expect "bouquets" or "brickbats" for its recent choir activities? I personally offer a ten-ton "brickbat", perhaps it would serve as a pedestal from which their women members might perform!

DO YOU REALIZE THAT IF YOU MARRY AN ITALIAN GIRL LIKE GINA, YOU'LL HAVE TO EAT SPAGHETTI FOR BREAKFAST?

Cobble Stone Grass Roots

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

BY any practical test, the biggest moments in the New York Governorship campaign have been gustatory. First Nelson Rockefeller publicly ate a cheese blintz. And then Averell Harriman hastily topped Rockefeller, by joyfully consuming both a cheese blintz and a plate of gefülltefish. Maybe it sounds cynical to take this competitive public ingestion of Jewish delicacies as the symbol of this crucial fight for the Governorship of the most populous state in the union. After all, the incumbent, Harriman, is a seasoned public servant and a great figure among the Democrats. And the challenger, Rockefeller, is literally the only really promising new contender that the Republican party has produced in this rather critical election year.

Both candidates have certainly made the conventional speeches about the issues. But the issues have thus far made much less impression than the candidates' indefatigable blintz-eating, pizza-munching and street-corner hand-shaking.

Homely Methods

It is really a fascinating (though mildly bewildering) public spectacle, to see these two enormously rich, exceptionally able, intensely public-spirited and deeply serious men, both mainly seeking election by the same homely methods. As Rockefeller is the novice blintz-eater, his performance is perhaps more interesting.

Imagine, then, the corner of 103rd Street and Lexington Avenue, on the verge of the dark slums of Harlem's Puerto Rican district. A crowd of perhaps a hundred people—half children—has been attracted by a car-mounted loud speaker.

The organizer of the occasion, the sheep-dog of the corner flock, is the chairman of Puerto Ricans for Rockefeller, Anthony Toro. Toro is of Venezuelan descent, and he is on hand, one suspects, because he formerly did a good deal of work in South America for the Rockefeller-financed International Basic Economy Corporation. But as an adoptive Puerto Rican, he seems to be most successful.

The candidate is a bit late, but the Rockefeller station wagon at length draws up to the curb, chauffeured by the co-ordinator for Negro Affairs of Citizens for Rockefeller, James Hudson. (In ordinary life, co-ordinator Hudson is superintendent of Winthrop Rockefeller's Winrock Farm, down in Arkansas; but he has retained his Harlem voting residence.)

Late Arrival

The candidate leaps from the station wagon, asking in apparent surprise, "Why, how have we here?" Bedlam promptly ensues.

The children scream. The adults shout. The bearers of banners wave their printed proclamations: "Rockefeller Termina la Brutalidad Policiaca" and "Fondacion Rockefeller acabo con la Biliaria en Puerto Rico."

The candidate puts on a Mexican hat, and picks up a child, also in Mexican hat, to the child's evident delight. A lady with exceptional lung power shrieks into the microphone that "Tammany Hall and Harriman done a big mistake by taking the Puerto Rican people for granted."

Then the candidate, showing that he takes no one for granted, makes a graceful little speech in Spanish, which touches off a perfect frenzy of cheering.

That ends what has to be called the organized part of the morning, for want of a better word. Rockefeller leaves the loudspeaker and plunges into the crowd, shaking hands right and left, and occasionally bestowing a Spanish style "abrazo"—an embrace of greeting.

The Mexican hat, now rising above and now being engulfed by the heaving multitude, seems like a frail barque in a high sea. One gasps when the hat seems to go under forever.

But suddenly there is an opening in the ranks, and there is Nelson Rockefeller, grinning with obviously unaffected pleasure, slightly rumpled and minus his hat, but crying out to Tony Toro's too protective subordinates, "Let me get at the people; they're the ones I want to see."

So the candidate sets off down Lexington Avenue, surrounded by a tight knot of children, adult admirers, professional organizers and photographers. There are enough children at the knot's centre, struggling to hold Rockefeller's hand, to make him seem a bit like the pled piper caught in a mob scene.

But with extraordinary agility, he continuously escapes from this perambulating encirclement to shake hands with street-corner gossips, grocery-store patrons and owners, barbers and customers for haircuts, and anyone else who may happen to be on Lexington Avenue on this bright autumn morning.

Local Color

At one point, he stops to patronize one of the countless shoeshine boys who swarm on these Lexington Avenue sidewalks. Getting a shoeshine is probably the next best thing to eating a yam or some other Puerto Rican delicacy, which is impossible because the Puerto Rican restaurants are not open yet.

At any rate, the gesture is greeted with immense enthusiasm, and another period of bedlam results. There is bedlam again for a short set speech at the corner of 111th Street. There is super bedlam in the market under the railroad tracks on Park Avenue.

And so it goes, for a full three exhausting hours, which altogether fail to exhaust Rockefeller, however. The last hand at Lexington Avenue and 125th Street, is shaken with the same enthusiasm as the first.

It is all very unlike the Lincoln-Douglas debates or Gladstone's Midlothian campaign. It is very much like the same performance, when put on by Averell Harriman. And odd as it may seem, the spectacle has considerable warmth and charm.

The Bureau Desk

SOMETIMES, I wish that a woman of Ruth Draper's kind would do a sketch of a grandmother sorting out old letters and photographs.

There'd be no scenery, of course, but as the monologue progressed, you'd see it all—the bureau desk with all its pigeonholes, the husband coming in to ask her what she's doing. Through what she says, you'd glimpse their life together and find out a little about their children.

This sort of thing perhaps: "Just tidying up my desk, dear," Julia said when Robert came to look for her. "I want to get these old letters and photos straightened out before the Christmas deluge."

"What, dear? I know you don't know why I keep them. I don't quite know myself. Except that I haven't the heart to throw them away. Besides, one day, the children and grandchildren might be interested in them."

"Look, there's that sweet one of Rachel as a baby. I remember that little smocked dress so well. It was handed down to Dora, and after her to some other's baby. I remember having the picture taken so I could send it overseas to you. Late 1915 that would be, I suppose."

"That one of me? That was early in 1914. Not long after we were married. Don't you remember that hat, and the row we had? You said I'd paid much too much for it. It was our first real quarrel. Don't you remember it at all? I went out into the garden and cried with rage because I wasn't going to let you see that you'd hurt me. Don't you remember the making up afterwards? Really, men are peculiar. I'm 70, and I still don't understand them!"

"Here's that one of you in your uniform. Isn't it queer? Like looking at a stranger."

Ruth

One forgets so. I used to keep it on the table by my bed. I took it to hospital when Rachel was born. So you wouldn't be so far away."

"This one's years later. Really, I should put all these in order sometime. Me and the children in the days when we lived on Chiswick Street. About 1926, I suppose it was. Yes, the date's on the back. What hideous fashions. Look at that skirt. And the hat. I don't know how we could."

"Here's a school group with Bob in the middle of the back row. You remember when he shot up so suddenly, and never seemed to have control of his arms and legs? That was a horrid spell with the children being so argumentative and critical. But they grew up alright."

"That? That's a picnic at the lake. "That young man in the group by the front steps? Let me see. Really, I think I must get my glasses changed again sometime. I can't remember his name, though it's on the tip of my tongue. Randall, Crandall, Rundle. That was it. He was the strange specimen, one of the strange specimens. Dora was so keen on for awhile. Heavens, I was glad when that died a natural death."

"You know, looking back at it, Dora did have the most terrible taste in men. No sense at all. You've always said that Harold was dull, but he's been just right for Dora. Steadied her."

Here's Rachel on her honeymoon. Poor Rachel. She did have her share of tragedy. World War Two. I couldn't face a third. Radioactive rain. The gentle rain from Heaven. It's monstrous. Don't let's even think of it."

These dear? These are the letters you wrote me when we were engaged. Of course I kept them. Didn't you know? Women always do. They read them every now and then. It's wonderful what they can do for you when morale is low!"

YOUR HEALTH

Unwise Worship

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Today, many of us physicians and many of you laymen and women have come to worship and trust as a sort of fetish the so-called complete overhauling in a big clinic or university centre. Often its use, and especially its repeated use in certain cases, distill me greatly, as when a poor little secretary, who is going slowly insane, is put through one "thorough examination" after another, made by men who, if they had only looked at her carefully and talked to her for half an hour, could have seen what was wrong, and could have been sure of it. The "overhauls" showed nothing, because we have no test that will show that a person is slipping into a nervous breakdown.

Today, we doctors tend so to concentrate our attention on laboratory reports and x-ray films that often we do not take much of a history (such as would quickly have given us the correct diagnosis), and often we do not look at the patient long enough to see signs of a stroke, or Parkinson's disease, or hysteria. Often, we do not reason much about what we have found; we just accept the findings reported to us—such as gallstones or a gastric ulcer. On receiving these reports, we think we have made the diagnosis, when often we haven't at all. We don't know that the woman's real trouble is that she is frantic because her husband is drinking himself out of his job.

I used to keep telling my graduate students of an unhappy, stout woman of 45, who wept when, after a thorough examination, I said I did not know how to cure her. As she wept, she accused me, as such persons often do, of not having examined her thoroughly enough. She said, "Once a quack gave me a more complete and spectacular examination than you gave me. He had rooms full of electrical gadgets, which he used on me."

As usual, the woman's complaint was that, "You have not found anything wrong with me," but, actually, this was not my trouble. In the first place, she was much too stout, but she would not follow a diet. She had some increase in her blood pressure but her aches and pains and miseries all over her body could not be blamed on that. She had a somewhat high basal metabolic rate, but since, at home, two operations on her thyroid gland had not changed her, my friends the thyroid experts at Mayo's did not believe any of her troubles had been due to her little goitre.

She had a soft stone floating around in a normally-functioning gall-bladder but since she had never had a colic, my friends the surgeons agreed with me it would be useless to operate. She had two little stones in one kidney, but since these were firmly stuck in the kidney substance, and were not producing any symptoms, we had no desire to remove them surgically.

She had a hundred diverticula or little pouches on her colon, but these, like her grey hairs, were almost normal for her age; they were not producing symptoms and they did not require treatment. She had what is called a chronic urethritis of mild degree, to account perhaps for some of her frequency of urination, but since she had experience had taught them that the more this is treated, the worse a nervous woman is likely to get, the urologists did not care to start treating her. The woman had some big varicose veins on one leg, but since they were not producing symptoms, no one wanted to operate on them.

Well, then, what was wrong with the woman? Her husband had confessed to me that, after years of listening to her constant complaints, and never getting any affection out of her, he had become fed up; he had provided well for her support, and had moved to his club. With this, the wife was several times more miserable than she had been before. As I told her, I did not know of any medicine or operation that would cure unhappiness due to a messed-up life.

Sometimes I startle a youngish woman into wanting to stop and reform and build a new life by saying, "By your undisciplined behavior you have made an awful mess of these first 30 years. According to the insurance statistics, you have 45 more years to live. Do you want to make as bad a mess of them as you have made of the 30?" And the girl says, "Oh, no, no; don't say that; I can't bear to think of another 45 years of this sort of life." "All right then," I say, "why not summon all the powers that you have within you; start learning self-control; quit fussing and stewing and blowing your top; give your husband and children affection and peace, and see how rich and happy and rewarding and healthy your life can become."

Jobless Payments Show Reduction For September

Almost $2,500,000 was paid out in unemployment insurance benefits in the Pacific region during September, regional director Horace Keetch said Tuesday in Vancouver.

The total of $2,481,574 was some $335,000 less than that for August.

Payments in Island centres were: Victoria, $206,477; Courtenay, $774,322; Duncan, $68,636; Nanaimo, $93

'Just Friends' Prince Claims

ROME (AP)—Indian Prince Shiv today denied there was anything between him and Jane Buckingham, the London model killed in a plane crash while on her way to win him away from actress Eva Bartok.

"She must have been crazy," said the handsome 27-year-old son of the Maharajah of Palitana.

"I knew Miss Buckingham. I went out with her a couple of times. But there was nothing between us. I really didn't know her very well."

Miss Bartok's press agent announced in London Monday that she and Shiv were unofficially engaged and that he was on his way to Naples to get his father's permission for the marriage.

The prince did not learn of the crash until a reporter telephoned him this morning. He said he was shocked to learn of her death, but said "We were just friends."

U.K. Actor-Producer Drama Festival Judge

OTTAWA (CP)—Richard Ainley, British actor-producer, will adjudicate the Dominion Drama Festival's regional plays this winter.

Mrs. Donald W. McGibbon of Toronto, DDF president, made the announcement at a press conference here.

Mr. Ainley, son of Henry Ainley, one of the "greats" of the British theatre, will adjudicate 14 regional festivals from Newfoundland to British Columbia between early January and mid-April.

Completely bilingual, he has been teaching and adjudicating in England since the Second World War. He has acted in the British and American theatre.

Mrs. McGibbon said a system of zoning to bring together several festival regions and to use Canadian or U.S. adjudicators in the zones now is being studied by a festival committee.

Dates and locations for this year's regional festivals include: Toronto, Jan. 5-10; Vancouver, Jan. 14-17; Edmonton, Jan. 19-22; North Battleford, Sask., Jan. 24-27; Winnipeg, Jan. 29-31.

HOW TO BEAT YOUR TENSIONS:

Binge Without a Bottle

MONTREAL (CP)—Getting good and drunk is a good idea.

New RAF Jet Fighter
Christened 'Lightning'
FARNBOROUGH, Eng. (Reuters)—The first fully super-sonic all-weather fighter for the RAF—and probably its last conventional fighter—was officially named the Lightning here today. Experts believe its top speed may be about 1,500 miles per hour, says a Montreal psychiatrist. Only don't drink. Dr. E. H. Lehmann said at a meeting of the Montreal Electrical Club that emotional tension causes more than 50 per cent of all physical ailments reported to doctors. "This tension results in physiological stress which gradually builds up into psychosomatic illness," he said. Indicriminate use of tranquilizers was not advisable. "... There is yet no innocuous tranquilizer on the market," Dr. Lehmann said. "The best solution is to take stock of our values and then to get into the same state of mind as is artificially produced by a couple of cocktails—but without the use of alcohol."

Britain's first cigarette factory was set up in 1856.

A real and varied drama of sweeping proportions, beautifully acted and brilliantly framed. A striking example of how a film in this category can be superior to a novel. For indeed, this film is wonderful entertainment, and while it retains all the dramatic qualities of the literary work, it assures patrons of completely unobjectionable entertainment. Ask those who have seen it for confirmation. In Cinemascope and color. The photography is superb and the direction brilliant.

THEY'VE JOINED THE "Regulars"

In spite of all the noise, their backyard battles never do much damage... though not from any lack of determination. And small though they may be, these pint-sized privates are smart enough to know what to do with at least part of their weekly allowances, because they have all become "regulars" at "My Bank".

Each Friday afternoon after school, this small-fry army forms up at the special School-Children's Wicket to deposit its gains. And because each member is commander-in-chief when it comes to planning his personal savings campaign, they are all getting first-class training and discipline that will help them to deal with life's more serious battles later on.

Why not give your youngsters the priceless gifts of thrift and self-reliance by starting them off with a B of M savings account for each of them this week?

Special School-Children's Wicket
Open every Friday afternoon from 4.30 to 6.

The new regime is putting a surprisingly high priority on apartment buildings for industrial workers. Near Hankow a hundred apartment buildings were put up before they started building the new steel mills.

"Go ahead, knock on any door you like," the secretary told me when I asked to visit homes of workers. The door I knocked on opened into a large, clean one-room apartment for a family of seven. A bed—big but a bit crowded for seven—stood in one corner. Their clothes hung in wardrobes. They had an alarm clock and a thermos bottle for hot water, two important symbols of an improved standard of living.

Three families shared a hole-in-the-floor toilet and a stone tub laundry. They share the same kitchen and cook over a mud mortar stove, or over a small jar filled with charcoal. Their rent bill is $1.25 a month.

In another worker's apartment in Shenyang, the family of eight has a big room with two beds and a tiny separate kitchen equipped with gas and a stone sink and running water. For monthly rent of $4 they also get a private latrine.

Diploma for Mom

A diploma on the wall testified that mother has learned to read, and is now teaching others. Her husband operates a lathe, gets a very high salary of $48 a month. Besides the diploma was a red paper entitled Family Program and Budget, listing outgo as $14 a month for grain; $10 for vegetables; $4 for water, gas, electricity and rent; $2.80 for transportation. There were some miscellaneous expenses and a little left over for savings. Also, the housewife agrees to keep rooms clean, observe sanitation rules and teach them to the family, educate her children and be a good mother.

The old homes in the cities and in the country are not nearly so nice, have no running water, or inside plumbing. The residents carry water from open wells or from ponds where they do the family washing. The New China does insist that all water be boiled before drinking and the typhoid rate is sharply down.

Textile workers in Peiping invited me to visit their bachelor girls' apartment. Six giggling girls in pigtails, trousers, and wearing no makeup, shared the room with double-decked beds. Rent, 15 cents a month each. The girls had joined the militia and were learning to fire rifles. One of them showed me a poem she'd written about Chinese indignation over American "imperialism" called "Angry Fire."

Wonderful Food

The Chinese food was wonderful. And I became quite adept at reaching out with my chopsticks to snare a bit of bamboo shoot, goose gizzard or sweet-sour pork as we all ate out of the same dishes. Such delicacies as bird's nest soup and sharks' fins are available for a dollar a plate, but must be ordered in advance. And they apologized that snakes, a Cantonese delicacy, are not available until winter "when their fat helps keep you warm."

Suicide No. 182

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A San Francisco housewife, mother of two children, Wednesday became the 182nd person known to have leaped to death from the Golden Gate Bridge. Mrs. Barbara May Wase-Miller, 33, drove her car to the middle of the bridge, parked it and disappeared over a railing.

I shopped the stores in every town and was amazed at the quantity and variety of goods available and the fact people were buying them. Here are some price tags—judge these against the wage-earner's average monthly salary of $25 a month.

Socks, 20 cents; towels, 40 cents; wool sweater, $9.20; ham, 80 cents a pound; chicken, 44 cents a pound; rubber boots, $5.80; Chinese cloth shoes, $7.40; rice, 5 cents a pound; umbrella, 50 cents; ladies' cotton jacket, $5.45; leather jacket, $40; blue cotton cloth, 16 cents a yard; cotton goods, 50 cents a yard; basketball, $3.60.

Illiteracy Going

The Chinese assert they are stamping out illiteracy, and many counties claim they already have. Most communes and factories hold adult classes in reading and writing. Education is compulsory for seven years; middle school is optional; college entrance is by examination only.

The schools of China today from kindergarten to college are glorified workshops. This follows the general Communist line greatly intensified in recent months, that "education must be combined with productive labor."

So schools adopt mountains and 10 to 12-year-olds take a month's trip to plant trees.

The College of Engineering near Hankow in five years of existence has an enrolment of 7,500. "We don't give degrees," the secretary told me, indicating degrees were out of step with socialism. In classroom factories the students manufactured electric motors and punch presses.

"In this way students develop into cultured laborers with socialist consciousness," I was told.

by a professor of the new line. "Besides," he added, "the work-while-you-study program creates wealth for socialism."

On the Farm

Every Chinese going to school today must study agriculture on the theory that "all must work on the farm some time."

Educators have tackled the monumental task of putting Chinese picture writing into the Roman alphabet. It takes a gigantic typewriter to type Chinese, and then only in a limited 3,000-word vocabulary. So all papers and records are hand written.

Another problem is the score of spoken dialects. My interpreter had to have an interpreter in Canton.

Every factory has a "Worker's Palace of Culture" where they show movies, have rooms for discussion groups on new factory methods or Marxism, for playing pingpong or chess.

The Chinese Opera is still drawing sell-out crowds in Peiping where I saw the most famous Chinese actor of the past 40 years: Mei Lan Fang. He's in his sixties, always takes a woman's part, sings and talks in high falsetto to accompaniment of the discordant two-stringed violin and ear-splitting cymbals.

Churches

One Sunday morning in Nanking I attended the Church of Christ, a Buddhist temple and a Catholic church with a "Friends of World Peace" sign.

over the door. "So those who are religiously inclined have churches to go to. ("Most of us have discarded the old superstitions," a Communist official told me.)

There are about 5,000,000 Catholics in China, but foreign priests have been deported and many Chinese priests have joined the "Patriotic Priests" movement, which seems headed toward a state church.

Protestant faiths have been consolidated, with the logic "If you have the same God, why not the same church?"

A member of the Nanking Union Theological Seminary told me: "Compared with the spirit of competition and even hostility that existed between some of the church bodies in the past, we see this consolidation as nothing short of an act of God himself."

McPHILLIPS CHIDES VICTORIA

Strike Fuss 'Bad Publicity'

Telegrams and calls for federal assistance during the steamship service strike here last summer brought continent-wide bad publicity for Victoria, city member of Parliament, A. DeB. McPhillips, said Wednesday.

"There was altogether too much notoriety given this strike by people who should have known better," he told Victoria Progressive Conservative Constituency Association.

Mr. McPhillips said at the time, only the CPR was struck and there were several other means of getting off and on the island.

But the telegrams and calls for help to Ottawa showed, "a certain amount of hysteria, which did not do Vancouver Island and in particular, Victoria, any good."

It resulted in a great many queries from United States residents wondering whether they could travel here, the speaker said.

It was not an emergency situation, "... the federal government could not interfere," he added.

About 80 were present for the meeting at the Business and Professional Women's Club-rooms.

THE 59 METEOR • 59'S NEWEST IS THE 59 METEOR

59's NEWEST IS THE 59 METEOR

All-new Meteor is your kind of car. Fresh, trim of line, exclusively Canadian. Completely redesigned and distinctively restyled Meteor is a step up—a car ahead in its field in everything but price.

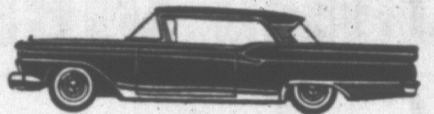

You'll drive Meteor at a saving. Lower-priced regular gas is the recommended fuel — and you'll use less of it! New Econ-O-Fuel 6 and V-8 engines are designed to give extra performance and more economy, too.

And, with Meteor's new full-flow oil filter, you'll only need to change oil every four thousand miles.

Another Meteor saving: a new aluminized muffler that lasts twice as long.

But, most important, the 59 Meteor is an upward step in quality, in comfort, in safety and convenience.

Choose from high performance Multi-Drive Merc-O-Matic or all-new lower priced Econ-O-Matic—the newest, simplest, most economical automatic transmission yet designed. Improved Finger-Touch ball-race steering lets you steer easier, makes parking a pleasure.

A 59 Meteor is an all-new experience in driving. There's nearly six inches more legroom, 450 sq. inches more visibility. And, because blended hot and cold air is thermostatically controlled, Meteor's new heater just can't overheat! Still there's more! 59's newest interiors have extra luxuries like individually night-lit controls and a more convenient foot-operated parking brake.

And 59's newest car is 59's safest! Meteor's standard safety features include a deep-dish steering wheel, safety door locks, and a wide-contour frame. This is the only kind of frame that surrounds passengers with boxgirders of steel for extra safety.

There's more that's new, more that's desirable in Canada's exclusive fine car in the low-price field.

Discover it all for yourself. See and drive 59's newest, the 59 Meteor, soon. Only then will you know how fine a low-priced car can be. Make distinctive Meteor your upward step for 1959.

Certain features illustrated or mentioned are standard on some models, optional at extra cost on others.

Right Time Now For SCUBA Game

One of Victoria's newest water sports, growing by leaps and bounds like all the others, is free diving.

Frank White, a former president of the Victoria Skin Divers' Club who now operates a shop selling diving gear, estimates there are 200 active divers in the Victoria area, and more coming along every week.

"We have divers of every age from 13 to 60," he said. "Anyone that can swim can dive."

There are degrees, of course. Some people have been diving for six months and now can reach a depth of 20 feet.

"Others are down to 50 feet in their first five minutes," he said.

Mr. White assured me this is not an odd time of year to be talking about free diving, since it is even better in the winter than in the summer. "The water is clearer and visibility is better," he said.

Temperature means nothing any more. Suits made of a form of synthetic rubber keep out cold for hours and hours, even though water trickles in sufficiently for them to be called "wet" suits, as contrasted with the older type of rubber suit that is watertight, or "dry."

The difference is that the wet suit insulates much more effectively than the other, and permits the wearer to be just as comfortable winter or summer. (Actually there is little difference in the water temperature here between June and January.)

There is no finer place to dive than off Victoria's breakwater, he said, because of the mass of colorful and varied sea life to be seen. Dozens of fish and marine growths common here are never seen close inshore or from the surface.

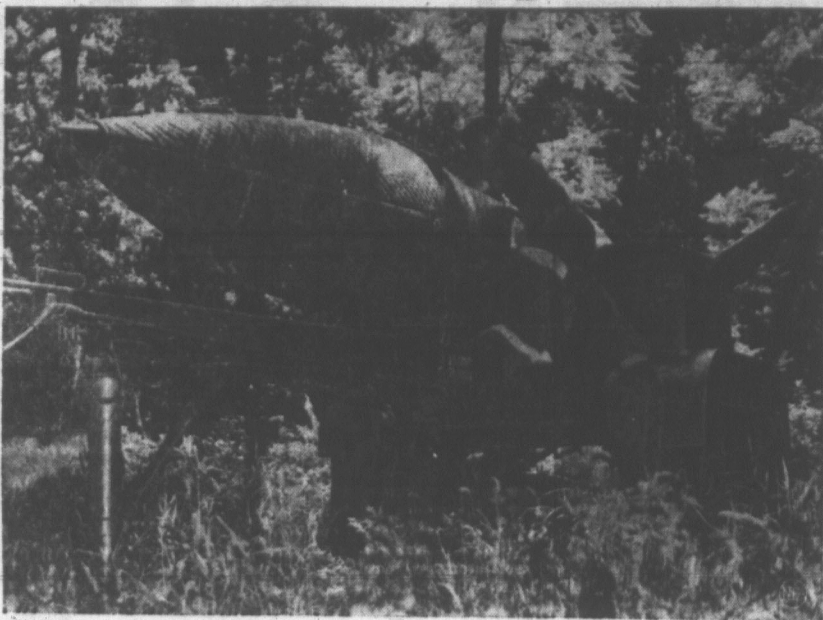

BORED WITH KILLING

The first thing the average diver wants to do is kill fish, Mr. White said, but usually he tires of hunting and prefers to watch fish alive in their natural state. Some have taken to underwater photography, and while expensive watertight cameras are available, people clever with their hands have worked out their own systems for taking cameras into the water.

The ultimate in diving equipment is the Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus (the initials give it the nickname of SCUBA diving), which includes a tank containing air compressed to 2,250 pounds per square inch, and a demand regulator that supplies air to the swimmer just as he needs it and at exactly the right pressure.

However, the beginner needs only inexpensive equipment to start and enjoy diving, Mr. White said.

"We encourage people to start with fins, a mask, and snorkel, and find out if they are keen enough to go on. The next step is a suit that will enable them to enjoy diving all year without discomfort."

HUNTERS 'SKINNED' AS MOOSE HIJACKED

COBBLE HILL—A party of local hunters was "skinned" out of a moose on a recent hunting trip to northern B.C.

The hunters, who prefer to remain unidentified, had shot and bled the moose, then found they had left their tags at camp.

They went back for them, and on returning to the moose found two strange "sportsmen" and a local guide busily skinning their moose.

Their protests were vigorous, but the hijackers said: "You didn't have it tagged, so it's ours now."

When a bloodstained skinning knife was waved in their astonished faces discretion won out over valor, and they retreated.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Tuesday: P. R. O'Connor, 634 Mount View, $10 for failing to stop at a red light.

Sadhu Singh, 2814 Nanaimo, $10 for driving unaccompanied by an adult licence holder while a learner.

Roland Tait, 131 Kingston, $20 for speeding over 30.

In Colwood RCMP court Wednesday:

Richard Werbiski, Millardville, $20 and $3 costs for speeding over 15.

James R. A. Rugg, Nanaimo, $35 and $3 costs for careless driving.

Burglary Suspects Reject Jury Trial

Three men charged with breaking and entering Spencer's Stores Ltd. at 1420 Douglas Street and stealing $2,500 in cash and cheques asked in Criminal Assize Court Wednesday to be tried by a judge without a jury.

Their request was granted and the jury was dismissed before the case opened.

Lawyers said they knew of only one other case in B.C. in recent years where a similar request had been made by accused.

The accused were Thomas A. W. McNaughton of 903 Collinson, Victoria, and David William Hargraves and Kenneth Leonard Wallden of Vancouver.

Lawrence E. Hill, counsel for Wallden, said he had originally asked for trial by judge while the other two had asked for trial by judge and jury.

Mr. Justice H. W. MacInnes said the jury would be excused from duty until Monday, Nov. 3, at 11 a.m., as the Assize Court will not be sitting next week, due to postponement of the murder trial of Mrs. Alice Kerr of North Pender Island.

The three men charged pleaded not guilty.

ENTRY BY ROOF

Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie said Spencer's store was broken into during the weekend of June 14 last, the safe pried open and money and cheques taken. Entry was effected through the roof.

Wallden, counsel said, was registered in the Douglas Hotel next to the store.

Wallden and Hargraves were arrested by police at Patricia Bay Airport and charged with having obtained goods illegally. McNaughton was arrested at his house at 903 Collinson. All three had large sums of money.

Mr. McKenzie said Wallden was found in possession of a torn $10 bill and a corner of the same bill was found inside the safe at Spencer's store.

"They matched," he said.

Counsel added that tools were found at McNaughton's home, and police experts would show that these same tools were responsible for marks found in the store.

Forty-eight exhibits entered at the preliminary police court hearing would be referred to during the trial.

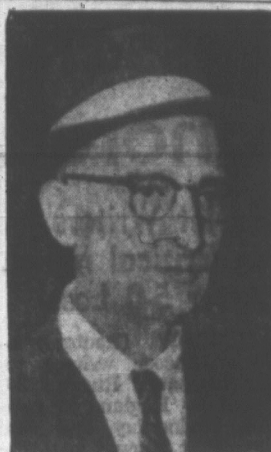

CAR OBSERVED

Detective William Andrews, of Victoria city police, told how he kept observation on a Plymouth sedan bearing British Columbia licence plates which was parked on the north side of Pandora Avenue, between Douglas and Broad Street, on Saturday, June 14.

Later the same car was parked outside Eaton's store on Douglas.

Shortly after 5 a.m., on Sunday, June 15, he drove to Pat Bay Airport with two RCMP officers and found Wallden and Hargraves sitting on a chesterfield in the airport lounge. They were searched and subsequently arrested.

The hearing continues today.

Man Found Guilty In City Lumber Fraud

Robert Stadler of Victoria was found guilty by a 12-man jury in Criminal Assize Court Wednesday afternoon on two charges of false pretences.

He was remanded for sentence to Friday by Mr. Justice H. W. MacInnes.

Stadler was convicted of obtaining lumber from the Moore Whittington Co., Victoria, valued at $875 on May 26 last.

The Crown's case was that, after ordering the lumber, Stadler said he had a charge account with the company, signed a false name and gave a fictitious address.

Crown witnesses identified Stadler as the man who took the lumber away.

The defence, conducted by J. A. Byers, was that it was a case of mistaken identity. He said Stadler was working elsewhere for the Square Deal Construction Co. in Victoria at the time the offence was committed.

Crown prosecutor was Lloyd McKenzie assisted by F. T. Donegani.

Soccer Lesson Ignored

Soviet Writers In Critical Mood After 5-0 Loss

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Soccer writers today bemoaned Russia's 5-0 defeat by England in London Wednesday and said the result showed that the lesson of the World Cup had not been learned.

Under the headline, "England's Revenge," the trade union newspaper, Trud, said the first half was even enough but when England was three up "the Soviet players to all intents and purposes ceased resistance."

The newspaper singled out Metreveli as the best Soviet player but said all his efforts came to nothing because "his partners played very passively." It said the Soviet team had only two opportunities of scoring throughout the match but the English goalkeeper was on the spot each time.

BRASS CRITICIZED

The Communist Youth League newspaper, Komsomol-Pravda, criticized the state football authorities for not taking steps to raise the level of Soviet play after the world championships in Sweden last spring.

It said the Soviet Union had never suffered such a big defeat, and added: "It seems we must once more turn to a discussion about the defeat in the London game."

The newspaper Soviet Sport took a similar line and criticized preparations for the match.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda and the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia carried brief reports of the match without comment.

Most of the other newspapers published the result in one paragraph.

Unrestricted Major League Player Draft?

NEW YORK (AP)—An unrestricted draft of minor league ball players that would help curtail huge bonus payments to untied youngsters by major league clubs was recommended Wednesday by a nine-man committee.

Frank Lane of Cleveland, chairman of the committee appointed last month by baseball commissioner Ford Frick, said, "We propose that there should be an unrestricted selection of all players assigned to pro ball contracts following enactment of this legislation."

The plan will be submitted to the major leagues at their December meeting in Washington, D.C.

Under the plan, each major league team would be permitted to draft as many players as desired from the minors regardless of experience. The current rule allows only the selection of any number of players who have four years' experience. The draft price was raised from $10,000 to $25,000 last year.

Crafty Cal Paces Reds Over Amerks

By Canadian Press
Crafty Cal Gardner, 14-year veteran of professional hockey, drilled home three goals to lead Providence Reds to a 5-1 home victory over Rochester Americans Wednesday night.

In a second American Hockey League game, in Hershey, the Bears shut out Cleveland Barons 5-0 with an airtight defence and steady attack.

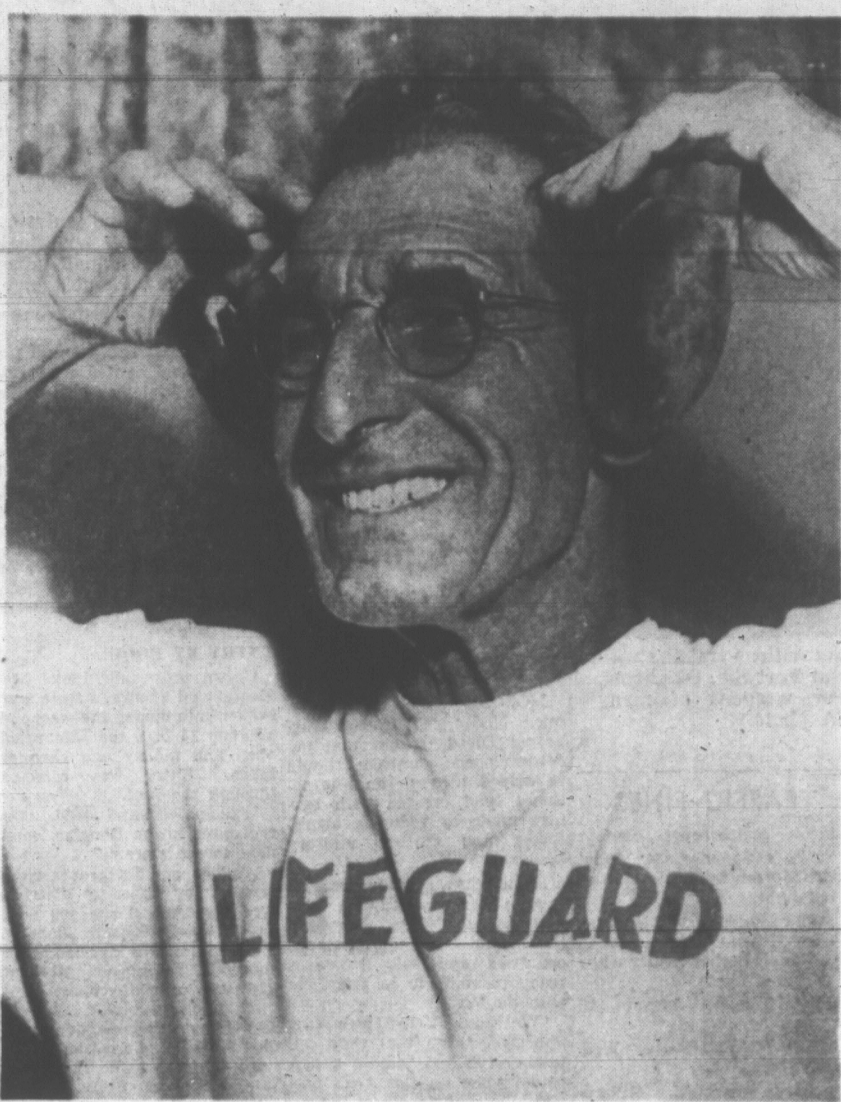

Gardner scored twice in the first period and once in the second. Ken Yackel and Larry Leach got the other Providence goals while Murray Balfour tallied for Amerks.

At Hershey, Jack McIntyre scored two and singles were added by Les Duff, Mike Nykoluk and Larry Zeidel.

LONG WINTER AHEAD

By Canadian Press
Belleville McFarlands probably will return home from the world amateur hockey championships in Czechoslovakia next spring on rubber legs and fed up to the gills with the game. They've got a tough, long winter ahead of them.

The Allen Cup champions will have played about 90 games in 10 countries before they tackle the Russians, Czechoslovakians and other top-flight hockey-playing European countries in the March 5-15 tournament at Prague. Fifty of these will be crammed into 98 days — Oct. 24

'Sure, I Need 'Em'

Using past experience as a criterion, lifeguard Fred Ellison tests much-needed "equipment" as he prepares for annual senior high school swimming gala Friday at Crystal Garden.

The veteran lifeguard's actions, all in fun, don't exaggerate the whoop-de-do and noise that accompanies students' meets in glass-enclosed pool. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

When Students Cheer, Garden Glass Shakes!

By GARRIE McNAUGHTON

Fred Ellison has been around long enough to know what constitutes a swimming lifeguard's equipment—ear-muffs!

The veteran member of the Crystal Garden staff is threatening to clamp on a pair, preferably sound-proof, when the 29th annual senior high school swimming gala is run off Friday evening.

The normal din in the glass-enclosed pool will seem like a whisper when representatives of eight schools invade the famous swim centre in their big bid for aqua glory.

Over the years, Ellison has been on hand at the Crystal to listen to the din from each of 28 previous galas. Fred, in fact, is now in his 30th year as a lifeguard at the big pool.

ALIVE IN '55
Remembering past swim galas, Ellison thought the junior high schools' meet of 1955 was the "most enthusiastic" he had ever witnessed (or heard).

"Why, they queued up right around the block, trying to get in," he said. "There's a lot of glass in this place, and when they cheered, I'll bet every pane shook!"

"I'm taking no chances on this one," Fred smiled as he adjusted his ear muffs, "but we really don't mind noise. It's the manager's music you know."

This good-natured attitude held by the members of the Crystal staff accounts, in part, for the smooth operation and success of galas held there for the past 30 years.

VASC IN CHARGE
Although the Crystal staff has helped a great deal, the credit for the organization of these competitions must go to the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club and its president, Jim McCague. Donating their time, officials have been on the job since 1925, shortly after the Crystal opened.

With eight schools entering teams, this year's water war should be worth watching. Led by Sally Holland and Canadian champ Bob Wheaton, Oak Bay High tops the entry list with a crew of 36 to do battle.

Second on the list is Victoria High with a squad of 24 entries led by Doug Dickey, Bruce Warburton and Bob Smirl.

Other schools on the list are Belmont, with 18 entries; the University School, mustering 17 boys; Mount Douglas, with 16; Victoria College, sponsoring a squad of 14; Royal Oak High, with eight contestants, and a late entry, Esquimalt, with a crew of five.

The starting gun for this year's gala goes off Friday at 7:30 o'clock.

P.S.—And don't forget—the ear muffs!

Canada Third In Horse Show

HARRISBURG (AP)—West Germany Wednesday night won the Prix de Nations Cup, prestige trophy of the 13th Pennsylvania National Horse Show. The Olympic champions won both events on the day's program making up the cup competition to move far out in front for the team trophy in the international jumping competition.

The team standings with five events remaining, reads: West Germany 67 points, Mexico 33, Canada 30, the United States 29 and Cuba 6.

Gonzales Tripped
VIENNA (AP)—Pancho Segura and Ken Rosewall came through with victories in their pro tennis matches Wednesday. Segura defeated Tony Trabert 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, and Rosewall downed Pancho Gonzales 6-2, 9-11, 6-3.

In the doubles, Trabert and Rosewall beat Segura and Gonzales 6-3, 6-1.

FOR BELLEVILLE CLUB

Jan. 30—in their Eastern Ontario senior league alone.

Their first league game is scheduled for Friday night, coming on top of exhibitions around Ontario and the Eastern United States.

On Feb. 1, they are scheduled to leave Toronto by air for the overseas trip. Seventeen games are scheduled in Europe—Scotland, England, Sweden, Germany, Italy, Norway, Switzerland and Finland—before the tournament proper starts.

Too much hockey? The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association doesn't seem to think so.

"They'll be able to recuperate from their league games while in Europe," says CAHA secretary-manager George Dudley of Midland, Ont.

"Those European games aren't too strenuous. The McFarlands aren't taking on too much."

One thing appears fairly certain: The team sponsors aren't likely to drop a bundle on the excursion.

The team's share of receipts from the games in Europe should pay all expenses from the time the Belleville players get off the plane at Prestwick, Scotland, Feb. 2, until the world tournament ends nearly 2½ months later.

RUGBY LOOP SCHEDULE REVISED

A revision in the Victoria Rugby Union schedule has moved games slated for Nov. 8 into action Saturday at various Victoria Parks.

Tied with JBAA for the league lead, Oak Bay Whites will meet HMCS Venture cadets at HMCS Naden, while the Bays play PPCLI at MacDonald Park. Third game of the day will feature Oak Bay Reds and Royal Roads at Windsor Park.

All games start at 2:30 p.m.

Shawnigan Lake Boys Carry Log Home Again

The Lonsdale Log, emblematic of athletic contests between Victoria High and Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, rolled back up Island Wednesday afternoon after two Shawnigan English rugby teams took their toll of Vic High fifteen.

Shawnigan's seniors won 22-8 at Vic High while the "B" team scored a 13-3 win at Carnarvon Park.

Leading the senior winners was Ian Appleton with four tries followed by Malcolm Burke with two and Peter Armstrong with a single. Four of the tries were converted.

Vic High scores went to Bruce Chambers and Dave Reese with tries and Bill Gower with a convert.

Victoria High's lone Carnarvon Park try was scored by Barry Bowman while Shawnigan Lake "B" romped to their win on two tries by Rod Pelling, one by Derek Arndt and a conversion by Bob McRae.

The Lonsdale Log had been won a week ago by Vic High with an inter-school cross-country victory.

High Winds Halt Sahara's Hydros

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The start of the third annual Sahara Cup hydroplane races—which decides the United States hydroplane championship—was postponed Wednesday when wind blew the markers out of place on Lake Mead.

At least four heats will have to be run today before the 30-mile final event.

Twelve boats qualified for the heats. A 13th, Fascination owned by Seattle's Bob Gilliam, was still to qualify because she scored no points in previous competition.

NEW WESTMINSTER—If there are any surprises in this early end of the Western Hockey League season, apart from the fact that some of the circuit's former players are listed with Canada's socially prominent, they would be Victoria Cougars.

The Cougars continue to surprise all but coach Pat Egan with their success. But even Egan admitted today that he is "pleasantly surprised" to see his charges in a position to challenge for first place quite so soon.

"I felt that, with the proper amount of breaks, there was no reason why we couldn't be running as high as second. I hadn't given first very much of a thought, but it looks as if I'll have to start thinking about it now," he said.

"If we can move into the top spot, it would certainly be a big morale-booster."

BIG GAME SATURDAY

Cougars, who strengthened their hold on second place in the Coast Division with a 5-5 tie against New Westminster Royals Wednesday night, get their chance to take over first place Saturday night.

That's when Seattle Totems, running one point ahead of Cougars at the moment, step into Memorial Arena for their first visit of the year.

Wednesday's game at New Westminster marked the third straight overtime game on home ice for the Royals, who lost the previous two to Calgary and Seattle.

In the see-saw game, Royals went ahead 2-1 in the first period, but only preserved their slim margin in the second period with two goals in the last 33 seconds of the period by Hugh Barlow.

Barlow's two goals made it 4-3 at the end of the second session.

OVERTIME SCORELESS

In the third, Cougars outscored Royals 2-1 to force the overtime session. Neither team could score.

Rookie Gene Ubrico, who has become popular with hometown fans, counted three assists for the Royals. Barlow scored two goals and an assist while Max McNab had one goal and one assist.

Other Royal scorers were Gord Fashway and Arlo Goodwin.

For Victoria, Gord Haworth and Al Nicholson each counted one goal and two assists. Victoria's other goals came from Doug Macauley, Doug Anderson and Stan Balluk.

Referee Scotty Morrison called 24 minutes in penalties during the game, 14 in the first period, Victoria received eight minor penalties including one to goaltender Marcel Pelletier for interference, while New Westminster received four minors.

MARCEL RUSH

Pelletier was called on to stop 40 shots in the Cougar net, as the Royals fired at him every time they crossed the blue line.

Bev Bentley stopped 26 in the New Westminster net.

Royals coach Hal Laycoe was forced to shuffle his line considerably due to injuries to Arnie Schmutz and Art Jones and the departure of defence man Howie Young to Toronto.

Jones is out for an indefinite period with a leg injury. Several players worked double duty in Wednesday's game, notably Ubrico, McNab and Paul Masnick.

The tie left New Westminster still in the league cellar with three points.

WARRIORS FINALLY CLICK

Both Flyers Gain Ground

By The Canadian Press

Two changes in standings, two ties and Winnipeg Warriors' first victory in five starts made up the action Wednesday night in the Western Hockey League.

An overtime tie game at Spokane produced the two changes in the standings. The second deadlock, Victoria's 5-5 draw with New Westminster, had no effect on the standings.

Edmonton Flyers moved into second place in the Prairie Division and Spokane Flyers moved into third place in the Coast Division as the result of the 3-3 tie at Spokane.

The idle Vancouver Canucks dropped into fourth place while Winnipeg's 2-1 verdict over Calgary enabled Edmonton to edge past the Stampede. Spokane has five points and Vancouver four while Edmonton has seven points and Calgary six.

Air-tight goal-tending by Edmonton's Dennis Riggan and Spokane's Emile Francis thwarted every scoring attempt in the 10-minute overtime period at Spokane.

Captain Hugh Coffin, Gene Achymichuk and rookie Murray Oliver scored for Edmonton. Al Johnson, Bev Bell and Del Topol scored for Spokane.

The game marked the start of Edmonton's first swing to the Coast this season. All teams enjoy a day of rest today, but Flyers move into Vancouver for Friday's only league contest.

At Winnipeg, veterans Pete Kapusta and Billy Mosienko scored the Winnipeg goals while Ron Leopold tallied Calgary's lone marker.

Warriors led 1-0 after the first period and added their second goal before Stampede got on the scoreboard late in the middle session.

Goalie Roy Edwards, who stopped 36 shots, was pulled from the Calgary net with one minute and five seconds left in the game and a faceoff inside the Winnipeg blue line. But tight checking by the Warriors held the six forwards from getting a shot on goal.

Par Golf Winners

Silver division honors in the Victoria Golf Club's monthly par competition for ladies went to Mrs. H. A. Porter Tuesday with Mrs. R. S. Dyer winning the bronze division and Mrs. N. Cameron "C" division.

Famous London Rink Ready to Close Doors

LONDON (AP)—"On my left, Tommy Farr... on my right, Max Baer..."

Twelve thousand fight fans cheered wildly. About 50 minutes and 12 rounds later Welshman Farr had won on points and moved nearer a crack at Joe Louis' world heavyweight title.

All that happened 21 years ago, on April 15, 1937, at London's Harringay Arena.

Tuesday night, from the same Harringay ring, the Baer-Farr introduction will be made again.

The two boxers are among famous names in the prize fight business with a sentimental date to say farewell to Harringay Arena.

The world-famous arena, scene of about 600 fights, is being closed as a sports centre and being turned into a warehouse.

Tuesday night's show will be topped by the lightweight 10-rounder between Carlos Ortiz, of New York, and Britain's Dave Charnley.

Harringay's closing will rob London of one of its finest indoor arenas.

The world ice hockey championships were staged there in 1937 and 1950; Billy Graham held revivalist meetings there; circuses went on every year. It was the Madison Square Garden of London and was built in 1936 as an ice hockey stadium.

The owners, Harringay Arena Ltd., decided it was economically impossible to carry on.

OFFSPRING FOLLOWING KING KONG'S FOOTSTEPS

NEW YORK (AP)—The "sons of Kong" may be headed for Yankee Stadium.

The world champion New York Yankees Wednesday signed Charley Keller Jr. and Don Keller to contracts. Both were assigned to Fargo-Moorhead, N.D. of the Class C Northern League, a Yankee affiliate.

Their father, Charley (King Kong) Keller starred for the Yankees for 12 seasons and finished his playing career in 1952 with a lifetime batting average of .286. He also played for Detroit for two seasons and coached the Yanks in 1957.

Charley Jr. is a 19-year-old outfielder. He is a sophomore at the University of Maryland. Don, an 18-year-old shortstop, is just out of high school.

Charley Sr. now breeds trotting horses on his farm in Frederick, Md.

ANOTHER SLANT

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The collegiate race for basketball talent has reached football's most frenzied pace, an informed source reported today, with the bidding for human skyscrapers mounting because "only a few" coaches have the ability to get by without a height advantage.

"Most coaches have to accent the big men because it's only by keeping control of the ball that they can turn out winners," it was explained. "Only a handful of college coaches are able to improve and polish their players to what you might call a professional level."

Named among these "pro-type" coaches are such as Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, Temple's Harry Litwack, LaSalle's Duddy Moore, DePaul's Ray Meyer, Oregon's State's Slat Gill and California's Pete Newell.

As proof of this contention, it was pointed out that many so-called "All-Americans" fall miserably to make the grade when they get into professional basketball—even though every one in the pro league remains mum on the subject for fear of hurting someone's feelings.

There are two principle reasons why the bidding for high school basketball stars has reached such fantastic proportions that a boy of six feet six inches or better "has it made" even if he has two left feet.

One is that since the Second World War the game has become big business in colleges, with sellout crowds packing field houses at anywhere from $1.50 to $3 a head for an average of better than 25 games a season.

Even Scholarship for Girl Friend

The other is the alumni, which has stepped in with an open wallet in a prideful effort to make the alma mater one of the powers in the newest college big-time.

Reports of some inducements are almost unbelievable and will, quite naturally, be sneered at by collegiate officials. But these reports persist, such as a $5,000 a year payoff to one big star by a wealthy alumnus; post-graduate free-rides and even scholarships for the highly coveted athlete's girl friend.

Certainly there are added "inducements" when a much-sought skyscraper gets as many as 200 offers of scholarships, many of which entail an all-expense inspection trip to the college campus. And there is at least one whispered case where a fine player but poor student had someone else take his college boards for him.

The south and the southwest currently are considered the biggest bidders for basketball talent, but all sections are suspect when a New Jersey boy turns up in California and vice versa. The majority of colleges contend that they stick by the NCAA rules, wherein only room and board and books and tuition may be provided. The south openly adds $15 a month for extras.

A new phase is the "scout." He lines up the top high school prospects in his neighborhood by ingratiating himself with the parents and then peddles them—at $100 to $300—to eager coaches. The odds are, however, that before the boy enrolls he will get an even better offer and turn up somewhere else.

The only thing certain in the whole business is that while there's so much smoke there's bound to be fire.

THREE FOR BARNES

Who Can Spike Vics' Big Gun?

The burning question in the Inter-High School Senior Soccer League is not "How are we going to stop Victoria High?" but "How are we going to stop Robin Barnes?"

And it may be a problem that might not be solved easily, judging from the exhibition the young Vic High scoring master put on Wednesday on his home grounds against Milnes Landing.

The 7-0 beating absorbed by the Milnes Landing team became almost incidental to Barnes' latest scoring spree—three goals for the third time in four games.

OAK BAY IN STEP

In other games, Oak Bay High stayed two points off unbeaten Vic High pace with a 2-0 win over Mount Douglas, and Mount View defeated Esquimalt 3-1.

Scoring for Vic High, besides Barnes, were Jim Peters, with two, Tom Collett and Don Elphick.

At Oak Bay, John Youson and Bob Hallison pulled the game out of the fire late in the second half after being contained by a determined Mount Doug defence through most of the game.

Glen Robbins came up with two scoring sorties in the second half at Mount View to give his team the win after teams were tied 1-1 at the half.

Esquimalt tally was scored by Bill MacMillan, countering one fired by Bill Monroe for the winners.

Final games of the league schedule will be played next Wednesday when Esquimalt meets Victoria High; Oak Bay plays Sooke, and Mount Douglas tackles Mount View.

Vic High	4	3	1	4	2
Oak Bay	4	3	1	4	2
Mount View	4	3	1	4	2
Mt. Douglas	4	3	1	4	2

TOP NFL SCORER

Brown's Rushing Boost for Browns

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Statistics are proving what many opposing football players already accept as fact—that Jim Brown may be the greatest rusher in the history of the National Football League.

Official NFL figures released today show the bruising full-back of the eastern division-leading Cleveland Browns is well on his way to setting a rushing record for one season and also has a good shot at a scoring record.

The former Syracuse star has accounted for 635 yards on 94 running attempts in the Browns' four winning efforts this year. That figures out to a 6.8 yards per carry and a game average of almost 159 yards. The game figure is about 64 yards: more than Steve Van Buren averaged when he set the present NFL league rushing record with 1,146 yards for Philadelphia Eagles in 1949.

Another big reason for the Browns' success is rookie Bob Mitchell, whose season total of 370 yards rushing is second best in the league. Mitchell has averaged 8.8 yards for each of his 42 runs. Tom Wilson of Los Angeles is a distant third with 302 yards by running.

Eddie Lebaron of Washington Redskins, John Brodie of San Francisco and John Unitas of Baltimore continue to head the passers. Lebaron has the best average gain per pass attempt, 9.70 yards. Brodie has the best completion average, 58.8 per cent in 68 attempts. Unitas' passing has accounted for the most yards, 907.

Brown heads the scoring parade with 10 touchdowns for 60 points in four games. The league record for TDs in one season is 18 in 10 games by Van Buren. Willie Galimore of Chicago Bears has 42 points for second place.

Ray Berry of the Colts has caught the most passes in the 1953 season, 23 good for 361 yards, but Del Shofner of Los Angeles Rams has gained the most yards, 424 in 19 catches.

Tony Anthony, New York's No. 1 light-heavyweight title contender, has signed to meet Sonny Ray, of Chicago, in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden, November 14.

Top Jockeys On Hand For Woodbine Feature

TORONTO (CP)—Seven United States jockeys have been engaged to ride horses in the $50,000 Canadian championship at New Woodbine Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Reubens' Hasty House Farms will have a three-horse entry in the mile and five furlongs classic—Ekaba, Mahan and Jack Ketch—and three U.S. riders have been signed to ride the trio. Coming from Chicago are jockeys John Heckmann, Ken Church and John Sellers. No final decision on their mounts has been made.

The veteran Conn McCreary will come from New York to ride Grey Monarch for Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor. Benny Sorensen, regular rider for the Taylor stable, will have the mount on Spinney, owned by Louis Rowan of Los Angeles. Grey Monarch and Spinney, both trained by Horatio Juro, will run as an entry.

Angel Valenzuela also is coming from New York to ride Andrew Alan for owner-trainer Hirsch Jacobs. Ray Broussard, another American, will ride One-Eyed King for Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable.

Alfonso Coy, Eastern Canada's leading jockey, has been signed to ride Kitty Girl for the partnership of Conn Smythe and Larkin Maloney of Toronto. Hugo Dittfach of Calgary, ranked fifth among North American jockeys this season, will ride The Schreiber, owned by Miss Olive Armstrong of Toronto.

Red Horsemen Awaiting Visas For Laurel Trip

BALTIMORE (AP)—Russia's entries in the Laurel International race are expected to leave Moscow, Friday or Saturday.

A story from Moscow said the start of the trip depended on the issuance of United States visas for two jockeys and three handers who will make the trip. The American Embassy in Moscow said the visas were being "expedited."

Garnir and Zaryad, the horses which finished 1-2 in the Soviet Derby last July, arrived in Moscow, Wednesday, to get final checkups before the trip.

Without being pressed, Garnir covered the approximate 1 1/2 miles in 2 minutes 31 1/2 seconds, on a dirt track. Zaryad was 1 1/2 seconds behind.

The $100,000 International, November 11, will be the same distance but on grass.

Columbia Policy Held Up—Premier

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

CAMPBELL RIVER—The wind was cold and sharp on the platform reserved for VIPs at the official opening Wednesday of the Strathcona hydro development.

To warm up Premier W. A. C. Bennett, two business editors flung questions.

Such as "When are you going to announce plans of the Wenner-Gren power development?"

"Soon," said the premier, his eyes crackling like a man who has just found his name in the Social Register. "This government doesn't hold things up. We'll make an announcement when it is possible."

What about the Columbia River development?

"The federal government is holding it up. Le Sage (the former Liberal government resources minister) had the matter developing nicely but this (Diefenbaker) government is shuffling things around."

Which is most important—Wenner-Gren or the Columbia? "Which do you think is most important?" snapped the premier.

"Any part of the whole is as important as any other part."

B.C. Power Commission will lose one of its key men at the end of the month. J. W. "Bill" Fellows, assistant public relations director, contemplates a two-year voyage to Australia, England . . . and perhaps back to Canada.

In his four years with the Power Commission, "Bill" Fellows has done a remarkable job with its publications. An artist, layout man and writer, he has fathered the development of BCP publications from the early days of "Progress" to the present output of four BCP publications. In addition he has prepared annual reports and other bulletins in a professional and pleasing way. Taking over is Jim Greer.

European Car Sales Boom

OTTAWA (CP) — Sales of British and European motor vehicles are up by more than 50 per cent in the first eight months of the year.

But total sales, including Canadian makes, are down by 15 per cent, the bureau of statistics has reported.

August sales of imported European cars rose to 6,128 units from 5,032 in August, 1957, boosting the year's total to 54,937 units compared with 37,200 in the January-August period last year.

Total August sales of new passenger and commercial vehicles were down to 30,167 from 37,902 in the corresponding month a year ago.

Coal Production Continues Slide

Vancouver Island coal production continued a downward trend in August with the total standing at 15,526 tons as compared to 17,652 tons for the same period one year ago. Reduced production was also noted in other coal producing areas of the province, B.C. department of mines reported Wednesday.

Power, Play Proven Compatible

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

CAMPBELL RIVER—Premier W. A. C. Bennett proved power and recreation could live together Wednesday when he pushed the button which sent the initial unit of the $30 million Strathcona hydro development into action.

After declaring "this Strathcona development officially open," and then saying in aside, "where's the button?", he finally found it and the 42,000 horses in the generator went "on power."

The recreation aspect was revealed half an hour later when a caravan of power-full representatives of government, business, the clergy, and newsmen, motored along the windy, scenic shores of Upper Campbell Lake to Buttle Lake.

Here, say B.C. Power Commission people, is the answer to those like Roderick Haig-Brown and others who claim power and recreation aren't compatible.

Buttle Lake appeared serene, if chilly, and available to all sportsmen who cared to seek its bounty of trout and other marine life. More important, sportsmen can now reach Buttle by horsepower (automobile) rather than by horse power (pack horse) via the Power Commission's $900,000 road.

At the dam, a cold, impressive mountain of sand, gravel and concrete, the Premier and guests stood in a stiff breeze and spoke of its importance.

The Premier hailed it as the "most important development, economically, on Vancouver Island."

"No project means more to the economy, industry and employment of Vancouver Island than this project," he said.

Other important projects unveiled recently in B.C. were cited by the premier, too. He mentioned the $25,000,000 British American Oil refinery at Port Moody and the extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Fort St. John and Dawson Creek.

Referring to the seven-year battle to "preserve" Buttle Lake as a conservation paradise, the premier said:

"I have nothing but kindness for the bitter criticism that preceded the flooding of Buttle Lake so this project could be started."

"It shows we must stand up to criticism at times if we are going to complete great projects such as this."

The problems encountered by the Power Commission in building the dam were reviewed by commission general manager H. Lee Briggs.

Hewed out of 1,800 acres of virgin forest which yielded 125,000,000 board feet of logs, Strathcona had to overcome two problems.

The first, he said, occurred in December, 1956, when a power storm sent water zooming behind the dam's lining and buckled its steel plates "like an accordion."

The second was a lightning storm which set off a roaring blaze which devoured "forever"

6,000 acres of marketable timber at Lower Buttle.

"Despite these setbacks," Mr. Briggs said, "the development was completed and stands as a monument to those who realized its importance and worked tirelessly to see it completed."

Visitors and VIPs toured the powerhouse after Commission chairman T. H. Crosby snipped a ribbon and unveiled a plaque at the entrance.

LIGHT DUTY SIX OR V-8

New Mercury Light Duties are here with a host of payoff-proved features and many new improvements, new advancements. For economy, both Six and V-8 engines run best on lower-priced, regular gasoline. For rugged good looks, a stylish new grille with Quadri-Beam headlights, smart new hood and new contour bumper combine with Mercury's big capacities to give you trucks that look like a million, yet work for pennies. Cabs feature an industry-new seat covering that wears twice as long as former fabrics. New Multi-Drive Merc-O-Matic provides two automatic driving ranges for all road and load conditions. And a new power transfer differential helps prevent bogging down in mud, snow or on ice. Get the full story of the all-Canadian payoff champs from your Mercury Truck dealer.

MEDIUM DUTY SIX OR V-8

For medium duty jobs, only '59 Mercury Trucks offer you payoff-proved economy, staying power and driver-approved comfort in conventional, tilt cab and school bus models. But '59's medium duty truck story doesn't end with Mercury's proven performance. They're new from modern grille to new seat covering materials that are twice as durable as last year's standard fabric. Under the hood, new improvements in both Six and V-8 engines give you full short-stroke power from lower-priced, regular gasoline. A new internal shoe parking brake, standard on all Mercury Medium Duty trucks, gives nearly 50% greater holding ability. These are just a few of Mercury's many new features for '59—payoff-proved features that make Mercury Trucks Canada's best buys for profitable trucking.

HEAVY AND SUPER DUTY V-8

'59 Mercury Trucks give you more of what you want for Heavy and Super Duty operations. These payoff-proved giants in conventional, tilt cab and tandem models feature Mercury's rugged V-8 engines with up to 534 cubic inch displacement. And like every Mercury engine this year, they run best on lower-priced, regular gasoline. Ready to team with this short-stroke power are a wide range of transmissions including the fully automatic Transmatic and the 8-Speed Roadranger. New rear axles and lower rear axle ratios give you top capacity and economy. Cabs feature stronger construction, heavier sheet metal reinforcements and longer wearing seat fabrics. Mercury offers much more that's new for '59 and the full story fills a catalogue. Get it from your Mercury Truck dealer.

Certain features illustrated or mentioned are standard on some models, optional at extra cost on others.

148 HOMELESS IN SAINT JOHN FIRE

Tumbling Wall Kills Fireman

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Fire Chief H. S. Knight today estimated loss at $100,000 in a fire that raced through seven buildings in Saint John's north end killing one fireman, injuring three and leaving 26 families homeless.

The number of persons left homeless has been estimated at 148. An official count was not available because of the large number of children in many families and their dispersment to welfare agencies and relatives' homes for temporary shelter.

The 29-year firefighting career of Capt. L. J. Hayward was ended four months short of retirement when he was trapped beneath a falling wall.

ALMOST BURIED

About six feet from where Hayward was found, 24-year-old John Kyle was almost buried in rubble. He was freed in a hectic four-hour battle with chain saws and a truck crane.

He was suffering from shock and faced possible leg amputation after being pinned by a heavy beam.

A Lancaster contractor, George C. Chittick, directed the rescue operations that freed Kyle. With him were a score of construction workers, hydro employees, civil defence members and a contingent from the Canadian Army Ordnance Corps at nearby Coldbrook.

The Red Cross disaster relief organization set up emergency headquarters to assist the homeless.

RE-ELECTED president of the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council is Mrs. E. G. D. Wills, 648 Baxter. Mrs. Wills heads a federation of 31 local PTA groups totaling over 5,000 members. The council is also affiliated with the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation. Mrs. Wills joined Craigflower PTA 11 years ago and has been corresponding secretary and vice-president of the council prior to her election last year as president.

Pickpocket Testament To Crime

DENVER (AP)—While Leroy Hippensteel raised his arms, two men swiftly emptied his pockets.

The robbery was seen by policeman J. D. Bates and Paul Majors, who caught the two after a foot chase. The loot: A pocket edition of the New Testament.

"I thought it was a wallet," said one of the men.

OTTAWA (CP) — Christian George Hanna is going travelling again, leaving behind some blushes in prominent cheeks.

During the 18½ months since Hanna first chanced on Canada's Pacific shores, his cause has been championed by people in high places and low.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, then Parliament's opposition leader, once spoke out in the House of Commons for the 24-year-old laborer who landed in Canada after spending some 15 months at sea, a stowaway without a country.

Justice Minister Fulton, in an earlier phase of his career, once attempted as an opposition member to launch a special debate in the Commons about the trials and tribulations of the slightly built laborer from obscure beginnings somewhere in the Mediterranean area.

Mr. Fulton's attempt didn't work. And neither did Hanna's engagement with Canada.

Immigration Minister Fairclough announced Wednesday Hanna will be deported Saturday to Lebanon. He now is held in custody in Vancouver. Lebanon has agreed—orally—to accept him.

AN EMBARRASSMENT

Hanna proved to be a source of embarrassment from the day he arrived at Port Alberni, B.C., in December, 1956. He had stowed away aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig at Beirut, Lebanon, in July, 1955.

He was inadmissible under Canadian immigration laws because he had no passport, no identification, no nationality and no place of birth but with newspaper publicity he became a figure of national concern.

Vancouver lawyer Donald S. White carried Hanna's cause through immigration board hearings right up to the B.C. supreme court. It declared invalid the immigration department's deportation order against Hanna.

ALLOWED TO STAY

In the end, the then Liberal Pickersgill allowed Hanna to stay in Canada and prove he wanted to work and be a good citizen.

There was a feeling that good Canadian justice had prevailed. But the glow of good intentions soon dimmed.

He got a job as a deckhand aboard a tugboat but lost it because of a strike and later was charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

After forfeiting bail on that one, he went to the interior of B.C. to take a railway job and charges were not pressed.

Mr. Fulton, by now acting immigration minister, said Hanna was staying in Canada on probation and later he was given permission to stay another six months.

Last December, Hanna told the immigration department he wanted to leave the country. But before he could he was convicted of intoxication in a public place and later of committing an indecent act "with intent thereby to insult or offend a person." A 25-year-old housewife's complaint had given rise to the charge.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canada's first Social Credit premier, the late William Aberhart, recruited many of his supporters as principal of Crescent Heights High School, says an ex-California now living in Victoria.

"He had an absolute genius for teaching mathematics," says this old student. "After all but two in our class had failed in maths, he took it over himself and we got through a year's work in one term."

He once expelled two of us for smoking in school, but took us back 24 hours later when he had "truly repented." It was largely because of this that we campaigned for him in his first bid for election.

Mr. Aberhart became premier of Alberta in 1935 and died in Vancouver in 1943.

Nature's wonders never cease.

Mrs. D. Gosse of 646 Cornwall strolled in her garden Wednesday morning and discovered a camellia tree in blossom.

"I am amazed," she said. "Normally our camellias bloom in March and are finished by the end of April or early May."

"I would love to know if any other Times readers have camellias in blossom now."

Many readers agree with me that Victoria offers little opportunity for sailors to do what they want to do on wet afternoons (this column Oct. 16).

"I am surprised that no one here organizes dances and social evenings where visiting sailors can meet nice girls," writes Miss A. C. Fennimore of Sook Street.

"Other cities do this—why not Victoria?"

I understand the Seamen's Institute on Superior Street used to hold dances, but now only caters for sailors seeking monastic entertainment in the lounge or the games room.

"It is significant," says Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of Victoria College, that so many of our successful scholars are the children of faculty members.

"I trust this will not promote an investigation or a royal commission."

The Jehovah's Witnesses have taken me to task for saying they called at my house with a collection box.

It must be admitted they were selling their paper The Watchtower, and I used the term "collecting" in a broad sense.

"Our organization is and has always been an entirely non-political, non-profit, non-commercial, charitable religious corporation, devoted exclusively to Bible education," writes W. Milliken of Victoria. "We do not collect."

Chest Collections Near $200,000

The Community Chest total at noon today stood at $183,949 towards the $300,000 objective.

Close to $4,000 came in this morning.

Nearly $45,000 has been collected in the residential campaign and Chest officials expect at least $60,000 before final returns are in.

Hospital giving — from employees — is up 60 per cent over last year, exceeding the quota set. Social Agency Service have also given more than their quota. They have contributed $1,176, which is 43 per cent more than in 1957.

Despite volunteer canvassing of the residential district, some families have been missed. Chest officials ask that householders who have not been approached and who wish to donate call EV 5-6708.

Mayor Seeks Bennett Talk On Auditorium

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said he is trying to arrange an interview with Premier W. A. C. Bennett to ask for a provincial grant for a civic auditorium.

"I've got a call in asking for an appointment," he said. Premier Bennett is scheduled to leave for a holiday in a few days.

Mayor Scurrell was authorized by Inter-municipal committee to enquire about possibilities of a grant after Esquimalt council had discussed the proposed $2,750,000 Great Victoria auditorium.

Esquimalt council earlier this week indicated it would require full details of the proposal before taking any action.

"All I want is the question to be put to the voters to let them decide whether they want an auditorium," the mayor commented on Esquimalt's stand.

"I think an auditorium should pay its operating expenses but not its initial capital cost."

"If Memorial Arena can make between $23,500 and $60,000 operating profit a year, an auditorium certainly should be able to pay its operating expenses."

$35 Fine Levied On Speedy Driver

When off-duty policeman Earle Doyle was passed by a car at high speed on crowded Gorge Road one Sunday afternoon three weeks ago he took chase and was led at speeds up to 70 miles an hour before stopping the driver.

In police police court today Lawrence T. Reed, 572 Dupplin, was found guilty of careless driving and fined $35.

"Certainly you deserve suspension," Magistrate H. C. Hall told him, but restricted Reed's licence to business driving only for one month.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

The Social Register

When the Social Register people sent me a letter last Spring I felt I had to go along, for one reason: I could never be snobbish enough to stay out.

This was an immense gamble, but it has been confirmed by the lists released today.

This is the most democratic book ever published in Canada.

It is a faithful montage of the people of this country. Everyone is in.

If there is a bum in Victoria who didn't make the grade, he escaped my notice.

In a quick run through the list, I saw that our best bootlegger was honored, and so were the town's leading card-sharks and bookies.

There is at least one fellow in the list who did time for assault and battery, and another who was kicked out of a Victoria service club for using language that would make a dogface blush. There are deadbeats who have been one jump ahead of the sheriff for years. There are Communists whose greatest pleasure would be to garrote each and every one of their co-listees. There are women who haven't drawn a sober

MAXIMUM FISH

Power Dams Could Boost Salmon Haul

Power dams and reservoirs on the Fraser River could reduce the high mortality rate of spawning fish and bring the maximum development of salmon fish resources, a prominent engineer claimed today in Victoria.

Val Gwyther told Victoria Rotarians that regulation of water flow, temperature and sediment can be "and have been provided" in fish works constructed in conjunction with power dams and reservoirs.

A member of the Fraser River Multiple Use Committee, Mr. Gwyther suggested special legislation should be brought down to create an organization to investigate and evaluate all the resources of the Fraser River Basin.

The present conflict between fish and power interests results from a misconception, Mr. Gwyther said.

Development of the Fraser is hampered because fisheries people appear to be concerned only in the maintenance of present fish by natural spawning, Rotarians were told.

HIT BY FLOODS

"Natural spawning conditions are not the best conditions for propagation of salmon," he said. "Spawning beds are sometimes totally obliterated by floods. Low water in summer months is often a barrier to spawning fish. Sometimes it exposes eggs to frost. Unsanitary conditions in egg nests are also a detriment to survival."

B.C.'s 1,500 acres of spawning beds, which vary in degree of productivity with nature's ability to control water, are "hopelessly inefficient and it is readily possible to improve this condition through regulation provided by dams and reservoirs."

He pointed to the Leavenworth, Wash., hatchery where adult salmon escapement to hatchery in the first year was 900 fish. Escapement to the hatchery between 1950-57 ranged from 98,000 to 157,000 fish.

WASTE CHARGED

"Before 1940 there was no sockeye in Wentz Lake," Mr. Gwyther said. "Not only has the hatchery established an important sockeye fishery, but there is no indication of a four-year cycle. The run is substantially the same each year."

He charged there is an "appreciable waste of salmon production, and therefore food, in fishery management."

"Requirements in adults for this year's escapement from Chilco Lake of 28,000,000 downstream migrants were about 600,000 spawning adults. With artificial spawning this would require 100,000 adults and with hatchery propagation, only about 20,000 adults."

If the excess of requirements in artificial spawning were processed at tidewater, an increase in dollar value amounting to $1,700,000 would be made available, said Mr. Gwyther. He estimated this increased production with hatchery propagation to be about $1,900,000 per year.

PRETTY LITTLE Paula Dhillon, aged 8, grade two pupil at North Ward School, will be out with chums Halloween and chances are some of them will be carrying Save The Children Fund cans as they call at homes. Money goes to aid starving children in at least a dozen underprivileged countries. More than 20 Sunday schools in Victoria received cans today which will be distributed to students. Objective this year is $3,500 from Victoria and Vancouver Island. About 2,000 cans have been distributed. Campaign chairman is Mrs. W. W. McGill.

'Cross-Section' Of Delegates Open Mining Meet Here

About 60 delegates representing labor, industry and government arrived here today to attend a provincial mining conference at the Legislative Buildings.

The talks, also attended by representatives from University of British Columbia, will continue Friday. The conference was called by Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

City Army Officer Ends 'Brass' Course

Major P. T. Nation, attached to army headquarters here, will graduate Friday from a special nine-week course at the Canadian senior officers' school in Kingston, Ont.

The course is designed for training potential regimental commanders, providing instruction in the latest doctrines, training, skills and habits of command.

He will be among 13 Canadian and two British army majors graduating in this year's class from the three-year-old school.

Up-Island Campaign Organized

Comox MLA Dan Campbell has launched a campaign in five communities for more up-island roads, and plans to organize more. He has set up "North Island Road" committees to "turn miles of promises into miles of roads."

When he has enlisted support in northern areas—three more committee sites are envisaged—Mr. Campbell will move his new road campaign south.

Objectives of the committees are to foster provincial and federal co-operation toward linking the north end of the island with existing highway network, to speed up target dates for road projects, stimulate interest in transportation problems, prepare briefs for submission to governments, and rouse public interest in road plans.

"I started last week, and now have committees at Alert Bay, Port Hardy, Port Alice, Campbell River, and in the Nimpkish area," he said in Courtenay today. "I will organize Kelsey Bay Nov. 14."

He hopes to reach Holberg, Port McNeill, and Sointula shortly, then move from Courtenay south.

"The plan is for each committee to carry on itself toward the common objective," he said.

While making his organizing trip last week from Kelsey Bay to Alert Bay by sealer, the vessel was caught in a storm, the engine broke down, the boat started to leak, and passengers and crew bailed for their lives before they won partial shelter at Boat Bay.

"After my experience with that form of transportation, my voice is going to be heard more loudly and more often on the subject of roads for the north island," he said. "It is intolerable that these communities should be denied access."

Obstruction In Arrest Brings Fine

A young naval seaman who insisted on going to the lockup with a sailor already under arrest was fined $25 in city police court today for obstructing an officer.

William K. Astrop pleaded guilty to a charge of obstructing Const. Peter Voth at Douglas and Cormorant at midnight Wednesday.

He had arrested Alan Sandercott on a charge of being drunk in public when Astrop came along and said he would take Sandercott back to base.

Const. Voth said he was taking Sandercott in to the station and warned Astrop not to interfere.

"If you take him, you take me," the constable quoted Astrop. He warned the sailor again and Astrop replied: "If you take one, you take all."

At this point the constable arrested Astrop, he said, and Astrop took the officer's arm in an effort to stop the procession.

"You won't lock me up unless you shoot me," was Astrop's final remark before going to jail.

Sandercott pleaded guilty to an intoxication charge and was fined $10.

Loss of 'Touch' With Employees Big Blunder, Personnel Meet Told

Management personnel have lost the art of communicating with employees and this position has been "usurped" by unions, R. J. Hodgins, vice-president, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. told 200 delegates attending the 20th annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association here today.

"The biggest blunder that management has made was failure to preserve the art of getting true facts to our people," he said in the convention's keynote address.

He advocated more time for employees and less time for "things."

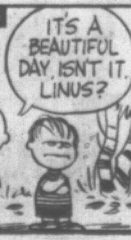

The company executive said personnel relations need urgent diagnosis and treatment "because we have too much labor-management unrest for a free economy."

And he added, "my observation is that personnel departments surround themselves with an ivory tower," and that persons in the departments are searching for professional status rather than the preferred position as "generalists" with an understanding of the "whole picture."

There has been too much concentration on methods involving the mass, paternalistic approach in relation to employees, rather than development of ideas that preserve individual human dignity, he said.

In officially opening the convention, Labor Minister Lyle Wicks told delegates that with personnel management the link between employees and top management, there were in a position to combat current industrial unrest.

Low-Priced Woolen Sets Both Smart and Practical

By PENNY SAVER

Bargain price items today include wonderfully warm scarves of pure wool. They come in several brightly-colored plaids and the cost is a mere 98 cents!

Another item to keep a young school girl warm in winter—a set of knitted hat and gloves, attractively embroidered, and selling for $1.98 a set. Colors are pale pink or bright red.

Dainty nylon half-slips are selling this week at a special price of just $1. Tailored to fit neatly under slim skirts, the slips are trimmed with a wide hem of embroidered nylon making them ultra-feminine.

Nighties of white nylon with blue floral pattern are also selling for the low price of $1, and cute little baby doll pyjamas are priced at $1.98.

For the man in the house, I've found genuine English briar pipes at a special price of $1.50—which is quite a saving since some of the same well-known make sell for as much as $15. Stems are hard and tough, and bowls come in several popular shapes.

Another smart piece of smoking equipment is an oriental design table lighter, with attractive hand-painted design on lacquer. Guaranteed to work, these well-designed lighters are selling at $2.95.

Would you believe it's possible to buy a cultured pearl pendant for only $1? The unmounted single pearl hangs from a sterling silver chain, to form a very attractive pendant.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

My husband, whom I married two years ago, has a son who will be married in a month. I am facing an awkward situation as the boy is openly resentful of me, saying that no other woman should have taken his late mother's place. My husband declares that he won't go to the wedding Louise Davis and reception without me. I don't know what to do. If I do go, should I sit with my husband and would I be expected to be in the receiving line? I can't bear to think of it, knowing that the son doesn't want me.

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS

I hope that you can arrange to be absent. Your first job is to convince yourself that it is the only logical solution, then convince your husband as to the wisdom. He shouldn't let his son down by staying away and he shouldn't think that you would be letting him down. Surely he can brave the day without you. This will be the son's happiest day and why mar it with your presence if he is that resentful? If your husband ultimately agrees to go without you, and I hope he will, perhaps you can arrange for a few days' visit out of town, for it might help smooth over a nasty situation. If you give in to your husband, you should sit with him at

DEAR ABBY...

Out of His Head!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been crazy about Paul ever since I can remember. He fell off his bicycle and when they carried him to his porch I was there talking to his sister. He reached for my hand and said "Margaret, I love you." It was plain as day. Now he claims he was unconscious and never said any such thing. If he WAS really unconscious does it mean anything, or should I forget the whole thing and find somebody else?

DEAR MARGARET: Find a nice fellow who doesn't have to be knocked unconscious to declare his love.

DEAR ABBY: I was somewhat perturbed and annoyed upon reading GRANDMA'S letter in which she states that her grandchildren act as if they were raised in the wilds of Africa. I spent ten years in interior Africa, during which time I had occasion to observe much of the tribal life in various regions. African children do NOT act as Grandma's grandchildren act. They are taught to obey and when a parent speaks, the child acts accordingly and asks no questions. May I suggest that GRANDMA find a more suitable simile. Sincerely, "TSHISUABANTU" (Mr. W. M. P.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my boyfriend who thinks he is a modern Tarzan. He's big and handsome and he knows it. We went swimming almost every day last summer just so he could show off his muscles. When we go bowling he strips down to his tee shirt for the same reason. At parties he challenges everyone there to do more pushups than he. He says he loves me, but instead of saving toward getting married, he is saving toward going to Hollywood so somebody can discover him. Should I break off with him?

JANE: DEAR JANE: Unless you want to be left out on the limb, I suggest you let "Tarzan" swing through the trees in the jungle alone. Find a man with both feet on the ground.

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter, 13, who does not eat enough to keep her alive. The food is there but she insists she is not hungry. At one time she was quite stout, but she went on a diet and took off 30 pounds. Now she looks like a refugee from prison camp. At mealtime when I see her picking at her food and shoving it around on her plate I get so mad at her I scream. I know I shouldn't but I can't help it. She starts to cry and runs to her room. Can you help me get this child to eat before she puts me in an early grave?

DEAR MRS. H.: Quit picking on her. Take her to a doctor. Let him tell her what to eat and how much. Ignore her completely at mealtime, if you have to bite your tongue to do it. When you quit nagging her, her appetite will improve.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for two years and my

CARAMEL APPLES

Fourteen-oz. package caramels (about 56), 2 tablespoons water, 4 or 5 medium-sized apples.

Place caramels and water in top of double boiler. Heat, stirring frequently until sauce is smooth. Stick a wooden skewer in each apple. Dip in hot caramel, turn until surface is coated. Place on waxed paper and place in refrigerator a few minutes until firm.

If the children are young and you are having a sit-down supper, use apple hobboblins as favors. Using lifesavers for eyes, piece of gumdrop for nose and popcorn or peanuts for teeth, stick the features on the apple with heavy sugar and water syrup. Place on a paper dolly ruffled collar and use another dolly shaped into a cone for the hat.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Handwork, and especially knitting, always has been indulged in with pleasure by women. However, in recent years there has been an even greater interest in this creative skill.

Knitted clothes have been extremely popular and handwork of all sorts seems to be coming into its own again, along with more feminine clothes and attitudes.

Knitting long has been recommended for those who are extremely nervous. It is soothing and certainly makes a woman look much more attractive than when her hands are drumming on the arms of her chair or are twitching about generally. Knitting can be a real tranquilizer for a jumpy lady.

Also psychologists have said that one reason for frustration in modern woman is the fact that she does not invest in her creative itch to make lovely or needed articles with her own hands. Today it is not necessary for her to make soap and candles. They are manufactured for her.

Today we know that emotional stresses and tensions often are reflected in illness and in appearance. The stresses of today's fast-paced living are now even recognized as a contributing factor in certain dermatoses. Doctor Louis Wexler, noted dermatologist, advises knitting as one way to reduce nervous strain and resultant tension-inspired skin ailments.

Doctor Wexler said: "The pressures of our modern way of life are definitely an important cause of many skin diseases, in particular neuro-dermatitis."

When I put on a new dress and ask him how I look, he says, "All right for a married woman." Abby, I love him very much and it hurts me not to be noticed by him. What do you suggest?

NOT NOTICED. DEAR NOT: Notice HIM—compliment your husband when he looks especially nice or acts especially attentive. The way to get special attention is to give it.

The Glory of Autumn Color Along Island Roads and Trails

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The other night the publisher of this newspaper, Stuart Keate, devoted his daily column, "Publisher's Notebook," to praise of the autumn colors along the Hope-Princeton Highway.

He is right, of course. About now the vine maples on the Coast side of the climb to the summit of Mount Allison will be crimson red; in Manning Park, the poplar leaves will be shimmering discs of gold, and farther along, down by the Similkameen River, the sumac will be showing orange and red leaves.

The sage should still be in bloom, and if it is, the pungent smell of its yellow flowers will fill the air.

Background interest will be provided by the tall stately pines, with their dark red bark, green needles and big brown cones.

A glorious picture, that an artist, whether working with words or with paints, would do well to record.

But don't get the idea you have to travel to the Mainland to see the autumn colors. Get in your car and drive out the Saanich Peninsula, or up the Island Highway, and you will find color wherever you look.

Perhaps you won't see the reds of the Hope-Princeton Highway, but when it comes to the yellows, the golds and the browns, we've got them in abundance.

Combine these colors with blue skies and sunshine and it is a breathtaking sight.

Travel the Byways to Beauty

If you have time, get away from the main highways and drive slowly along some of the secondary roads — the scenic routes, we call them now.

You'll see maple trees scattering golden leaves in a thick carpet on the rolling meadow lands; oak trees splashed with brown and gold; the dogwoods, purple red and arbutus trees tipped with bunches of orange red berries.

Stop beside a river or a stream and look at the reflections.

Take the old road around Mill Bay and down Beuna Vista Hill.

Of Personal Interest

In San Francisco

Dr. W. G. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson are in San Francisco to spend some time with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ossulston. They plan to return to Victoria early next week.

Oregon Visitors

Dr. and Mrs. Donald Link, later England of Eugene, Ore., were in Victoria to spend a few days with Mrs. England's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Elliott, 305 Linden Ave.

Wedding Guests

Mrs. J. Deboise of Calgary was in Victoria to attend the recent wedding of her son, Mr. Jarvis Deboise, to Mary Jane Hansen. Other out-of-town guests were Lila Isaac of Langley, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. Ed Plaston, Mr. Jack McGregor, Mr. Terry Ald and Mr. Bud Kirkaldy, of Aldergrove, B.C.

Gifts in Well

A shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. T. Copley, when she and Mrs. J. Bellavance entertained in honor of the latter's sister, Miss Margaret Ralph. Corsages of yellow and mauve chrysanthemums were presented to the honor guest and to her mother, Mrs. D. Ralph. Gifts were concealed in a wishing well. Guests included Mrs. J. Carlow, Mrs. M. McElmoyle, Mrs. B. Carlow, Mrs. G. Copley, Mrs. C. Rich, Mrs. F. Copley, Mrs. R. Seymour, Mrs. J. Caton, Mrs. J. Short, Mrs. W. Gibb, Mrs. E. Hunt, Mrs. J. Banister, Mrs. W. Tyson, Mrs. J. Smoking May Lower Birth Weight

LONDON (Reuters) — A woman who smokes while pregnant probably is reducing her baby's birth weight, a team of medical experts report today.

The team, from Birmingham University's department of social medicine, gave this view after canvassing nearly 1,300 mothers.

Clubwomen's News

Thankoffering—Mrs. Alastair Campbell presided at the autumn thankoffering meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary, Women's Missionary Society of the First United Church. Mrs. C. Leighton Straight took the devotion and Mrs. Hubert Cashman was soloist. Mrs. G. W. Haggland introduced the study book for 1959. Tea was served by Mrs. R. E. Lambe and Mrs. J. Stephens.

For Solarium—Donations of fruit and vegetables for the new Solarium were accepted at a meeting of the Lake Hill Women's Institute. Donors were pupils of Cloverdale School, the Humpty Dumpty Play School and institute members. Miss J. E. M. Bruce spoke on the United Nations, and the guest speaker, Mrs. Alfred Dowell, entertained with a travelogue and colored slides of her trip through Mexico. It was announced that date of the tea planned to aid the Cerebral Palsy Clinic will be November 26 instead of November 19 as previously stated.

Dance Club

Wagon Wheels Square Dance Club held a successful dance in Central Hall, Salt Spring Island. New club executive includes: President, Capt. Art Slater; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Barber; tea convener, Mrs. Bert Barber; executive members, Mrs. Slater, A. W. Barber, Bert Barber, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Reid. New squares will be practised at each dance. They are held every other Saturday, the next one on Nov. 1.

Lady Laurier Club of Oak Bay, monthly luncheon meeting Friday, 1 p.m., Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Mrs. S. E. Gummow, guest speaker.

FEWER CAESARIAN
But women who smoke heavily during pregnancy, they added, tend to need fewer caesarian sections and fewer instrument-aided deliveries.

The research team found that of the women queried 712 were non-smokers, 185 gave up smoking during pregnancy and 401 smoked daily while their baby was on the way.

Charting the birth weights of the babies, the experts found that:

1. The average birth weight for women who never smoked was 7.3 pounds.

The average for those who gave up smoking during pregnancy was 7.26 pounds.

3. The average for those who smoked dropped according to the number of cigarettes.

FROM SEVEN POUNDS

Those smoking up to 10 cigarettes a day produced, on the average, a seven-pound baby. The 10-or-more-a-day mothers had babies weighing an average of 5.86 pounds.

The team thought a possible reason was that smoking interfered in some way with the food supply from the mother.

Another finding was that women who smoked had more premature babies than those who did not.

Local Medical Men Differ

Comments from local medical men were skeptical on the whole but one general practitioner was in full agreement.

"I certainly agree with it. Experiments in Los Angeles have shown that the heart rate of an unborn baby is increased from the normal 140 or 145 beats per minute to as much as 175 per minute, with one puff of a cigarette.

"Nicotine in the milk of nursing mothers is also definitely harmful to the baby. Also, a German survey has shown that abortions are much more common in women who smoke.

"Mind you, I know other doctors don't agree with me but most of them are smokers.

A well-known obstetrician said:

"I have never found any connection between smoking and birthweight, but then I haven't gone out looking for it.

"Perhaps the story indicates that smoking affects developmental factors, which are manifested by lower birth weight. But the article seems to contradict itself by mentioning the fewer caesarian sections and instrument-aided deliveries, which would be a definitely desirable result of smoking."

Another obstetrician said:

"I would be very cautious about accepting a first report from one person. If it is the same report I read in a medical journal it is by a woman who is an anti-tobaccoist."

"There are so many variables, such as personal bias, selection of patients. Medical men can't accept every paper that is published, investigation may prove it to be entirely erroneous.

"Personally, I don't feel it has been proved by this one report.

Several doctors agreed on one point:

"If newspapers publicize this too widely, every pregnant woman in town will take to heavy smoking for the duration."

'Flying-Up' In Langford Ceremony

Wings were presented in a "flying up" ceremony when First Langford Brownie Pack and Guide Company met recently. Brown Owl Mrs. A. M. Thomas made the presentations to Donna Lucas, Marian McDowell and Carol Hanson, Karen Rudolph, Celeste Lanthier and Elizabeth Allan walked up to the Guide company.

Mary-Lou McKay made a presentation on behalf of the Brownies to Mrs. Brian Hanson who is leaving the position of Tawny Owl. Her place is being taken by Mrs. A. L. Brown.

Mrs. K. A. Burnett was enrolled as a Guider during the Guide company meeting and will become company lieutenant. She was presented to the captain, Miss M. E. Tawney, by Miss Cecil MacIntosh, another company lieutenant. Color party included Sharon Reese, Heather Thomas and Kathy Hanson and assisting with enrollment was Mrs. Patrick Colclough.

Plans were made for Guides to attend parade with Scouts and Cubs next Sunday at Gordon United Church, with assembly outside the church at 10.45 a.m.

Parents and guests attending the ceremonies were Mrs. N. L. Lucas, Mrs. Hugo Roldolph, Mrs. Allan, Mrs. J. Starck, Mrs. W. McDowell and Scout Donnie McDowell.

People and Things

HOLLYWOOD—One of show business' closest families—Liberace, brother George and their mom—is split wide open.

The toothy pianist and his violin-playing brother parted professional company a year ago.

But it was not known until now that mom, too, was swept up in the family differences.

"I love both my boys," Mrs.
Frances Liberace told a reporter today. "They have both been wonderful to me. But I cannot watch either until they are back together again."

She added:
"Lee lives in Palm Springs most of the time surrounded by a gang of what I call hillbillies and freeloaders."

She said they were mostly responsible for the breakup with George.

"Lee is too trusting," the mother said. "He doesn't know who his true friends are."

DENVER — Arthur Ernest
Risley filed a complaint in Denver district court Wednesday. He asked for two things:
A divorce from his wife,
Alice, and the family's TV set.

LOS ANGELES — Actress
Elizabeth Taylor, who was believed to have been left a small fortune by her late husband, Mike Todd, Wednesday, was charged with failing to pay two months rent on a house at Tucson, Ariz.

The 26-year-old raven-haired beauty was charged with owing $3,000 in rent for September and October.

TOULON, France—Maurice Tondou, 35-year-old Paris accountant, has not been heard from since setting out last weekend to swim the Mediterranean from France to Tunisia, pushing a rubber raft loaded with food and water supplies.

He had said he eventually planned to swim the Atlantic in the same way.

LEVITTOWN, N.Y. — A private garbage collecting firm that serves 25,000 Long Island families Wednesday began experimenting with a device that disinfects and perfumes its garbage cans.

One of the East Meadow Sanitation Company's 15 trucks has been equipped to leave cans with a lavender scent—The head of the firm that supplies the spray said:
"We decided to use the lavender scent because my wife insisted on it but we are considering a postcard poll to see if home owners might prefer other scents as well. Maybe we'll vary the smell to keep people from getting bored."

"Lilies today, gladiolas tomorrow — you know what I mean?"

Canada Makes

Loan to India

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Canadian Finance Minister J. M.
Macdonnell and High Commissioner C. S. Venkatachar of India Wednesday signed an $8,800,000 loan agreement to finance Indian purchases of Canadian wheat.

It is the second loan made this year, bringing the total to $33,000,000. The first agreement, signed in February, provided for a $25,000,000 loan, of which $24,200,000 was advanced.

The total loan will be repaid in seven equal instalments annually, beginning Dec. 31, 1961.
It will bear an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent, payable annually starting Dec. 31, 1959.

Traffic Victim Dies

VANCOUVER (CP)—William Huish, 69, of Vancouver, who suffered head, leg and internal injuries late Tuesday when struck by a car while walking, died Wednesday night in hospital. He was the 23rd traffic fatality here this year.

ANNE CAMERON EDWARDS, formerly rest warrant issued Oct. 10 and circulated nationally has failed to turn up the lawyer, who was last seen in Victoria Oct. 8.

Sgt. Beaumont said Taylor has disposed of all his holdings in the city and left with his family.

INTIMIDATION — Vancouver police were accused Wednesday of "intimidating witnesses" in a case arising from a Seafarers'
International Union strike Sept.
18.

Lawyer Oris Kirk made the accusation before Magistrate
James Bartman at the trial of Roderick Heinekey, 27-year-old union patrol man and business agent.

Heinekey is charged with obstructing a railway police officer and assault causing bodily harm during the union walkoff from the Canadian Pacific Railway's Princess Patricia.

Lawyer Kirk claimed police had seen his witnesses, demanded their sign statements and told them "you were told to say that."

Mr. Kirk said: "They the police are trying to see there is no defence when we come to trial. I believe the CPR is also

JOBLESS FATHER SENT HIS BOY OUT TO STEAL

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Alton Prichard, 60, was convicted Wednesday of sending his 11-year-old son out to steal. Prichard, who said he was unemployed, pleaded guilty and was given the maximum sentence for contributing to the delinquency of a minor—six months in jail and a $500 fine.

Rocket No. 13
Fails for U.S.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.—The 13th U.S. attempt to launch a satellite ended in failure early today because of "some difficulty with the upper stages" of its launching vehicle.

The army disclosed it had given up hope that the balloon satellite had orbited only two hours and 40 minutes after its Jupiter-C launcher blasted off late Wednesday night.

Brig. Gen. John A. Barclay, commander of the army ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala., said there was "some difficulty with the upper stages" of the launching vehicle, but "we haven't determined precisely what went wrong."

The rocket containing the collapsed 12-foot-diameter sphere was tracked by radio for about six minutes. Then the signals went dead.

It was a disheartening end to an ambitious project for hurling into orbit an object that would be visible to the unaided human eye at distances up to 1,500 miles.

By tracking it from observation points in many lands, scientists had hoped to learn much about the mysteries of that remote area where the earth's atmosphere ends and interplanetary space begins.

And they had hoped to gain experience to help with an even more spectacular undertaking:
a 100-foot balloon satellite off which radio, television and radar signals could be bounced.

That might be attempted next year.

'Shoot the Moon'

TORONTO (CP)—A leading rocket expert says Canada could have made a great contribution to space science instead of pouring $400,000,000 "down the drain" developing the super-sonic CF-105 interceptor aircraft.

GASSY JACK DECLARES HIS HOTEL 'DEIGHTON HOUSE' OPEN (OCT. 2, 1867)

In 1867, where downtown Vancouver stands today, there was a dense forest surrounding a little sawmill settlement. Here "Gassy Jack" Deighton, a talkative old steamboater from the Fraser River, decided to settle and open a hotel.

On October 2, 1867, he raised a flag on its roof and with a barrel of whisky and the help of some loggers, he was launched on his career as a hotel man. He soon became the settlement's best-known character and gave the place its first name—"Gastown."

Later it was to acquire a little more dignity with the name of "Granville," and still later of "Vancouver."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Lucy Kleindienst, aged 15, of Parma Heights, Ohio, for her question:

Who Were the Lake Dwellers?

The Lake Dwellers lived in the springtime of history. The weather was like a lovely April, teeming with life and full of warm promises. For the long cold winter of the Ice Ages was over. The glaciers started to retreat from Northern Europe some 30,000 years ago. Rivers and lakes were swollen and the melting ice lifted the levels of the seas. Rich vegetation sprang up in the damp earth. And all kinds of animals came up from the south to feed on it and on each other. Into this teeming springtime world came the Neolithic, or New Stone Age, Lake Dwellers. They thrived in Europe from 10,000 years ago until the rise of Rome.

We know how the Lake Dwellers lived from the ruins of their villages. These have been found near the shores of lakes in Germany, Switzerland and Italy. We can reconstruct the buildings. All sorts of weapons, tools, ornaments and household utensils left in the ruins give us a clear picture of daily life in the New Stone Age.

Floods were common at this time and large hungry animals prowled the land. So Neolithic Man solved these problems with a house over the water. Posts were driven into the muddy floor of shallow lakes, bays, marshes and rivers. A wooden platform was built across these pilings and on this was built a wooden, thatched house.

When the floods came, the house on stilts floated off as safe as a houseboat. The home on the water was safe from hungry animals. A boy could dangle a fishing rod from his front porch. A girl could set up a weaving loom or dry skins there for clothing. Mother had a fireplace and cooking pots. Little boats were tethered to the pilings to carry passengers to and from the mainland. And some of the larger villages were connected to the mainland by wooden causeways.

At first the Lake Dwellers made tools and weapons from flint and bone. But life was easy and they had time to think. They learned to work metals. They discovered how to make bronze, work gold and finally how to make iron. We have found their axes, hammers, knives, chisels, harpoons, arrowheads, spears, saws, and even an anvil. The ladies had combs, bracelets and fancy hairpins.

The Lake Dwellers were settled people. Hunting was easy and game was plentiful. But they liked to have supplies near at hand. They hunted elk, bear, horse and bison. They fed and tended sheep, goats, swine and oxen. These Lake Dwellers

Highway Detour Set at Pat Bay

New Route Skirts Village Limits To Permit Extension of Runway

SIDNEY—New route of Patricia Bay Highway to permit eastward extension of the east-west runway at the airport will travel along the westward boundary of the village, it was learned here this week.

Extension of the runway from 3,000 to 7,500 feet has been promised by the federal government, but no starting date has been set for the project.

Plans call for the highway to leave the present route at the McTavish Road intersection, and to head northeast, roughly parallel to Lochside Drive. It will cross Weller Avenue about one-quarter mile from the shore, then run parallel to the waterfront to the corner of Eighth and Ocean, where it will meet the village boundary.

PROPERTY STALLED

It will follow Eighth for two blocks, swing west to cross Beacon Avenue, then follow a diagonal to meet the present highway north of Mills Road.

Indecision regarding the road route, which still has not been announced, officially, has been blamed for slowing down property sales along the right of way.

The longer runway at the airport will permit the handling of newer and larger aircraft. This will make Victoria terminal for several long distance air routes, advocates of the project believe.

Brentwood Stays on Run

SIDNEY — Service on the Swartz Bay-Fulford route will be provided by the ferry Brentwood for another few days, according to officials of Gulf Islands Ferry Co. (1951) Ltd.

The regular ferry, Mv. Motor Princess, is undergoing propeller shaft repairs at Yarrows Ltd.

3 Boys Injured In Bike Crash

ALBERNI (CP)—A highway accident in which no car was involved sent three boys to hospital Tuesday night with various injuries.

William Sam, 18, was running up a hill on an unlit stretch of Sprout Lake highway when he collided with a bicycle ridden by Harvey Thomas, 11, and his brother Walter, 6.

Sam's shoulder was fractured. Walter received a fractured femur and his elder brother head injuries.

Demolition Ends Carousing Days Of Pt. Comfort

GALIANO (CP) — Pioneer residents of this and other Gulf Islands are mourning demolition of a famous oasis known as "Point Comfort," on Mayne Island near the lighthouse at the entrance to Active Pass.

The three-storey building, with more than 40 rooms and numerous chimneys, was erected in the early 1890s by the late Warburton Pike and an associate remembered only as "Mr. Maudsley" to be used as a licensed hotel. Many hectic are the stories told of its early days.

THOMAS BENNETT. Among the better-known proprietors was Mayne Island pioneer Thomas Bennett, who operated the hotel and bar for several years, starting in 1898.

During the first decade of this century the premises were purchased by Commander Eustace Maude, veteran officer of the Royal Navy during the reign of Queen Victoria, who arrived on Mayne in 1895.

Col. F. W. Fawkes and his wife, the Lady Constance Fawkes, daughter of the Scottish Earl of Ailsa, took over the hotel from Cmdr. Maude in 1923. They changed its name to Culzean, after Lady Constance's ancestral home.

MORE DIGNIFIED

Under this new management the rip-roaring days of old became more dignified and tennis, croquet and clock golf were featured pastimes in the pleasant garden.

When Lady Constance died in 1946 the property was sold and has been used only spasmodically as a summer resort since that time.

About a year ago the demolition project got under way and today the old Point Comfort hotel is nothing but a nostalgic memory in the minds of hundreds of old-timers who enjoyed its bibulous hospitality.

Girl, 7, Wins North Island Hoop Contest

QUALICUM BEACH — Seven-year-old Beverley Poste of Nanaimo won a moving picture camera as open champion in the Northern Vancouver Island hula hoop contest here.

Never losing her hoop once, she defeated four other finalists for the title.

The contest was held at the corner of Main and Second Avenue under sponsorship of local merchants. RCMP diverted traffic past the crowd and contestants.

Winners in other classes were: pre-school—Sherry Mitchell, Don Skittles, Gale McMillan; all of Qualicum Beach; grades 1-3—Janet Smith and Jim Dinsmore, Parksville; Barbara Zeit, Nanaimo; grades 4-6 — Lila Hocking, Parksville; Eleanor Whinnon, Port Alberni; grades 7-9—Thora Hocking, Parksville; Judy Embree, Port Alberni.

Government House 'Good for Centuries'

SIDNEY—Government House will be ready for occupancy in a few months, and will stand for "three or four hundred years," Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said in an address to Sidney Rotary Club.

"The only things that can destroy it are a bomb or a disastrous earthquake," he said.

He said Vancouver Island probably will have natural gas in two years, and that supervision of all gas installations will be the function of his department.

Mr. Chant explained that the highways department, and not the public works department, is responsible for road construction in B.C.

"Roads are entirely the responsibility of my good friend Mr. Gagliardi, who even tests the curves," he said.

LEGION PLANS SET

Poppy Day Dinner Nov. 8 at Langford

LANGFORD — The annual Remembrance Day dinner will be held here Nov. 8 at 6.30 p.m. in the Canadian Legion Hall, Dunford Avenue.

Plans for the dinner were drawn up by the Women's Auxiliary to Prince Edward Branch, Canadian Legion, Langford, and will be under the direction of the ways and means and social-committees.

The church parade will take place Nov. 9 at St. Matthew's Church at 11 a.m. The service at the Cenotaph, Nov. 11, at 11 a.m., will be followed by the serving of doughnuts and coffee by members of the auxiliary.

The auxiliary was asked to assist the Parent Branch with the sale of poppies.

Election of auxiliary officers will take place Nov. 12 in the Legion hall. Mrs. Brian Goodwin was named chairman of the PUTTIN' ON MY TOP HAT . . .

"Blue blood" Times photographer Irving Strickland, whose name appears in Canada's first social register, today adopted required garb. But sense of duty kept him at assignment on anti-litter campaign which Times supports. (Photo by Bill Halkett—also of social register.)

WHAT A MESS, SAYS MAYOR

City 'Blue Bloods' Are 'Tickled Pink'

Canada's first social register seems doomed to be laughed out of Victoria before it even arrives here.

The 'Ins' From Puck To Press

An advance listing of about 600 Victoria "blue bloods" received here today was greeted with derisive hoots at its galaxy of errors, both of omission and commission.

Many of the citizens listed were kidded unmercifully by friends and business associates. And those who studied the complete list were startled at glaring errors, such as:

Listing of about two dozen people now dead—some for as long as 18 months.

Listing of divorced persons as man and wife at the same address.

Listing of a husband, but not his wife; and, possibly worse, listing a wife and not her husband.

Nearly all of those listed seemed surprised to find themselves included in the "elite" register, for which a charge of $25 per copy is made, available only to those whose names appear.

Some months ago, a questionnaire application form for listing in the register, printed in Toronto, were received by several hundred Victorians.

The majority paid no attention to the forms. None of the "blue bloods" contacted by the Times today said he had replied to the original questionnaire.

But this, apparently, did not stop publication of the names.

Said a member of a prominent family which receives a total of six listings: "None of us answered the queries. As far as I'm concerned, it's a lot of malarkey."

He also mentioned that his wife was the only member of the family not listed.

Russia to Loan Egypt $100 Million for Dam

Technical Aid Also Promised

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev announced today that Russia will loan the United Arab Republic 400,000,000 rubles for construction of the Aswan High Dam on the Nile.

Khrushchev's announcement was carried by Moscow Radio. It was U.S. withdrawal of aid for the dam project that led to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal two years ago.

The ruble loan amounts to about $100,000,000 at the arbitrary Soviet official rate of exchange.

Khrushchev also promised the United Arab Republic the services of technicians and construction equipment for the project. He made his announcement at a reception for UAR vice-president Abdel Hakim Amer in the Kremlin.

In July, 1956, the American and British offers were withdrawn after Egypt concluded a Soviet-sponsored arms deal with Czechoslovakia and the western governments believed she would be unable to honor her other financial commitments.

Nasser countered a month later by nationalizing the Suez Canal and announcing that its $100,000,000 annual earnings would go to finance the dam "without pressure from any nation."

All of the loan offers, including today's, involve only the first stage of the dam construction project. The entire project will take from 12 to 16 years and will cost an estimated $1,300,000,000.

'Working Paper' For Bribe Jury

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson directed today that the jury should be supplied with a working paper on which to record their verdicts in the involved bribery-conspiracy case whose central figure is former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

The judge made his ruling at the start of the 69th day of the trial.

His suggestion, first proposed Wednesday, brought a protest from the defence that it would be an innovation in Canadian law, but the jurist ruled the working paper was necessary because of the complexity of the case and the multiplicity of verdicts possible.

The trial was held up for 25 minutes while counsel argued a legal technical point of law in the absence of the jury. When the jury filed in, prosecutor Victor Dryer resumed his address, now in its third day. This will be followed by the judge's charge expected to take a week.

U.S. WRITER'S VIEW ON CHINA

Signs of Revolt Not in Evidence

This is the sixth and last of a series of articles by special NEA correspondent John Strohm on his tour of Communist China.

By JOHN STROHM

NEW YORK—Questions often asked me since my 50-hour flight home after a tour of Red China are:

"How do the Chinese people live, eat and work under communism? What's happened to religion, the schools? Are they docile or will they ever revolt?"

A consolidated reply would be something like this:

The food is adequate, the housing vastly improved. Schools, churches and all means of public expression are in the complete service of the state. There was no visible evidence of any disposition to resist regimentation.

Light office work earns a rice or flour ration of a pound a day. Workers in steel plants and coal mines get up to two pounds a day. Every individual can buy 40 cents worth of meat (half a pound) every week, with sometimes an extra ration for Sundays. Each family gets a pound of beef monthly and 10 ounces of edible oil monthly per person.

The cotton cloth ration is up to six yards a year per person. Chinese wages are edging up. In the two dozen plants I visited wages average about $25 a month. The lowest paid workers get about $12; the highest paid, $40. Factory managers and top officials get $60 to $75 a month. The idea of high wages for managers, artists and intellectuals such as are paid in the Soviet Union would be sinful in China.

TRADE CONGRESS PROTESTS

Arbitration End Planned by U.K.

LONDON (AP)—The British government is abolishing compulsory arbitration for labor disputes. Labor Minister Ian Macleod announced Wednesday night the act setting up industrial tribunals with legally-binding powers will be brought to an end in six months. It became law seven years ago.

The only government arbitration machinery left will be industrial courts, whose rulings are not binding.

The Trades Union Congress immediately denounced the new move. One union leader said: "There will be a strike a day for a year."

Employers have complained that compulsory arbitration, although easily enforced against a company, could not easily be applied against workers.

FEET FROZEN AT 53 BELOW

Fliers Survive Freezing Cold

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—An Anchorage bush pilot and his passenger, trapped a week in the wilderness with the mercury dropping to 35 degrees below zero, were safe today.

Pilot Kenneth Oldham was picked up by an army helicopter Tuesday night. Wednesday, Sgt. Stefan J. Wiedemann, a military photographer at Ft. Richardson, was found eight miles from their downed plane, with both feet frozen, but trying to walk out.

The two left Chistochina for McCarthy a week ago Tuesday in a light plane equipped only with wheels. They landed in the Nabesna Glacier area about 50 miles east of Nabesna Village, and then the snow came.

They built a lean-to, Oldham told his rescuers, and spent most of the next several days in sleeping bags in the freezing cold. A flying friend of Oldham's, Fred Frakes of Anchorage, spotted both men from the air and dropped sleeping gear and rations to them.

Then Wiedemann started to walk out. Frakes located him about five miles from the downed plane and dropped snowshoes to him.

PEACEFUL RETURN

'No Force' Says Chiang

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek today renounced the use of force as the principal means of returning to the Communist-held Chinese mainland.

In a joint communique ending three days of talks with U.S. State Secretary Dulles, Chiang said a return to the mainland still is his sacred mission but "the foundation of this mission resides in the minds and the hearts of the Chinese people."

Dulles told Nationalist leaders at a banquet Wednesday night he considers the Communist Chinese regime just a passing phase.

The principal means of achieving Chiang's mission successfully is through nationalism, democracy and social well-being, "and not the use of force," the communique said.

The communique also came a step closer toward an American commitment to defend the Nationalist-held offshore islands, although it did not make such a flat guarantee.

The statement said that the United States and the Nationalist regime "recognized that under present conditions the defense of the Quemoy islands together with the Matsu islands is closely related to the defense of Formosa and Penghu in the Formosa Strait."

This was interpreted as a new warning that any Red attempt to take the offshore islands might provoke U.S. intervention.

Small Powers' A-Test Ban Plan Failing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Attempts by small UN powers to work out a plan for halting nuclear weapon tests acceptable to both the United States and Russia appeared today to have run into a stone wall.

With both the major powers standing fast on their opposing positions, there seemed little hope of formulating any resolution on cessation of tests that would win unanimous support in the General Assembly.

Swedish Foreign Minister Osten Unden, who had headed the small-power move, was reported to have given up. He had hoped to prod the nuclear powers into a preliminary agreement that would get the Geneva talks off to a good start Oct. 31.

PROMINENTS AMONG 'OUTS'

Strangely missing from the strange register are such socially prominent Victorians as:

Princess Chikmatoff.

Capt. and Mrs. Massey Gooden.

Symphony conductor Hans Gruber.

Mrs. W. C. Woodward who entertained Princess Margaret.

Miss Kathleen Agnew.

Robin Dunsmuir, scion of the island's most famous family.

Harry P. Hodges, husband of Senator Nancy Hodges.

And numerous others.

LADY DOCKER ASKS
What Ladders Were Climbed?
MONTREAL (UPI)—Lady Norah Docker thinks Canada's new social register is "disappointing."

"Really, this social register of yours," she said, "I don't think it registers at all."

Her three-quarter-length white ermine coat (reputed cost $9,000) flapping as she walked, Lady Docker breezed into town late Wednesday, chatting brightly.

She and her 19-year-old son, Lance, were accompanying her husband on a business trip.

Some of those listed aren't at all happy about it, because of the ribbing they are already getting. One has threatened to investigate the possibility of bringing legal suit.

Legal opinion is that suit can be brought, but that would be difficult to win, unless malicious intent or actual financial damage could be proven.

Canada does not have as strict an "invasion of privacy" statute as the United States.

Typical of reaction to the list of "Victoria's 300" was that of Mayor Percy Scurrell, who, with Mrs. Scurrell, is listed. "I roared with laughter when I read it," he said. "What a mess! Wherever did they get those names?"

All but two members of the city council appear. Omitted are Aldermen Elmer McEwen and Hugh Ramsay.

Don Smith is the lone city MLA who does not appear in the registry.

Victoria's MP, A. W. deB. McPhillips, a member of a very old and prominent Canadian family, is not listed.

Neither is Defence Minister George Pearkes, although his name may appear in the Ottawa section.

Missing, too, are Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane of the B.C. Supreme Court; Anglican Archbishop of B.C., Most Rev. Harold E. Sexton; Most Rev. James E. Hill, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria; Robin Dunsmeuir, heir to one of B.C.'s best-known names.

NAVY IGNORED

The navy, which plays such a prominent part in Victoria's social activities, gets short shrift, with a commander or two and a lieutenant listed. No mention is made of flag officer, Pacific Coast, his chief of staff, or the commanding officer of HMCS Naden. There isn't a single CO of a Pacific Command ship in the list.

On the other side of the ledger, some very surprised citizens found their names listed. One was commercial fisherman Elgin Neish, whose far left-wing beliefs are well-known. Said Mrs. Neish: "When we received the application form, we treated it as a joke, and threw it away."

In the Times news room, photographers Irving Strickland and Bill Halkett, and mail clerk Freeman King (known best as a "good scout") took mock bows at being included.

SURPRISING OMISSION

They lorded it over their opposition numbers on the Colonial staff, who weren't included.

Publishers of both papers were listed, but the editor of only one.

Another surprising omission was Hubert Wallace, brother of B.C.'s former lieutenant-governor, president of the Community Chest, head of Yarrow's Ltd., for years a leading citizen. But the boss of Victoria's other major shipyard, Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, appears.

Among an amazing assortment of misspelled names and wrong addresses, Brig. F. N. Cabellus has real cause for complaint. The register demotes him to colonel.

Hans Gruber, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, whose wife also is not only socially prominent but well known in her own right music ally, finds no place in the register. However, the Empress Hotel's Billy Tickle and dance band leader Len Acres made the grade. So did radio announcer Tippy O'Neill.

Those who know Victoria's society best raised their eyebrows at finding no trace of such socially prominent people as Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. Henderson, Capt. and Mrs. Massey Gooden, Princess Chikmaloff, Mrs. R. W. Gibson, Mrs. W. G. Woodward, the D'Arcy McGees, Kathleen Agnew.

But it's doubtful if many tears are being shed by those left out. It would appear that Victoria's own social register will continue to be the city directory.

Firework Sale Restrictions Set

LANGFORD — Sale, display, and use of fireworks will be limited in Langford Fire Protection District to the period between Oct. 24 and Nov. 1 inclusive. Fire Chief Rod Bayles has announced.

List for Social 'Blue Book' Drafted by Interior Visitor

Many Victorians are wondering today just how the names for the "social register" were obtained.

Some recalled the visit to the city in September, 1957 of Miss Joan Pritchard, an Okanagan woman who was compiling lists. The way Miss Joan Pritchard looked at it then, it was to be "a list of the socially prominent, of course, but also a real record of the men and women who have helped to make our country great."

At the time Miss Pritchard was gathering names.

Fact is, she had been gathering names in many parts of British Columbia, and for several months, before she reached Victoria.

In her briefcase she had names of descendants of settlers, names of British Columbians who had, to use her own words, "contributed or were contributing something to the growth and culture of this province."

Mayor Behind New Bylaw On Fireworks

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said he would support a draft bylaw prohibiting fireworks sales after 6 p.m. on Halloween despite a request for a change.

A. J. Burns, lawyer for The Orient, a Government Street store, applied this morning for permission to address council before it gave final reading on the bylaw later today.

Mr. Burns was expected to oppose the bylaw on the grounds that the store purchased a large supply of fireworks in the expectation it would be able to sell them up until 9 p.m. Friday.

"In the interests of the public, I will still support the bylaw," the mayor said when informed of the application for a hearing.

The bylaw would permit sale of fireworks only on Oct. 29, 30 and 31 and only before 6 p.m. those days.

Under the present fire regulations, storekeepers must take out a $1 permit to stock fireworks or face prosecution and possible $100 fine.

Fire Chief James Bayliss said the regulations forbid display of fireworks without the permit.

names of men and women in public life.

She explained that the same sort of thing was going on in each province across Canada.

"When we have the roster complete," she said, "the first Social Register of Canada will be published."

An optimist at heart, Miss Pritchard expected that the book would be off the press before the end of 1958. But it took several upheavals, many changes among sponsors and many number of stories in newspapers and magazines to launch the book.

Premier showing was in Montreal last Friday where one of the first issues was placed on a red velvet covered pedestal and "presented" with soft music and colored lights.

It was originally planned that the first copy, suitably engraved and bound, would be presented to Her Majesty the Queen.

Miss Pritchard was born at Westbank near Kelowna; started in radio work in the interior city and later moved to eastern Canada where, for 10 years, she worked in radio stations at Hamilton and Toronto.

She was one of a group of Canadian press women who were given visas to visit Russia in 1953 and she took a tape recorder with her behind the Iron Curtain and recorded talks with Russians through interpreters.

CPA Tourist Proposal First Among Airlines

OTTAWA (CP) — CPA witness Frederic Kimball said today that no known airline has undertaken what CPA proposes — to make money by creating a new trans-Continental route bearing 80 per cent tourist traffic.

The American aviation consultant agreed with TCA counsel John G. Edison that the average American airline carries only 36.6 per cent in tourist passengers and 63.4 per cent in first-class fares.

TCA currently carries about 63 per cent in first-class fares and 37 per cent in tourists. CPA proposes to compete against TCA by offering 80 per cent of its service to tourists and only 20 per cent in first-class fares.

Mr. Edison introduced evidence to show that one U.S. airline, TWA Airlines, had been attempting to boost its proportion of tourist traffic and last year showed a deficit of $5,000,000 on total revenue of $200,000,000.

Mr. Kimball agreed that this was the case but said the deficit did not necessarily come from the tourist boost attempt. TWA, he claimed, had other problems to solve.

Wednesday Mr. Edison suggested that if Canada needs two trans-Continental airlines, the U.S. should have 10 instead of the four it now has.

250 Negro Women Herded in Trucks

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Some 250 singing, dancing Negro women were arrested and driven away in police trucks Wednesday when they protested against having to carry identity books.

The arrests brought the number of Negro women arrested after making identity book protests to 750 in the last few days.

Compromise Ends Union Feuding

MONTREAL (CP) — Two groups feuding for control of the 2,000-member National Association of Marine Engineers Incorporated (N.A.M.E.) have reached a compromise agreement, it was announced Wednesday.

President Richard G. Greaves said the compromise was reached during a series of meetings and negotiations and that the stage has been set for unifying the association's ranks. The association represents engineers on the Great Lakes and the west and east coasts.

Mr. Greaves also announced he plans to call a national convention early next year. He added that all legal proceedings launched during the last two years have been terminated.

CHURCH HOLIDAY HIS AIM

Reeve's Motive 'Respect'

School trustee, R. H. Reeve, who drew criticism from as far as Toronto for attacking Remembrance Day as "hypocrisy," said today he has no regrets for his statement.

"I have no regrets because I believe I spoke for a good cause," he said. "I wanted to point out that in some respects, Remembrance Day has become something of a circus—just another holiday."

"I think it should be treated with a much deeper respect than is given it now."

Mr. Reeve said Remembrance Day should be treated as a "holy day" instead of a holiday. People should observe it in

done more for Remembrance Day than an angry outcry in Toronto labelling him as a "crackpot."

Mr. Reeve said that the schools were making every effort to impart the deep significance of Remembrance Day to students but that this was not being done in the home.

"As a school trustee, I have even been accused of permitting 'patriotic drivel' to be fed to the children" through this program," he said.

"This shows how little respect there is among some persons for Remembrance Day."

Power and Utilities Invest Billions in Canada's Development

Throughout Canada as a whole, power and public utilities companies are spending close to three billion dollars this year in capital investment. This reflection of confidence in Canada's future is based on the fact that ten years ago. The same advance is evident in varying degrees on other types of household appliances.

In eastern Canada new generating capacity is being tapped at a rate of 30 per cent

Maritimes exist in the newly-developed Manicouagan River power site near Baie Comeau and in the Hamilton Falls, in Labrador which has been acquired by The British Newfoundland Corporation.

It has been estimated that the cost of transmitting 130,000 kw of power from the Hamilton River to Moncton in the heart of the Maritimes would be 4½ mills. If 260,000 kw were delivered the costs would possibly be as low as 2½ mills.

hp is closer to the Maritimes than the Hamilton Falls and would undoubtedly have power to spare after serving the growing industrial community of the north shore of the St. Lawrence.

In British Columbia where the need for power is urgent expansion plans are also under way. Private estimates of the province's total potential for power run between 20 million and 30 million hp.

Major supplier of power in the lower mainland area is B.C. Electric. Demands by the company's customers in the past 10 years have increased 300 per cent.

of a 100 million thermal generating plant near Iloilo will be in service. In 1959 the company's largest hydro project, the $56.6 million second stage development of Bridge River will add 345,000 hp to the company's generating capacity.

Canada's power and utility services are on the march. Slightly more than half of the $2.9 billion total will be spent on new power plants, dams, power lines, cables, etc.

The new regime is putting a surprisingly high priority on apartment buildings for industrial workers. Near Hankow a hundred apartment buildings were put up before they started building the new steel mills.

"Go ahead, knock on any door you like," the secretary told me when I asked to visit homes of workers. The door I knocked on opened into a large, clean one-room apartment for a family of seven. A bed—big but a bit crowded for seven—stood in one corner. Their clothes hung in wardrobes. They had an alarm clock and a thermos bottle for hot water, two important symbols of an improved standard of living.

Three families shared a hole-in-the-floor toilet and a stone tub laundry. They share the same kitchen and cook over a mud mortar stove, or over a small jar filled with charcoal. Their rent bill is $1.25 a month. In another worker's apartment in Shenyang, the family of eight has a big room with two beds and a tiny separate kitchen equipped with gas and a stone sink and running water. For monthly rent of $4 they also get a private latrine.

Diploma for Mom

A diploma on the wall testified that mother has learned to read, and is now teaching others. Her husband operates a lathe, gets a very high salary of $48 a month. Besides the diploma was a red paper entitled Family Program and Budget, listing outgo as $14 a month for grain; $10 for vegetables; $4 for water, gas, electricity and rent; $2.80 for transportation. There were some miscellaneous expenses and a little left over for savings. Also, the housewife agrees to keep rooms clean, observe sanitation rules and teach them to the family, educate her children and be a good mother.

The old homes in the cities and in the country are not nearly so nice, have no running water, or inside plumbing. The residents carry water from open wells or from ponds where they do the family washing. The New China does insist that all water be boiled before drinking and the typhoid rate is sharply down.

Textile workers in Peiping invited me to visit their bachelor girls' apartment. Six giggling girls in pigtails, trousers, and wearing no makeup, shared the room with double-decked beds. Rent, 15 cents a month each. The girls had joined the militia and were learning to fire rifles. One of them showed me a poem she'd written about Chinese indignation over American "imperialism" called "Angry Fire."

Wonderful Food

The Chinese food was wonderful. And I became quite adept at reaching out with my chopsticks to snare a bit of bamboo shoot, goose gizzard or sweet-sour pork as we all ate out of the same dishes. Such delicacies as bird's nest soup and sharks' fins are available for a dollar a plate, but must be ordered in advance. And they apologized that snakes, a Cantonese delicacy, are not available until winter "when their fat helps keep you warm."

Suicide No. 182

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A San Francisco housewife, mother of two children, Wednesday became the 182nd person known to have leaped to death from the Golden Gate Bridge. Mrs. Barbara May Wase-Miller, 33, drove her car to the middle of the bridge, parked it and disappeared over a railing.

I shopped the stores in every town and was amazed at the quantity and variety of goods available and the fact people were buying them. Here are some price tags—judge these against the wage earner's average monthly salary of $25 a month.

Socks, 20 cents; towels, 40 cents; wool sweater, $9.20; ham, 80 cents a pound; chicken, 44 cents a pound; rubber boots, $5.80; Chinese cloth shoes, $7.40; rice, 5 cents a pound; umbrella, 50 cents; ladies' cotton jacket, $5.45; leather jacket, $40; blue cotton cloth, 16 cents a foot; cotton goods, 50 cents a yard; basketball, $3.60.

Illiteracy Going

The Chinese assert they are stamping out illiteracy, and many counties claim they already have. Most communes and factories hold adult classes in reading and writing. Education is compulsory for seven years; middle school is optional; college entrance is by examination only.

The schools of China today from kindergarten to college are glorified workshops. This follows the general Communist line greatly intensified in recent months, that "education must be combined with productive labor."

So schools adopt mountains and 10 to 12-year-olds take a month's trip to plant trees.

The College of Engineering near Hankow in five years of existence has an enrollment of 7,500. "We don't give degrees," the secretary told me, indicating degrees were out of step with socialism. In classroom factories the students manufactured electric motors and punch presses.

"In this way students develop into cultured laborers with socialist consciousness," I was told.

by a professor of the new line. "Besides," he added, "the work while-you-study program creates wealth for socialism."

On the Farm

Every Chinese going to school today must study agriculture on the theory that "all must work on the farm some time."

Educators have tackled the monumental task of putting Chinese picture writing into the Roman alphabet. It takes a gigantic typewriter to type Chinese, and then only in a limited 3,000-word vocabulary. So all papers and records are hand written.

Another problem is the score of spoken dialects. My interpreter had to have an interpreter in Canton!

Every factory has a "Worker's Palace of Culture" where they show movies, have rooms for discussion groups on new factory methods or Marxism, for playing pingpong or chess.

The Chinese Opera is still drawing sell-out crowds in Peiping where I saw the most famous Chinese actor of the past 40 years: Mei Lan Fang. He's in his sixties, always takes a woman's part, sings and talks in high falsetto to accompaniment of the discordant two-stringed violin and ear-splitting cymbals.

Churches

One Sunday morning in Nanking I attended the Church of Christ, a Buddhist temple and a Catholic church with a "Friends of World Peace" sign.

McPHILLIPS CHIDES VICTORIA

Strike Fuss 'Bad Publicity'

Telegrams and calls for federal assistance during the steamship service strike here last summer brought continental wide bad publicity for Victoria, city member of Parliament, A. DeB. McPhillips, said Wednesday.

"There was altogether too much notoriety given this strike by people who should have known better," he told Victoria Progressive Conservative Constituency Association.

Mr. McPhillips said at the time, only the CPR was struck and there were several other means of getting off and on the Island.

But the telegrams and calls for help to Ottawa showed, "a certain amount of hysteria, which did not do Vancouver Island and in particular, Victoria, any good."

It resulted in a great many queries from United States residents wondering whether they could travel here, the speaker said.

It was not an emergency situation, "... the federal government could not interfere," he added.

About 80 were present for the meeting at the Business and Professional Women's Club-rooms.

Toronto Still Off, Industrials Recover

Industrials were wiping out early losses today but the Toronto stock market remained off in moderate closing trading. Base metals also recovered slightly but golds and western oils were weaker.

Among industrials International Nickel gained 1/2 at 88 1/2 and Ford A was ahead 1/2. Gains of 1/2 went to Bell Telephone, B-A Oil and Dominion Stores. Most losses were around 1/2 point.

Opemiska was ahead 1/2 at 10 1/2 and Geco cut its 1/2 loss in half as coppers recovered. Labrador remained off 1/2 and Consolidated Mining saw its loss stretched to 1/2.

A rally in rails left the New York market mixed today. Declines featured motor, metal, chemical, oil and electronic issues. Tobaccos were paced by a three-point jump in Lorillard. All the motors were lower with GM and Chrysler under most pressure. Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Texas Co. dipped in the oils.

AT TORONTO Hollinger lost 1/2 at 27 1/2 and coupled with McIntyre's 1 1/2 loss at 85 1/2, kept golds down. Pacific Petroleum eased 1/2 at 1 1/2 and Royalite 1/2 at 1 1/2 as western oils remained off.

Macfie was the most active issue trading 126,500 shares. It lost 3 1/2 cents at 13 1/2.

AT NEW YORK International Nickel, Aluminum Ltd. and Hudson Bay Mining were each down 1/2 in the Canadian section. Dome Mines gained a fraction. American stock exchange prices were mixed. Canadian Marconi and Sapphire Petroleum moved ahead.

AT MONTREAL prices were irregularly lower in active trading today on the stock exchange. The base metals were mixed. Aluminum lost 1/2 at 32 1/2, while Hudson Bay was up 1/2 at 59 1/2.

Down 1/2 in the steels were Steelco at 65 1/2, Algoma at 32 1/2, and Dominion Steel at 23. Argus declined 1/2 at 27 and Dominion Foundries was off 1/2 at 36 1/2.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet today. Sentiment was adversely affected by the overnight decline on Wall Street.

Gilt-edged securities showed early firmness but renewed selling subsequently developed. Industrials were quiet and mainly easier.

Oil shares opened dull but later rallied. South African gold shares were selectively firm but base metals were dull.

AT VANCOUVER prices were slightly lower on a dull market during the afternoon. Silver Ridge moved 4,500 at 14. Tidal

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat futures, under pressure most of the time, rallied late today as buying increased.

After being off a half-a-cent in early transactions, most contracts steadied near the close of the board of trade with prices fractionally above previous closes. Short-covering and profit-taking were credited for the upturn.

Oats and barley moved narrowly in dull trade. Shippers were buyers in both grains and trade reports indicated small parcel sales were made, mostly to the United Kingdom. Rye was steady in thin trade. Overnight export wheat loadings included. West Germany, 525,000 bushels, Japan 350,000, United Kingdom 65,000 and The Netherlands 40,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, TWA and domestic wheat were up 1/2 cent from Wednesday.

WINNIPEG (CPLA)—Dealings were quiet today on the Winnipeg grain exchange with prices generally holding to narrow limits due to light offerings more than any aggressive demand.

There was evidence of modest export in oats, barley and flax. Best activity was in flax where international interests and ex-

148 HOMELESS IN SAINT JOHN FIRE

Tumbling Wall Kills Fireman

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Fire Chief H. S. Knight today estimated loss at $100,000 in a fire that raced through seven buildings in Saint John's north end killing one fireman, injuring three and leaving 26 families homeless.

The number of persons left homeless has been estimated at 148. An official count was not available because of the large number of children in many families and their dispersment to welfare agencies and relatives' homes for temporary shelter.

The 29-year firefighting career of Capt. L. J. Hayward was ended four months short of retirement when he was trapped beneath a falling wall.

ALMOST BURIED

About six feet from where Hayward was found, 24-year-old John Kyle was almost buried in rubble. He was freed in a hectic four-hour battle with chain saws and a truck crane.

He was suffering from shock and faced possible leg amputation after being pinned by a heavy beam.

A Lancaster contractor, George C. Chittick, directed the rescue operations that freed Kyle. With him were a score of construction workers, hydro employees, civil defence members and a contingent from the Canadian Army Ordnance Corps at nearby Coldbrook.

The Red Cross disaster relief organization set up emergency headquarters to assist the homeless.

RE-ELECTED president of the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council is Mrs. E. G. D. Wills, 648 Baxter. Mrs. Wills heads a federation of 31 local PTA groups totaling over 5,000 members. The council is also affiliated with the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation. Mrs. Wills joined Craigflower PTA 11 years ago and has been corresponding secretary and vice-president of the council prior to her election last year as president.

Pickpocket Testament To Crime

DENVER (AP)—While Leroy Hippel raised his arms, two men swiftly emptied his pockets.

The robbery was seen by policeman J. D. Bates and Paul Majors, who caught the two after a foot chase. The loot: A pocket edition of the New Testament.

"I thought it was a wallet," said one of the men.

Police said the book would have been useless to the pair. Neither can read.

MAXIMUM FISH

Power Dams Could Boost Salmon Haul

Power dams and reservoirs on the Fraser River could reduce the high mortality rate of spawning fish and bring the maximum development of salmon fish resources, a prominent engineer claimed today in Victoria.

Val Gwyther told Victoria Rotarians that regulation of water flow, temperature and sediment can be "and have been provided" in fish works constructed in conjunction with power dams and reservoirs.

A member of the Fraser River Multiple Use Committee, Mr. Gwyther suggested special legislation should be brought down to create an organization to investigate and evaluate all the resources of the Fraser River Basin.

The present conflict between fish and power interests results from a misconception, Mr. Gwyther said.

Development of the Fraser is hampered because fisheries people appeared to be concerned only in the maintenance of present fish by natural spawning, Rotarians were told.

HIT BY FLOODS

"Natural spawning conditions are not the best conditions for propagation of salmon," he said. "Spawning beds are sometimes totally obliterated by floods. Low water in summer months is often a barrier to spawning fish. Sometimes it exposes eggs to frost. Unsanitary conditions in egg nests are also a detriment to survival."

B.C.'s 1,500 acres of spawning beds, which vary in degree of productivity with nature's ability to control water, are "hopelessly inefficient and it is readily possible to improve this condition through regulation provided by dams and reservoirs."

He pointed to the Leavenworth, Wash., hatchery where adult salmon escapement to hatchery in the first year was 900 fish. Escapement to the hatchery between 1950-57 ranged from 98,000 to 157,000 fish.

WASTE CHARGED

"Before 1940 there was no sockeye in Wenatchee Lake," Mr. Gwyther said. "Not only has the hatchery established an important sockeye fishery, but there is no indication of a four-year cycle. The run is substantially the same each year."

He charged there is an "appreciable waste of salmon production, and therefore food, in fishery management."

"Requirements in adults for this year's escapement from Chilco Lake of 28,000,000 downstream migrants were about 600,000 spawning adults. With artificial spawning this would require 100,000 adults and with hatchery propagation, only about 20,000 adults."

If the excess of requirements in artificial spawning were processed at tidewater, an increase in dollar value amounting to $1,700,000 would be made available, said Mr. Gwyther. He estimated this increased production with hatchery propagation to be about $1,900,000 per year.

Up-Island Campaign Organized

Comox MLA Dan Campbell has launched a campaign in five communities for more up-island roads, and plans to organize more.

He has set up "North Island Road" committees to "turn miles of promises into miles of roads."

When he has enlisted support in northern areas—three more committee sites are envisaged—Mr. Campbell will move his new road campaign south.

Objectives of the committees are to foster provincial and federal co-operation toward linking the north end of the island with existing highway network, to speed up target dates for road projects, stimulate interest in transportation problems, prepare briefs for submission to governments, and rouse public interest in road plans.

"I started last week, and now have committees at Alert Bay, Port Hardy, Port Alice, Campbell River, and in the Nimpkish area," he said in Courtenay today. "I will organize Kelsey Bay Nov. 14."

He hopes to reach Holberg, Port McNeill, and Solntula shortly, then move from Courtenay south.

"The plan is for each committee to carry on itself toward the common objective," he said.

While making his organizing trip last week from Kelsey Bay to Alert Bay by sealer, the vessel was caught in a storm, the engine broke down, the boat started to leak, and passengers and crew bailed for their lives before they won partial shelter at Boat Bay.

"After my experience with that form of transportation, my voice is going to be heard more loudly and more often on the subject of roads for the north island," he said. "It is intolerable that these communities should be denied access."

Obstruction In Arrest Brings Fine

A young naval seaman who insisted on going to the lockup with a sailor already under arrest was fined $25 in city police court today for obstructing an officer.

William K. Astroppe pleaded guilty to a charge of obstructing Cons. Peter Voth at Douglas and Cormorant at midnight Wednesday.

He had arrested Alan Sandercott on a charge of being drunk in public when Astroppe came along and said he would take Sandercott back to base.

Cons. Voth said he was taking Sandercott in to the station and warned Astroppe not to interfere.

"If you take him, you take me," the constable quoted Astroppe. He warned the sailor again and Astroppe replied:

"If you take one, you take all."

At this point the constable arrested Astroppe, he said, and Astroppe took the officer's arm in an effort to stop the procession.

"You won't lock me up unless you shoot me," was Astroppe's final remark before going to jail.

Loss of 'Touch' With Employees Big Blunder, Personnel Meet Told

Management personnel have lost the art of communicating with employees and this position has been "usurped" by unions, J. J. Hodgins, vice-president, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. told 200 delegates attending the 20th annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association here today.

The biggest blunder that management has made was failure to preserve the art of getting true facts to our people," he said in the convention's keynote address.

He advocated more time for employees and less time for "things."

The company executive said personnel relations need urgent diagnosis and treatment "because we have too much labor-management unrest for a free economy."

And he added, "my observations are that personnel departments surround themselves with an ivory tower," and that persons in the departments are searching for professional status rather than the preferred position as "generalists" with an understanding of the "whole picture."

There has been too much concentration on methods involving the mass, paternalistic approach in relation to employees, rather than development of ideas that preserve individual human dignity, he said.

In officially opening the convention, Labor Minister Lyle Wicks told delegates that with personnel management the link between employees and top management, there were in a position to combat current industrial unrest.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canada's first Social Credit premier, the late William Aberhart, recruited many of his supporters as principal of Crescent Heights High School, says an ex-Calgarian now living in Victoria.

"He had an absolute genius for teaching mathematics," says this old student. "After all but two in our class had failed in maths, he took it over himself and we got through a year's work in one term."

He once expelled two of us for smoking in school, but took us back 24 hours later when he had truly repented. It was largely because of this that we campaigned for him in his first bid for election."

Mr. Aberhart became premier of Alberta in 1935 and died in Vancouver in 1943.

Nature's wonders never cease.

Mrs. D. Gosse of 646 Cornwall strolled in her garden Wednesday morning and discovered a camellia tree in blossom.

"I am amazed," she said. "Normally our camellias bloom in March and are finished by the end of April or early May."

"I would love to know if any other Times readers have camellias in blossom now."

Many readers agree with me that Victoria offers little opportunity for sailors to do what they want to do on wet afternoons (this column Oct. 16).

"I am surprised that no one here organizes dances and social evenings where visiting sailors can meet nice girls," writes Miss A. C. Fennemore of Sook Street.

"Other cities do this—why not Victoria?" I understand the Seamen's Institute on Superior Street used to hold dances, but now only caters for sailors seeking monastic entertainment in the lounge or the games room.

"It is significant," says Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of Victoria College, that so many of our successful scholars are the children of faculty members.

"I trust this will not promote an investigation or a royal commission."

The Jehovah's Witnesses have taken me to task for saying they called at my house with a collection box.

It must be admitted they were selling their paper The Watchtower, and I used the term "collecting" in a broad sense.

"Our organization is and has always been an entirely non-political, non-profit, non-commercial, charitable religious corporation, devoted exclusively to Bible education," writes W. Milliken of Victoria. "We do not collect."

CITY BUILDING INSPECTOR SINCE 1946, William Oosterink today tendered his resignation effective Nov. 30. He was due to retire next August. Trained as an architect in his native Holland, he was gassed during the First World War while serving with the Canadian Army. He was active in the building industry in Saskatoon before coming here as a contractor and house designer in 1935. Mr. Oosterink said he intends to take an extended holiday with his wife in Arizona, returning next spring, before making any further plans.

Chest Collections Near $200,000

The Community Chest total at noon today stood at $183,949 towards the $200,000 objective.

Close to $4,000 came in this morning.

Nearly $45,000 has been collected in the residential campaign and Chest officials expect at least $60,000 before final returns are in.

Hospital giving — from employees — is up 60 per cent over last year, exceeding the quota set. Social Agency Service have also given more than their quota. They have contributed $1,176, which is 43 per cent more than in 1957.

Despite volunteer canvassing of the residential district, some families have been missed. Chest officials ask that householders who have not been approached and who wish to donate call EV 5-6708.

Mayor Seeks Bennett Talk On Auditorium

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said he is trying to arrange an interview with Premier W. A. C. Bennett to ask for a provincial grant for a civic auditorium.

"I've got a call in asking for an appointment," he said. Premier Bennett is scheduled to leave for a holiday in a few days.

Mayor Scurrell was authorized by Inter-municipal committee to enquire about possibilities of a grant after Esquimalt council had discussed the proposed $2,750,000 Great Victoria auditorium.

Esquimalt council earlier this week indicated it would require full details of the proposal before taking any action.

"All I want is the question to be put to the voters to let them decide whether they want an auditorium," the mayor commented on Esquimalt's stand.

"I think an auditorium should pay its operating expenses but not its initial capital cost."

"If Memorial Arena can make between $23,500 and $60,000 operating profit a year, an auditorium certainly should be able to pay its operating expenses."

$35 Fine Levied On Speedy Driver

When off-duty policeman Earle Doyle was passed by a car at high speed on crowded Gorge Road one Sunday afternoon three weeks ago he took chase and was led at speeds up to 70 miles an hour before stopping the driver.

In city police court today Lawrence T. Reed, 572 Dupplin, was found guilty of careless driving and fined $35.

"Certainly you deserve suspension," Magistrate H. C. Hall told him, but restricted Reed's licence to business driving only for one month.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Why is Donaldson Island in Sooke called Secretary Island and Billings Spit called Jackson Spit? K.A.

A. Local usage only has made the change. Officially, the names Donaldson and Billings still stand. Donaldson Island was named after an early resident, and Billings Spit was named in 1846 after a W. T. Billings, who was on a survey vessel charting the waters. Jackson Spit is called that by local residents after a family of that name who lived there years ago. But there is no record why Donaldson Island should be called Secretary Island nowadays.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By STUART KEATE

The Social Register

When the Social Register people sent me a letter last Spring I felt I had to go along, for one reason:

I could never be snobbish enough to stay out.

This was an immense gamble, but it has been confirmed by the lists released today.

This is the most democratic book ever published in Canada.

It is a faithful montage of the people of this country. Everyone is in.

If there is a bum in Vic-

a who didn't make the grade, he escaped my notice.

In a quick run through the list, I saw that our best bootlegger was honored, and so were the town's leading card-sharks and bookies.

There is at least one fellow in the list who did time for assault and battery, and another who was kicked out of a Victoria service club for using language that would make a dogface blush. There are deadbeats who have been one jump ahead of the sheriff for years. There are Communists whose greatest pleasure would be to garrote each and every one of their co-listees. There are women who haven't drawn a sober breath since graduation day at the seminary and men who still show the scars of the day their hands were caught in the cheque-writing machine.

In short, this is an accurate reflection of Canadian people who live and die, love and hate; do good things and bad, brawl and make up, play golf and gin, watch birds and burlesque, sin and repent, chisel and redress; who love freedom and hate it; the cowards and the courageous, the weak and the noble, the beasts and the beautiful.

So up the Social Register!

It's only those damned snobs like Hugh Henderson and Monty Drake who stay out. Shame on yez both.

The talks, also attended by representatives from University of British Columbia, will continue Friday. The conference was called by Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

City Army Officer Ends 'Brass' Course

Major P. T. Nation, attached to army headquarters here, will graduate Friday from a special nine-week course at the Canadian senior officers' school in Kingston, Ont.

The course is designed for training potential regimental commanders, providing instruction in the latest doctrines, training, skills and habits of command.

He will be among 13 Canadian and two British army majors graduating in this year's class from the three-year-old school.

MAXIMUM FISH

Power Dams Could Boost Salmon Haul

Power dams and reservoirs on the Fraser River could reduce the high mortality rate of spawning fish and bring the maximum development of salmon fish resources, a prominent engineer claimed today in Victoria.

Val Gwyther told Victoria Rotarians that regulation of water flow, temperature and sediment can be "and have been provided" in fish works constructed in conjunction with power dams and reservoirs.

A member of the Fraser River Multiple Use Committee, Mr. Gwyther suggested special legislation should be brought down to create an organization to investigate and evaluate all the resources of the Fraser River Basin.

The present conflict between fish and power interests results from a misconception, Mr. Gwyther said.

Development of the Fraser is hampered because fisheries people appeared to be concerned only in the maintenance of present fish by natural spawning, Rotarians were told.

HIT BY FLOODS

"Natural spawning conditions are not the best conditions for propagation of salmon," he said. "Spawning beds are sometimes totally obliterated by floods. Low water in summer months is often a barrier to spawning fish. Sometimes it exposes eggs to frost. Unsanitary conditions in egg nests are also a detriment to survival."

B.C.'s 1,500 acres of spawning beds, which vary in degree of productivity with nature's ability to control water, are "hopelessly inefficient and it is readily possible to improve this condition through regulation provided by dams and reservoirs."

He pointed to the Leavenworth-Wash., hatchery where adult salmon escapement to hatchery in the first year was 900 fish. Escapement to the hatchery between 1950-57 ranged from 98,000 to 157,000 fish.

WASTE CHARGED

"Before 1940 there was no sockeye in Wenatchee Lake," Mr. Gwyther said. "Not only has the hatchery established an important sockeye fishery, but there is no indication of a four-year cycle. The run is substantially the same each year."

He charged there is an "appreciable waste of salmon production, and therefore food, in fishery management."

"Requirements in adults for this year's escapement from Chilco Lake of 28,000,000 downstream migrants were about 600,000 spawning adults. With artificial spawning this would require 100,000 adults and with hatchery propagation only about 20,000 adults."

If the excess of requirements in artificial spawning were processed at tidewater, an increase in dollar value amounting to $1,700,000 would be made available, said Mr. Gwyther. He estimated this increased production with hatchery propagation to be about $1,900,000 per year.

GOLF PRIZE AUCTIONED FOR CHEST

Greater Victoria Community Chest benefited by some $17 when a good-natured golfer refused to accept his prize of six golf balls, and instead auctioned them off for the Chest.

Lionel Morrison, well-known local sales manager, won the annual Rotary tournament Wednesday with a score of 76-5-71.

This gave him a trophy and six golf balls, presented at the dinner by Rev. Brian Whitlow, tourney chairman. Morrison immediately offered the balls for auction, with Rotarians paying double the retail value when it was announced proceeds would go to the Chest.

Owner Fined $25 For Not Cleaning Garbage Off Land

Alexander Szpradowski, 733 Discovery, was fined $25 in city police court today on a charge of creating a public health hazard with garbage litter.

He was found guilty last week and remanded to today to enable him to clean up five properties owned by him on North Park.

"The premises are not cleaned up," sanitary inspector Lloyd Smith told the court.

"Are they likely to remain that way?" prosecutor T. P. O'Grady asked.

"That's up to Mr. Szpradowski," Smith replied.

The accused started to explain he had cleaned up some of the mess, but that a neighbor's fence had meanwhile fallen down and there was some lumber still lying around.

"If you wanted to you could clean it up," Magistrate H. C. Hall said.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Why is Donaldson Island in Sooke called Secretary Island and Billings Spit called Jackson Spit? K.A.

A. Local usage only has made the change. Officially, the names Donaldson and Billings still stand. Donaldson Island was named after an early resident, and Billings Spit was named in 1846 after a W. T. Billings, who was on a survey vessel charting the waters. Jackson Spit is called that by local residents after a family of that name who lived there years ago. But there is no record why Donaldson Island should be called Secretary Island nowadays.

Any question or question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Chest Collections Near $200,000

The Community Chest total at noon today stood at $183,949 towards the $200,000 objective. Close to $4,000 came in this morning.

Nearly $45,000 has been collected in the residential campaign and Chest officials expect at least $60,000 before final returns are in.

Hospital giving — from employees — is up 60 per cent over last year, exceeding the quota set. Social Agency Service have also given more than their quota. They have contributed $1,176, which is 43 per cent more than in 1957.

Despite volunteer canvassing of the residential district, some families have been missed. Chest officials ask that householders who have not been approached and who wish to donate call EV 5-6708.

Mayor Seeks Bennett Talk On Auditorium

Mayor Percy Scourrah today said he is trying to arrange an interview with Premier W. A. C. Bennett to ask for a provincial grant for a civic auditorium.

"I've got a call in asking for an appointment," he said. Premier Bennett is scheduled to leave for a holiday in a few days.

Mayor Scourrah was authorized by Intermunicipal committee to enquire about possibilities of a grant after Esquimalt council had discussed the proposed $2,750,000 Great Victoria auditorium.

Esquimalt council earlier this week indicated it would require full details of the proposal before taking any action.

"All I want is the question to be put to the voters to let them decide whether they want an auditorium," the mayor commented on Esquimalt's stand.

"I think an auditorium should pay its operating expenses but not its initial capital cost."

"If Memorial Arena can make between $23,500 and $60,000 operating profit a year, an auditorium certainly should be able to pay its operating expenses."

$35 Fine Levied On Speedy Driver

When off-duty policeman Earle Doyle was passed by a car at high speed on crowded Gorge Road one Sunday afternoon three weeks ago he took chase and was led at speeds up to 70 miles an hour before stopping the driver.

In city police court today Lawrence T. Reed, 572 Dupplin, was found guilty of careless driving and fined $35.

"Certainly you deserve suspension," Magistrate H. C. Hall told him, but restricted Reed's licence to business driving only for one month.

A. Local usage only has made the change. Officially, the names Donaldson and Billings still stand. Donaldson Island was named after an early resident, and Billings Spit was named in 1846 after a W. T. Billings, who was on a survey vessel charting the waters. Jackson Spit is called that by local residents after a family of that name who lived there years ago. But there is no record why Donaldson Island should be called Secretary Island nowadays.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By STUART KEATE

The Social Register

When the Social Register people sent me a letter last Spring I felt I had to go along, for one reason:

I could never be snobbish enough to stay out.

This was an immense gamble, but it has been confirmed by the lists released today.

This is the most democratic book ever published in Canada.

It is a faithful montage of the people of this country.

Everyone is in.

If there is a bum in Vic-

a who didn't make the grade, he escaped my notice.

In a quick run through the list, I saw that our best bootlegger was honored, and so were the town's leading card-sharks and bookies.

There is at least one fellow in the list who did time for assault and battery, and another who was kicked out of a Victoria service club for using language that would make a dogface blush. There are deadbeats who have been one jump ahead of the sheriff for years. There are Communists whose greatest pleasure would be to garrote each and every one of their co-listees. There are women who haven't drawn a sober breath since graduation day at the seminary and men who still show the scars of the day their hands were caught in the cheque-writing machine.

In short, this is an accurate reflection of Canadian people who live and die, love and hate, do good things and bad, brawl and make up, play golf and gin, watch birds and burlesque, sin and repent, chisel and redress; who love freedom and hate it; the cowards and the courageous, the weak and the noble, the beasts and the beautiful.

So up the Social Register!

NEIGHBORS PLOW A FRIENDLY FURROW

and Bill Turner guide tractors today, later will help take care of seeding. Mr. Rendle has been in hospital for five weeks, his left arm incapacitated by an accident. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canada's first Social Credit premier, the late William Aberhart, recruited many of his supporters as principal of Crescent Heights High School, says an ex-Calgarian, now living in Victoria.

"He had an absolute genius for teaching mathematics," says this old student. "After all but two in our class had failed in maths, he took it over himself and we got through a year's work in one term."

He once expelled two of us for smoking in school, but took us back 24 hours later when he had 'truly repented.' It was largely because of this that we campaigned for him in his first bid for election."

Mr. Aberhart became premier of Alberta in 1935 and died in Vancouver in 1943.

Nature's wonders never cease.

Mrs. D. Gosse of 646 Cornwall strolled in her garden Wednesday morning and discovered a camelia tree in blossom.

"I am amazed," she said. "Normally our camellias bloom in March and are finished by the end of April or early May."

"I would love to know if any other Times readers have camellias in blossom now."

Many readers agree with me that Victoria offers little opportunity for sailors to do what they want to, do on wet afternoons (this column Oct. 16).

"I am surprised that no one here organizes dances and social evenings where visiting sailors can meet nice girls," writes Miss A. C. Fennimore of Sooke Street.

"Other cities do this—why not Victoria?"

I understand the Seamen's Institute on Superior Street used to hold dances, but now only caters for sailors seeking monastic entertainment in the lounge or the games room.

"It is significant," says Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of Victoria College, that so many of our successful scholars are the children of faculty members.

"I trust this will not promote an investigation or a royal commission."

The Jehovah's Witnesses have taken me to task for saying they called at my house with a collection box.

It must be admitted they were selling their paper The Watchtower, and I used the term "collecting" in a broad sense.

"Our organization is and has always been an entirely non-political, non-profit, non-commercial, charitable religious corporation, devoted exclusively to Bible education," writes W. Milliken of Victoria. "We do not collect."

CITY BUILDING INSPECTOR SINCE 1946, William Oosterink today tendered his resignation effective Nov. 30. He was due to retire next August. Trained as an architect in his native Holland, he was gassed during the First World War while serving with the Canadian Army. He was active in the building industry in Saskatoon before coming here as a contractor and house designer in 1935. Mr. Oosterink said he intends to take an extended holiday with his wife in Arizona, returning next spring, before making any further plans.

ESQUIMALT NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Fortune, James Bay, Miramichi, Cowichan, return late this month.

Crescent, Cayuga, Athabaskan, Skeena, Fraser, Margaree, return a.m., Nov. 8.

Mrs. Catherine Skinner, 1808 Chestnut, reported to city police Wednesday night two boys about 16 years old snatched her purse containing $10 and personal effects as she walked by Club Sirocco at 9.15 p.m.

Sixty-four members of Victoria duplicate bridge club Tuesday began a series of six sessions for a trophy donated by Dr. Jack Patterson. Winners in the first session were: North—South—Laura Tingley and George Metcalfe, Maude McMicking and Joan Williams, Dick Lipsey and Joe Lukas, Ethel Cleworth and Larry MacMillan; East—West—Ida Druce and Dorothy McColl, Les Stewart and Jack Goldie, Tony Marsh and Frank Artlett, Charles Cleworth and Harry Parry.

Winter meetings of the Victoria Toastmasters' Club No. 790 will be held each Monday, except holidays, at 5.54 p.m. in the Monterey Restaurant.

The Victoria Amateur Movie Club will meet at the Art Gallery Monday, Oct. 27, when the 10 best British amateur movies of 1956 will be shown.

Fire caused an estimated $1,000 damage at the home of Frederick Hobson, 820 Island, Wednesday night.

Oak Bay firemen said the cause probably was faulty wiring in the basement and flames followed wires to the attic, where most of the damage was centred.

There was extensive smoke damage to other rooms, but contents were not seriously harmed.

Leonard Glew and his son, William, both of 1090 Tolmie, escaped with a shaking up when their car overturned and burst into flames on Signal Hill late Wednesday.

Esquimalt police said a mechanical defect caused the accident in which no other car was involved.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Low-Priced Woolen Sets Both Smart and Practical

By PENNY SAVER

Bargain price items today include wonderfully warm scarves of pure wool. They come in several brightly-colored plaids and the cost is a mere 98 cents!

Another item to keep a young school girl warm in winter—a set of knitted hat and gloves, attractively embroidered, and selling for $1.98 a set. Colors are pale pink or bright red.

Dainty nylon half-slips are selling this week at a special price of just $1. Tailored to fit neatly under slim skirts, the slips are trimmed with a wide hem of embroidered nylon making them ultra-feminine.

Nighties of white nylon with blue floral pattern are also selling for the low price of $1, and cute little baby doll pyjamas are priced at $1.98.

For the man in the house, I've found genuine English briar pipes at a special price of $1.50—which is quite a saving since some of the same well-known make sell for as much as $15. Stems are hard and tough, and bowls come in several popular shapes.

Another smart piece of smoking equipment is an oriental design table lighter, with attractive hand-painted design on lacquer. Guaranteed to work, these well-designed lighters are selling at $2.95.

Would you believe it's possible to buy a cultured pearl pendant for only $1? The unmounted single pearl hangs from a sterling silver chain, to form a very attractive pendant.

Like to know where these items are sold? Just phone Penny Saver at EV 2-313L.

DEAR ABBY...

Out of His Head!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been crazy about Paul ever since I can remember. He fell off his bicycle and when they carried him to his porch I was there talking to his sister. He reached for my hand and said "Margaret, I love you." It was plain as day. Now he claims he was unconscious and never said any such thing. If he WAS really unconscious does it mean anything, or should I forget the whole thing and find somebody else?

MARGARET: Find a nice fellow who doesn't have to be knocked unconscious to declare his love.

DEAR ABBY: I was somewhat perturbed and annoyed upon reading GRANDMA'S letter in which she states that her grandchildren act as if they were raised in the wilds of Africa. I spent ten years in interior Africa, during which time I had occasion to observe much of the tribal life in various regions. African children do NOT act as Grandma's grandchildren act. They are taught to obey and when a parent speaks, the child acts accordingly and asks no questions. May I suggest that GRANDMA find a more suitable simile. Sincerely,

(Mr. W. M. P.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my boyfriend who thinks he is a modern Tarzan. He's big and handsome and he knows it. We went swimming almost every day last summer just so he could show off his muscles. When we go bowling he strips down to his tee shirt for the same reason. At parties he challenges everyone there to do more pushups than he. He says he loves me, but instead of saving toward getting married, he is saving toward going to Hollywood so somebody can discover him. Should I break off with him?

JANE.

DEAR JANE: Unless you want to be left out on the limb, I suggest you let "Tarzan" swing through the trees in the jungle alone. Find a man with both feet on the ground.

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter, 13, who does not eat enough to keep her alive. The food is there but she insists she is not hungry. At one time she was quite stout, but she went on a diet and took off 30 pounds. Now she looks like a refugee from a prison camp. At mealtime when I see her picking at her food and shoving it around on her plate I get so mad at her I scream. I know I shouldn't but I can't help it. She starts to cry and runs to her room. Can you help me get this child to eat before she puts me in an early grave?

DEAR MRS. H.: Quit picking on her. Take her to a doctor. Let him tell her what to eat and how much. Ignore her completely at mealtime, if you have to bite your tongue to do it. When you quit nagging her, her appetite will improve.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for two years and my

CARAMEL APPLES

Fourteen oz. package caramels (about 56), 2 tablespoons water, 4 or 5 medium-sized apples.

Place caramels and water in top of double boiler. Heat, stirring frequently until sauce is smooth. Stick a wooden skewer in each apple. Dip in hot caramel, turn until surface is coated. Place on waxed paper and place in refrigerator a few minutes until firm.

If the children are young and you are having a sit-down supper, use apple hobboblins as favors. Using lifesavers for eyes, piece of gumdrop for nose and popcorn or peanuts for teeth, stick the features on the apple with heavy sugar and water syrup. Place on a paper doily ruffled collar and use another doily shaped into a cone for the hat.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Handwork, and especially knitting, always has been indulged in with pleasure by women. However, in recent years there has been an even greater interest in this creative skill.

Knitted clothes have been extremely popular and handwork of all sorts seems to be coming into its own again along with more feminine clothes and attitudes.

Knitting long has been recommended for those who are extremely nervous. It is soothing and certainly makes a woman look much more attractive than when her hands are drumming on the arms of her chair or are twitching about generally. Knitting can be a real tranquilizer for a jumpy lady.

Also psychologists have said that one reason for frustration in modern woman is the fact that she does not invest in her creative itch to make lovely or needed articles with her own hands. Today it is not necessary for her to make soap and candles. They are manufactured for her.

Today we know that emotional stresses and tensions often are reflected in illness and in appearance. The stresses of today's fast-paced living are now even recognized as a contributing factor in certain dermatosis. Doctor Louis Wexler, noted dermatologist, advises knitting as one way to reduce nervous strain and resultant tension-inspired skin ailments.

Doctor Wexler said: "The pressures of our modern way of life are definitely an important cause of many skin diseases. In particular 'neurodermatitis'."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If fall house-cleaning chores include polishing silver then have some polythene bags handy. Shining silver stored in these bags comes out, for festive occasions, looking as bright as the day it was cleaned.

Here's a hint for the do-it-yourself painter. A soft bottle of cleaning brush is just the thing for those hard-to-get-at places around radiators.

River To Be Dragged for Two Bodies

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—RCMP plan to search and drag the Pine River, 70 miles west of this northeast British Columbia city, for the bodies of two men said to have been killed near the river. Police said a man had admitted killing a new Canadian, and an Indian, whom he picked up near Arras, 11 miles west of here, after an argument.

U.S. WRITER'S VIEW ON CHINA

Signs of Revolt Not in Evidence

This is the sixth and last of a series of articles by special NEA correspondent John Strohm on his tour of Communist China.

By JOHN STROHM

NEW YORK—Questions often asked me since my 50-hour flight home after a tour of Red China are: "How do the Chinese people live, eat and work under communism? What's happened to religion, the schools? Are they docile or will they ever revolt?"

A consolidated reply would be something like this: The food is adequate, the housing vastly improved. Schools, churches and all means of public expression are in the complete service of the state. There was no visible evidence of any disposition to resist regimentation.

Light office work earns a rice or flour ration of a pound a day. Workers in steel plants and coal mines get up to two pounds a day. Every individual can buy 40 cents worth of meat (half a pound) every week, with sometimes an extra ration for Sundays. Each family gets a pound of beef monthly and 10 ounces of edible oil monthly per person.

The cotton cloth ration is up to six yards a year per person. Chinese wages are edging up. In the two dozen plants I visited wages average about $25 a month. The lowest paid workers get about $12; the highest paid, $40. Factory managers and top officials get $60 to $75 a month. The idea of high wages for managers, artists and intellectuals such as are paid in the Soviet Union would be sinful in China. Continued on Page 10

TRADE CONGRESS PROTESTS

Arbitration End Planned by U.K.

LONDON (AP)—The British government is abolishing compulsory arbitration for labor disputes. Labor Minister Ian Macleod announced Wednesday night the act setting up industrial tribunals with legally-binding powers will be brought to an end in six months. It became law seven years ago.

The only government arbitration machinery left will be industrial courts, whose rulings are not binding.

The Trades Union Congress immediately denounced the new move. One union leader said: "There will be a strike a day for a year."

Employers have complained that compulsory arbitration, although easily enforced against a company, could not easily be applied against workers.

'No Force' Declares Chiang

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek today renounced the use of force as the principal means of returning to the Communist-held Chinese mainland.

In a joint communique ending three days of talks with U.S. State Secretary Dulles, Chiang said a return to the mainland still is his sacred mission but "the foundation of this mission resides in the minds and the hearts of the Chinese people."

Dulles told Nationalist leaders at a banquet Wednesday night, he considers the Communist Chinese regime just a passing phase.

NO FORCE

The principal means of achieving Chiang's mission successfully is through nationalism, democracy and social well-being, "and not the use of force," the communique said.

The communique also came a step closer toward an American commitment to defend the Nationalist-held offshore islands, although it did not make such a flat guarantee.

The statement said that the United States and the Nationalist regime "recognized that under present conditions the defense of the Quemoy islands together with the Matsus is closely related to the defense of Formosa and Penghu of the Pescadore Islands in the Formosa Strait."

This was interpreted as a new warning that any Red attempt to take the offshore islands might provoke U.S. intervention.

DULLES HEADS HOME

Dulles left by jet tanker for Washington after he and Chiang drew up the communique in their fifth meeting since Tuesday.

The Chinese Communists and their Russian allies "cannot possibly succeed" in trying to conquer Formosa, eliminate Nationalist China and expel the U.S. from the western Pacific, the communique declared.

Bomarc Missile Deal Off?

OTTAWA (CP)—Possibility that plans to acquire the Bomarc guided missile for Canadian air defence will eventually be cancelled is being mentioned by some officials here.

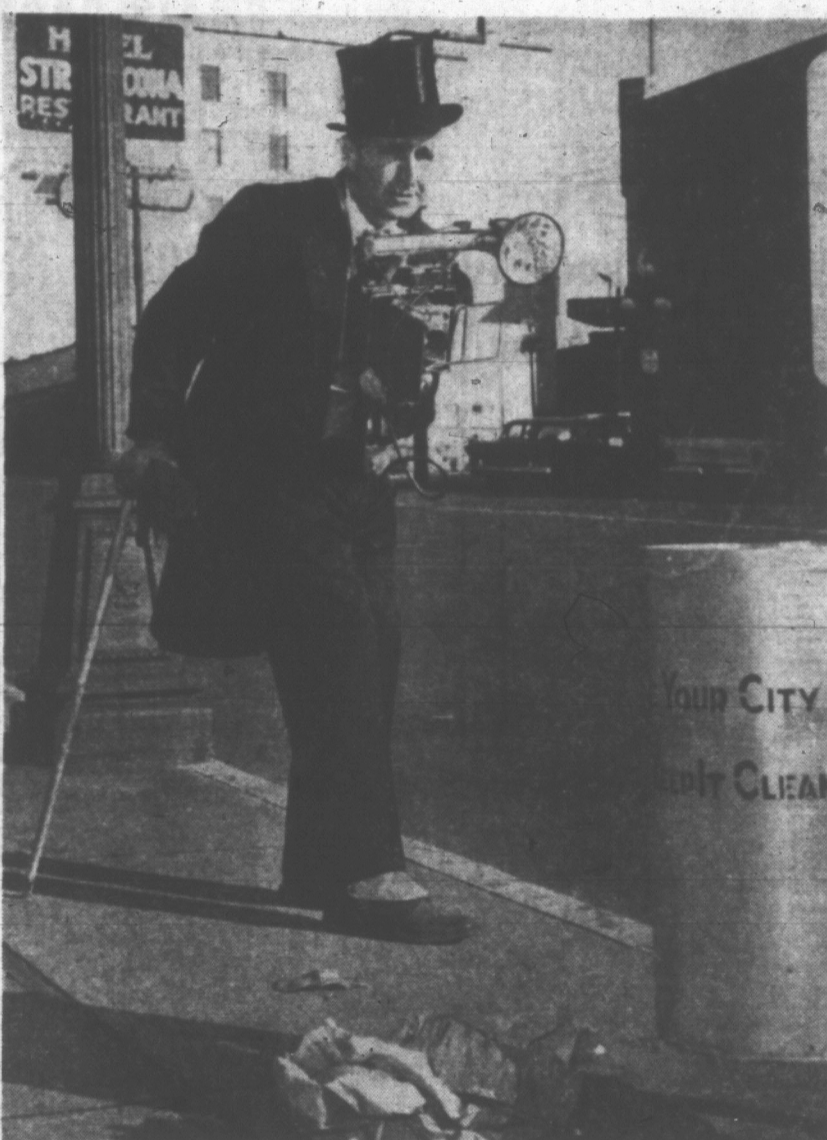

The Bomarc is scheduled to come into operation at two Canadian bases in 1961 as a defence against manned bombers.

But by that time, some officials say, the manned bomber will no longer be the main air threat against the North American continent.

These authorities say Canada now should place most of its emphasis on the counter-missile—that is, defence against the intercontinental ballistic missile.

Vancouver Stocks Closing Prices

VANCOUVER—The closing market was quiet. Cowichan Copper sold 300 at 91, Peace River Peté 600 at 58, Prosper 1,000 at 35, Inland Gas 100 at 58, Mid West Copper 2,000 at 12.

City 'Blue Bloods' Are 'Tickled Pink'

PROMINENTS AMONG 'OUTS'

Princess Chikmatoff, Capt. and Mrs. Massey Gooden, Symphony conductor Hans Gruber.

Mrs. W. C. Woodward, who entertained Princess Margaret.

Miss Kathleen Agnew, Robin Dunsinuir, scion of the Island's most famous family.

Harry P. Hodges, husband of Senator Nancy Hodges. And numerous others.

Names make news—but leavin' 'em out apparently gets a lot of attention too.

As m' Cockney friend sez, that Russian dam offer seems to 'av 'it th' Nile on th' 'ead-waters.

I know a businessman who ain't registered, but his trade mark is.

The 'Ins' From Puck To Press

The new social register makes no distinctions on pursuits or avocations of those included.

Here are some of the professions and trades of people whose names are there:

Collin Kilburn, hockey player.

Elgin Neish, former fisherman's union official.

Former Songhees Indian Chief Percy Ross.

All local police chiefs.

Many doctors.

Mayor Percy Scurren.

Technical Aid, Major Equipment Also Promised

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev announced today that Russia will loan the United Arab Republic 400,000,000 rubles for construction of the Aswan High Dam on the Nile.

Khrushchev's announcement was carried by Moscow Radio.

It was U.S. withdrawal of aid for the dam project that led to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal two years ago.

The ruble loan amounts to about $100,000,000 at the arbitrary Soviet official rate of exchange.

Khrushchev also promised the United Arab Republic the services of technicians and construction equipment for the project.

He made his announcement at a reception for UAR vice-president Abdel Hakim Amer in the Kremlin.

Khrushchev said the loan was being made in response to a request by the UAR for aid relayed by Amer.

He said the money would go to pay for machinery, equipment, and other materials from the Soviet Union to the UAR.

Russia made her first offer of aid for the dam in October, 1955, holding out a $200,000,000 loan that was to be repaid over 30 years by Egyptian deliveries of cotton and was to carry a 2 per cent interest.

The U.S. and Britain counter-offered.

'Working Paper' For Bribe Jury

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Eversfield and bank manager Justice J. O. Wilson directed today that the jury should be supplied with a working paper on which to record their verdicts in the involved bribery-conspiracy case whose central figure is former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

The judge made his ruling at the start of the 69th day of the trial.

His suggestion, first proposed Wednesday, brought a protest from the defence that it would be an innovation in Canadian law, but the jurist ruled the working paper was necessary because of the complexity of the case and the multiplicity of verdicts possible.

The trial was held up for 25 minutes while counsel argued a legal technical point of law in the absence of the jury. When the jury filed in, prosecutor Victor Dryer resumed his address, now in its third day. This will be followed by the judge's charge expected to take a week.

CONFLICT The prosecutor referred to the conflict of evidence between star Crown witness Charles Eversfield had said he was present in 1953 in the bank manager's office when H. W. Gray in the involved bribery-conspiracy case whose central figure is former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

Loath, had testified that Eversfield was not there.

The prosecutor said it was obvious that Eversfield "knows too much about the transaction for him not to have been there."

Mr. Dryer said Sommers had testified that the $2,500 transfer and the payment of $607 by Pacific Coast Services Limited for rugs for the minister's Victoria home were both legitimate transactions covered by notes.

But the records showed these payments were made on the same day, yet the notes were dated 17 days apart. Mr. Dryer suggested there were two possible explanations for this. The first was that Sommers and Gray dated the notes apart to "deliberately confuse the issue."

The other possible explanation was that the notes were not made out until 1955, some two years later, and that at that time Gray and Sommers couldn't recall the dates.

LADY DOCKER ASKS

What Ladders
Were Climbed?

MONTREAL (UPI)—Lady

Norah Docker thinks Canada's new social register is "disappointing."

"Really, this social register of yours," she said, "I don't think it registers at all."

Her three-quarter-length white ermine coat (reputed cost $9,000) flapping as she walked, Lady Docker breezed into town late Wednesday, chatting brightly.

She and her 19-year-old son, Lance, were accompanying her husband on a business trip.

When reporters questioned her about Canada's blue book, she said: "No, I don't like the social register. I thought that in coming to Canada I would be free of all that social business."

"Really, this news about a social register is the first disappointment you've handed me here."

"I'd like to check into the bank balances of some of the people listed in it," she said. "I'd like to find out how they ever be-

Many Victorians are wondering today just how the names for the "social register" were obtained.

Some recalled the visit to the city in September, 1957 of Miss Joan Pritchard, an Okanagan woman who was compiling lists.

The way Miss Joan Pritchard looked at it then, it was to be "a list of the socially prominent, of course, but also a real record of the men and women who have helped to make our country great."

At the time Miss Pritchard was gathering names.

Fact is, she had been gathering names in many parts of British Columbia, and for several months, before she reached Victoria.

In her briefcase she had names of descendants of settlers, names of British Columbians who had, to use her own words, "contributed or were contributing something to the growth and culture of this province."

ance; names of men and women in public life."

She explained that the same sort of thing was going on in each province across Canada.

"When we have the roster complete," she said, "the first Social Register of Canada will be published."

An optimist at heart, Miss Pritchard expected that the book would be off the press before the end of 1957. But it took several upheavals, many changes among sponsors and a number of stories in newspapers and magazines to launch the book.

Premier showing was in Montreal last Friday where one of the first issues was placed on a red velvet covered pedestal.

and "presented" with soft music and colored lights.

It was originally planned that the first copy, suitably engraved and bound, would be presented to Her Majesty the Queen.

Miss Pritchard was born at Westbank near Kelowna; started in radio work in the interior city and later moved to eastern Canada where, for 10 years, she worked in radio stations at Hamilton and Toronto.

She was one of a group of Canadian press women who were given visas to visit Russia in 1955 and she took a tape recorder with her behind the Iron Curtain and recorded talks with Russians through interpreters.

Mayor Behind New Bylaw On Fireworks

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said he would support a draft bylaw prohibiting fireworks sales after 6 p.m. on Halloween despite a request for a change.

A. J. Burns, lawyer for The Orient, a Government Street store, applied this morning for permission to address council before it gave final reading on the bylaw later today.

Mr. Burns was expected to oppose the bylaw on the grounds that the store purchased a large supply of fireworks in the expectation it would be able to sell them up until 9 p.m. Friday.

"In the interests of the public, I will still support the bylaw," the mayor said when informed of the application for a hearing.

The bylaw would permit sale of fireworks only on Oct. 29, 30 and 31 and only before 6 p.m. those days.

Under the present fire regulations, storekeepers must take out a $1 permit to stock fireworks or face prosecution and possible $100 fine.

Fire Chief James Bayless said the regulations forbid display of fireworks without the permit.

If more than 150 pounds of incendiary items are stocked by a store "whether on display or under the counter, it has to be stored in a fireproof vault," he said.

CPA Tourist Proposal First Among Airlines

OTTAWA (CP) — CPA witness Frederic Kimball said today that no known airline has undertaken what CPA proposes — to make money by creating a new trans-Continental route bearing 80 per cent tourist fares.

The American aviation consultant agreed with TCA counsel John G. Edison that the average American airline carries only 36.6 per cent in tourist passengers and 63.4 per cent in first-class fares.

TCA currently carries about 63 per cent in first-class fares and 37 per cent in tourists, CPA proposes to compete against TCA by offering 80 per cent of its service to tourists and only 20 per cent in first-class fares.

Mr. Edison introduced evidence to show that one U.S. airline, TWA Airlines, had been attempting to boost its proportion of tourist traffic and last year showed a deficit of $5,000,000 on total revenue of $200,000,000.

Mr. Kimball agreed that this was the case but said the deficit did not necessarily come from the tourist boost attempt. TWA, he claimed, had other problems to solve.

Wednesday Mr. Edison suggested that if Canada needs two trans-Continental airlines, the U.S. should have 10 instead of the four it now has.

Compromise Ends Union Feuding

MONTREAL (CP) — Two groups feuding for control of the 2,000-member National Association of Marine Engineers Incorporated (CLC) have reached a compromise agreement, it was announced Wednesday.

President Richard G. Greaves said the compromise was reached during a series of meetings and negotiations and that the stage has been set for unifying the association's ranks.

The association represents engineers on the Great Lakes and the west and east coasts.

Mr. Greaves also announced he plans to call a national convention early next year. He added that all legal proceedings launched during the last two years have been terminated.

250 Negro Women Herded in Trucks

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Some 250 singing, dancing Negro women were arrested and driven away in police trucks Wednesday when they protested against having to carry identity books.

The arrests brought the number of Negro women arrested after making identity book protests to 750 in the last few days.

CHURCH HOLIDAY HIS AIM

Reeve's Motive 'Respect'

School trustee R. H. Reeve, who drew criticism from as far as Toronto for attacking Remembrance Day as "hypocrisy," said today he has no regrets for his statement.

"I have no regrets because I believe I spoke for a good cause," he said. "I wanted to point out that in some respects, Remembrance Day has become something of a circus—just another holiday."

"I think it should be treated with a much deeper respect than is given it now."

Mr. Reeve said Remembrance Day should be treated as a "holy day instead of a holiday. People should observe it in churches where they could "go down on their knees and thank God for the men who gave their lives behind guns" instead of marking the day by merely reading an editorial.

"Patriotic Drive!" He said he believed his criticism of present practice had done more for Remembrance Day than an angry outcry in Toronto labelling him as a "crackpot."

Mr. Reeve said that the schools were making every effort to impart the deep significance of Remembrance Day to students but that this was not being done in the home.

"As a school trustee, I have even been accused of permitting 'patriotic drive' to be fed to the children" through this program," he said.

"This shows how little respect there is among some persons for Remembrance Day."

Power and Utilities Invest Billions in Canada's Development

Throughout Canada as a whole, power and public utilities companies are spending close to three billion dollars this year in capital investment. This reflection of confidence in Canada's future is based on the fact that the demand for power is increasing at a rapid rate.

Much of the increased power demand, of course, is for industry. But even in the domestic field the per capita use of electricity is more than double the figure of 1945. Today, more than 80 per cent of Canadian homes have electric power.

cent ten years ago. The same advance is evident in varying degrees on other types of household appliances.

In eastern Canada new sources of power are being tapped.
